Pair Buy Off Sniper for $10 Cash in Lonely Lane

Price Cut From $20 Argue for Their Lives Takes 20 Minutes Police Conceal Names

A man and woman who stood face to face with Washington's mad sniper while his gun was trained at them and "bought" their lives with $10 have revealed themselves to police, The Post learned last night.

For more than 20 minutes last Wednesday afternoon, the couple was held at bay by the colored maniac while he muttered over and over: "I ought to kill you," according to their story to detectives.

The two, whose identity is closely guarded by police, have agreed to view a colored suspect today at the Seventh Precinct Station. Detectives will stage a secret lineup, it was said.

Solution of the murderous attacks in which the sniper has killed two and wounded two may hinge on outcome of the line-up, police believe.

"We are certain we can positively identify the man who accosted us," the couple told police. They are the only persons known to have obtained a daylight look at the madman.

Parked in Lonely Lane

They said they went to police with the description of the killer only after much thought. Afraid of publicity, they entered an agreement with detectives to co-operate only if their identities be withheld and that they not be made to testify in event the murders ever are solved.

It was revealed that the pair was parked in a lonely lane north of the East-West Highway, near the scene of the sniper's latest murderous attack, when a colored man walked from woods behind the car.

Approaching the machine, he ordered them out. The man said he locked the doors and prepared to start the motor when the colored man drew an automatic pistol.

"Now will you get out?" he was quoted as asking.

The shabbily dressed colored man made them leave their car and stand facing him while he debated with himself whether to kill them or not. They pleaded and offered him money.

Police Resume Watch

Finally, according to the victims' story to police, the gunman asked for $20, a sum the couple did not have. They pleaded and begged that they be let live and offered their assailant all the money they possessed—$10.

He accepted and after taking the money declared:

"I still ought to kill you."

They said he then turned around and walked boldly up the middle of the road, swinging the gun in his hand.

Fearful that the sniper would come upon him and his family when his car got stuck in the mud of Beach drive extended, near Kensington, a Bethesda resident, raced back to Connecticut avenue last night and shouted for help.

Motorists Afraid to Stop

Passing motorists apparently shared the man's fear of the sniper, for none stopped. In desperation, he went to a nearby house to telephone, but again was frustrated. No one would answer the door.

Bethesda police finally were reached and pulled the car from the mud with a derrick.

Meanwhile, not content with the partial identification of a suspect by Mrs. Edna L. Brown at Georgetown Hospital yesterday, detectives were ordered to resume their details in the Rock Creek Park area again last night.

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson stated he does not think the man in custody is the sniper who has murdered two men and shot Mrs. Brown and another man in the last two weeks.

John Costello Dies; 'Boss' of D.C. Democrats

Never Held Franchise Controlled Delegates Snubbed by New Deal

John F. Costello, former Democratic National Committeeman for the District of Columbia and Recorder of Deeds in the Wilson Administration, died of a heart attack yesterday morning in his home, 3149 Newark street northwest. He was sixty-five.

Mr. Costello, a benign Democratic "boss" here for nearly a quarter of a century, was first bothered with a heart ailment in New York last summer. There was a recurrence about two weeks ago, and his physician ordered him to bed. Members of the family were present when the end came.

Held No Vote

A native of Washington and therefore without a vote, Mr. Costello nevertheless was one of the best-known politicians in the country. This seeming paradox was explained by the fact that the District of Columbia, though lacking the vote, is entitled to three delegates at national conventions of the Democratic Party.

The first national convention which Mr. Costello attended was the historic conclave of '96 in Chicago, where William Jennings Bryan

Soviet Youth Chiefs Face Mild 'Purge'

'Clean-up' Promised 5,000,000 to Vote 'Morals' Assailed Not Called Spies

By Joseph Barnes.
Special Cable to The Post.

Moscow, Nov. 20.—Less than three weeks after the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Komsomols (Young Communist League), their leader, Alexander V. Kosarev, and most of his assistants faced an imminent clean-up today.

"Intolerable Situation"

Their own paper, the Komsomol Pravda, promised the Soviet Union's 5,000,000 youthful Communists that new elections would sweep out the "bureaucratic dignitaries." Kosarev and three assistants, according to the paper, have allowed "an intolerable situation" to develop within the ranks of the Young Communists. They were charged with "morals alien to bolshevism, conceit and self-advertisement, political carelessness and loafing and gaping about."

However, throughout the stinging editorial Kosarev was still accorded the courtesy of "comrade." This is interesting as an indication that an important official now may be removed from office in the U. S. S. R. without being called a spy.

Stood Next to Stalin

Although Kosarev himself made an important speech and was photographed standing next to Josef V. Stalin, secretary general of the Communist Party, at the anniversary celebration three weeks ago, he could have guessed the storm was gathering. At the same meeting Andrei A. Zhdanov, secretary general of the Leningrad Communist Party, who is now one of Stalin's closest associates, declared:

"I must tell you bluntly that the consequences of the enemies' activity has not yet been outlived in the Komsomols."

Joined Army at 15.

Kosarev has been chief secretary of the Komsomols since 1929. A son of workers, he joined the Red Army at the age of 15. He is a member of the central committee of the Communist Party and has been awarded the Order of Lenin for political services. He recently announced that half a million Komsomols were serving in the Red army.

2,000 Chinese Die in Fire Set To Halt Enemy

Shanghai (Monday), Nov. 21 (AP). Two thousand persons were reported today to have perished in a five-day fire which prematurely razed Changsha, capital of Hunan province, while Japanese met reverses in their advance on the central Chinese city.

Three Chinese officials charged with over-haste in setting the fire were said to have been executed on orders of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

At Chungking, China's provisional capital, government officials said the fire started through accidents and "premature zeal" of local officials desiring to apply the "scorched earth" policy to prevent anything worthwhile remaining for the invaders.

Soviet Jails Flier Trying to Take Wife to England

Moscow, Nov. 20 (AP).—Bryan Grover, a British engineer, who started to fly from Stockholm to Moscow last Sunday after trying for more than a year to get his Russian-born wife out of the country, is in jail, it was learned here today.

He landed the next day at Stariza, 100 miles short of Moscow, his goal. He was without even an entry visa for himself or an exit visa for his wife. Soon after landing Grover was taken into custody by police and his old sport plane sequestered.

His friends said he well knew that his desperate attempt to enter Russia without permission would land him in jail or worse. They said that he hoped nevertheless to use this method of attracting attention of higher Soviet officials in his determination to join his wife.

CCC Boys Admit Plan to Wreck Train and 'Watch People Die'

Two CCC workers confessed to police yesterday that they placed a 75-pound boulder across mainline tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad "to see the wreck and watch people die."

One 17 and the other 20, the two colored youths were arrested by Detective Sergeant Robert J. Barrett and Detective E. E. Scott after railroad officials reported three attempts to wreck crack passenger trains just east of New York avenue and Bladensburg road northeast.

Two trainmen—W. C. Smith, 816 E street northeast, and James S. Martin, 302 Massachusetts avenue northeast—first discovered the boulder placed on the tracks last Thursday. They removed the obstruction only a few minutes before a Pennsylvania flyer roared over the spot.

A trackwalker—John A. Newman, 425 Franklin street northeast—reported he found the large stone on the rails again Friday and noticed the two CCC boys crouched in some underbrush nearby. They fled, but not before he had a good look at one of them, he said.

Barrett and Scott went with Newman to the camp at Twenty-eighth street and Benning road, where the latter identified one boy. His arrest brought about the seizure of the second boy.

The boys have been working in the vicinity of the railroad tracks and said they placed the stone there "to see a wreck."

"We could have watched the people die," police quoted one of the boys.

Both will be sent to Police Court for hearings probably Tuesday. They will probably be sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation, it was said.

Queen Maud of Norway Dies, British Court in Mourning

Aunt of George VI Operation in London Ruled for 33 Years

By the United Press.

London, Nov. 20.—Queen Maud of Norway, last surviving child of Edward VII and Queen Alexandra of Great Britain, died early today in a London private clinic from a heart attack induced by an abdominal operation which she underwent last Wednesday.

Death came to Europe's "little Queen" who was the tomboy of the British royal family a half-century ago and enjoyed the boyish nickname of "Harry," at 12:25 a. m., six days before her sixty-ninth birthday.

She died peacefully in sleep with only a night nurse at her bedside. Her husband, King Haakon VII of the Norwegians, who was staying at Buckingham Palace, was not able to reach her bedside before her death, although he had been almost constantly with her since the operation.

King George VI of Great Britain, her nephew, ordered the British court into four weeks' mourning.

The 35-year-old son of King Haakon and Queen Maud, Crown Prince Olaf, left Oslo for London immediately after receiving the news.

The Norwegian Legation, formally announcing death of the Queen who sat with her tall husband on the throne of Norway for 33 years, said she died "without previous warning" after finding relief in the night from long hours of distress due to the operation.

On Saturday night the legation had issued a bulletin stating she had spent a "disturbed day" but was maintaining strength.

Physicians said her age aggravated her suffering.

News of her death was telephoned immediately to King George VI of Great Britain and Queen Elizabeth at St. Paul's on Waldenbury, Hertfordshire, where they were spending the week-end at the estate of the Queen's brother, David Bowes-Lyon.

The King and Queen hurried back to London.

Arriving at Buckingham Palace this evening, King George and Queen Elizabeth met the sorrowing King Haakon and extended their condolences.

Tokyo Declares Her Navy Must Rule Pacific

Press Is Outspoken Pact Abrogation Urged Yangtze Ban Extended

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Nov. 20.—An outspoken editorial in the newspaper Hochi declared today the issue raised by the recent United States protest against discrimination in China lies not in China but in ultimate domination of the entire Western Pacific.

Who finally will be "master of the Western Pacific," the newspaper said, will be the "answer to this issue."

Hochi's statement reflects a view long held by the Japanese navy which consistently has argued that control of Pacific Ocean trade lanes is equally as important as control of areas on the Asiatic mainland.

(The editorial followed Japan's answer Friday denying United States charges in a protest October 6 that American interests were suffering "unwarranted interference" in China.

Treaty Abrogation Urged

(The Japanese answer frankly asserted Japan was engaged in establishing a "new order in Asia." This was interpreted in authoritative quarters as virtual declaration that Tokyo considered the 1922 nine-power treaty obsolete.

(The treaty, signed at Washington by Japan, the United States and seven other nations, pledged respect for China's territorial integrity and independence and the principle of the "Open Door.")

The Japanese press spoke with almost one voice today after a day of silence on the Japanese note.

Hochi saw the American protest as the latest manifestation of "American policy of the past 40 years" and concluded further exchanges of notes would be futile since the real answer must be found in "who will be master of the Western Pacific."

The newspaper Yomiuri expressed disappointment that Japan's

Alice Paul Heads World Feminists

Alice Paul, of 144 B street northeast, founder of the National Woman's Party, yesterday was elected chairman of the newly created World Woman's Party which will be headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland, the United Press reported.

The world party, initiated by the national group at its recent biennial convention in Detroit, was created in order that "public sentiment throughout the world may be brought to recognize and establish liberty and equality without distinction of sex."

Mrs. Katherine Boyle, of Nejeve, France, was elected treasurer, and Mrs. Amy R. Ransome, also of Washington, assistant treasurer.

Convicts Riot Against Exile to Devil's Island

700 Attack Guards Quelled by Troops Ship Sails Today

By the United Press.

Paris, Nov. 20.—Troops were called today to quell bloody mutiny among 700 habitual criminals ready to sail in chains to Devil's Island on the "farewell voyage" of the prison ship La Martiniere, according to reports from St. Martin Island off La Rochelle.

Screaming "we won't leave for Guiana!" the four-time offenders were said to have attacked their guards with knives behind the high walls of the island's infirmary.

Many Are Wounded

Reports in Paris said the mutiny, which broke out without warning Saturday night, was suppressed early today by reinforcements of gendarmes and Mobile Guards from the mainland after many men had been wounded, 15 of them seriously.

The La Martiniere, an ancient tramp freighter fitted out with iron cages in her hold for the three-week voyage to the penal colony in French Guiana off the South American coast, is scheduled to sail tomorrow.

Stabbed 15 Times

Although the government announced last August that no more prisoners would be sent to Devil's Island and that it would be abandoned gradually after 88 years of notorious service, a last voyage of the La Martiniere was decided upon because of the crowded condition of French prisons.

The 700 convicts, mostly between 25 and 35, began their revolt at nightfall Saturday, according to the Paris Soir, when one of the prisoners produced a knife.

"We will have your skins!" the convicts shouted at the guards and a free-for-all followed.

After 15 men had fallen in the melee the prison officials were said to have sent an urgent call to the mainland for Mobile Guards and gendarmes who did not arrive, however, until several hours later.

Poison Ice Cream Kills 2; One Saved

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—Wilbert Layton, 34, and his 10-year-old son, John Wilbert, died tonight from eating ice cream which relatives said the father admitted poisoning. Another child, William Frederick, 7, was saved by quick action of a patrolman.

Mrs. Theresa Ostendorf, grandmother of the boys, said the father ordered ice cream and a soft drink, and mixed it for the youngsters. Layton called "So long" as she started to retire, Mrs. Ostendorf reported, and she asked him where he was going.

"I've taken poison and given it to the kids," she said he replied. "We don't want to live any longer."

Pan-America Defense Plan Under Fire

Peace Groups Critical 'Hysteria' Assailed Berle Reaffirms Policy Others Laud Idea

New Ships Delayed

ADMIRAL WILLIAM D. LEAHY, chief of naval operations, yesterday reported "numerous construction delays" which have hampered the Navy's shipbuilding program. He hoped this year's program will "deter aggression." Page 5.

RADIO AMATEURS along the Eastern Seaboard held emergency drill with headquarters at Washington. They said they intended keeping in practice for possible disasters when normal communications might be interrupted. Page 24.

Policy Criticized

President Roosevelt's new continental defense doctrine was assailed as dangerous "hysteria" by seven peace organizations last night, but it won support and reaffirmation from two other sources.

The committee sponsoring the Conference on Pan-American Democracy, to be held here December 10-11 commended the President's "suggestion of a common American military defense" and said it had "documentary evidence showing how German, Italian and Japanese governments are planning together to seize control of and partition Latin-America."

At the same time, Adolph A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, was broadcasting throughout the Americas an address in which he said "we are prepared to defend . . . on any line which may be necessary" the existing "peace of co-operation" prevailing on the American continent.

Delegation Sails Friday

Berle spoke on the conference of American States, to open at Lima, Peru, December 9, as the American delegation, headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and former Gov. Alf M. Landon, prepared to sail Friday for Lima. Great importance has attached to the forthcoming conference there in view of American determination to resist Fascist and Nazi political or economic penetration of South American lands.

The seven groups assailing the President's recent stand attacked "current plans to create a naval and military establishment to defend the Western Hemisphere" as causing "another 'Martian invasion' scare and as contrary to Pan-American agreements for consultation in case of a threat to the peace of either continent."

The organizations were the National Council for Prevention of War, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Keep America Out of War Committee, World Peaceways, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Youth Committee Against War and Labor Anti-War Council.

Tax Increase Feared

"Hysteria," their statement said, "is taking the place of reason in thinking and speaking of international affairs. The show is not being staged by Orson Welles (who staged the "Martian invasion" radio program which caused a furore) but by the President of the United States. It is not as good a job, but it is decidedly more dangerous."

The organizations said they "condemn utterly" the policies and methods of Hitler and Mussolini and believe in the firmest possible protection of democracy. But, they added, "battleships and bombing planes" cannot stop economic or

Chest Workers Hasten Drive To Reach Goal in Two Days

Community Chest leaders last night urged their 9,000 volunteer workers to make every effort to push the campaign for $2,127,000 over the top during the remaining two days of the drive.

More than one-third of the fund for support of the Chest's social welfare program remains to be filled before the final report meeting Wednesday noon, officials said. At Friday's report meeting, volunteer workers had brought in 113,780 pledges totaling $1,376,059, or 64.69 per cent of the required total.

Responses from business firms and their employes, according to leaders in the group unit, are expected to show a decided spurt at the noon report meetings. So far increases in totals are shown by 109 firms, the total increase alone amounting to $7,122.

Predictions regarding the Government unit indicate that sizable gifts will be reported today by Dr. Frank W. Ballou for the public schools; Harold Bradford, for the Securities and Exchange Commission; A. E. Giegengack and Alton P. Tisdel for the Government Printing office, and Charles L. Hodge, for the Railroad Retirement board. Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Parks Service, has promised Alvin W. Hall, chairman of the Governmental unit, that his service will soon be over the top of its quota.

Reports of progress among the various divisions of the six units, and evaluation of prospects for success on the home stretch will be the keynote of the last three noon meetings in the Willard Hotel, Herbert L. Willett, director of the Chest, states.

Palestine Held Possible Haven For 400,000

Roosevelt Aid Asked Rabbi Suggests 'Fine' $100,000,000 Sought

Palestine must be the spearhead of any large-scale colonization program for Jewish refugees, it was agreed yesterday by representatives of 65 Jewish communities in the seaboard States from Maryland to Florida who met in emergency conference at the Hamilton Hotel under auspices of the united Palestine appeal.

Henry Montor, national executive director of the latter organization, declared Palestine could absorb 400,000 more Jews, or almost double the present Jewish population there, within the next four years. A conference resolution urged President Roosevelt to impress upon Great Britain the need of increasing Jewish immigration into Palestine.

$100,000,000 Fund Urged

"Faced with Arab opposition, the British have been hesitant about future policies for Palestine, and international discussions at London of the German refugee problem have brought up other colonization sites. The talk now is centering again on Palestine, it was indicated today.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, national vice chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, called upon American Jewry to impose upon itself a "voluntary fine" of $100,000,000 to provide rehabilitation and reconstruction opportunities for refugees.

King Asks Joint Action

Referring to the recent action by the German government by which the Jews of Germany were fined $400,000,000, Rabbi Israel said that if German Jewry numbering 800,000 has been subjected to such financial punishment after five years of progressive economic restriction and impoverishment, American Jewry, numbering 4,500,000 and possessing freedom and opportunity which have been denied its German brothers, should be prepared "to impose upon itself during the year 1939 a voluntary fine of $100,000,000.

"That fine would be used—not to sate the inexhaustible bestiality of the Nazis—but to rescue their victims from the dungeons of terror

2 Miners Trapped 40 Hours, 50 Feet Deep, Rescued

Shenandoah, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—Two miners were rescued alive today from a shaft in which collapsing timbers had imprisoned them for 40 hours 50 feet below the surface.

William Bokuniewicz, 53, father of 11 children, who has been entombed on two other occasions, asserted he wanted to go home after the volunteer workers reached him declaring he felt "fine—but hungry." He was bundled up and taken to a hospital along with his companion, Joseph Cominsky, 18.

Fellow miners at first feared both were dead when flimsy timbers of their crude mine gave way at 3 p. m., Friday, but rescue efforts were redoubled yesterday when faint tappings were heard through the rock.

By Ralph W. Barnes
Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Nov. 20.—The German government is negotiating directly with certain Latin American countries, including the Dominican Republic, concerning projects under which those countries would open their doors to a substantial number of Jewish refugees, according to reports here tonight.

These projects were said to be linked to the German export drive and to involve trade arrangements which would be "mutually advantageous" to the Reich and to the Latin American nations participating in the negotiations.

With government offices and foreign diplomatic missions closed for the week-end, difficulty was encountered in obtaining full information. The names of other republics said to be concerned could not be had.

Willing to Accept Jews

One report said that under this plan the Dominican Republic, at least, had notified Berlin of its willingness to accept "all Jews who desire to come." It would be expected, it was said, that the Jewish emigrants would be permitted to carry with them a certain amount of working capital.

If these reports are correct, the negotiations were significant in that they marked the first occasion on which the Nazi regime has manifested willingness to play an active role in solving the problem for which it is responsible—that of finding suitable areas for the settlement of German Jews driven to despair by persecution within the Reich.

Berlin's sole motive, it is true, may be to secure foreign trade advantages. Despite the continual drive in southeastern Europe, Germany's export trade has suffered severely during the last year. The current anti-Semitic terror has provided new obstacles to the carrying to fruition of her foreign trade policy, especially in western Europe and North America.

Trade Circles Pessimistic

The hostility engendered by the pogrom here in the United States and Great Britain, among other countries, has caused pessimism in Nazi trade circles about the future of German commerce with these nations. Both because of its possible direct and indirect effect on German foreign trade, the conclusion last week of the Anglo-American trade agreement came as a severe blow to Berlin.

[Secret police were reported to have searched the homes of foreigners suspected of harboring German Jews since the mass action against Jewry began ten days ago,

Lawyers Plead Against Ban on Arms for Spain

Catholics Join Appeal Embargo Criticized Loyalist Envoy Speaks

Two prominent Catholic laymen yesterday joined an impressive panel of attorneys, educators and men of letters in demanding that President Roosevelt lift the embargo against Spain.

Prof. Francis M. Shea, dean of the University of Buffalo School and a director of Catholic University, declared here before a conference of the Lawyers Committee on American Relations with Spain that "the last months have demonstrated that the only hope of religious freedom and religious tolerance in the world lies in democracy."

"Over and over again," he contended, "Hitler has demonstrated that he cannot tolerate the existence of any faith, of any devotion, other than blind allegiance to himself and to a myth of Nordic supremacy.

"It seems to me inevitable that a Fascist Spain will swing into the orbit of the man who is calling the tune along the Fascist axis, and that man is Hitler."

Frank P. Walsh Joins

All accepted principles of international law, as well as America's interest in the preservation of democracy in Latin America, where the outcome of the Spanish war will have a profound influence, demand that "loyalist Spain should be permitted freely to purchase munitions and materials of war in this country," he concluded.

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York Power Authority and honorary president of the National Lawyers Guild, included in his remarks opening the afternoon round table at the Mayflower Hotel the following appeal:

"I ask my 20,000,000 freedom-loving fellow Catholics in this country to study the true causes of the Spanish Catholic and to form their own independent judgment, as I have."

He denied that the Spanish war is "a matter of faith or morals" in which the opinions of Catholics are restricted.

American Catholics, he said, should gain new insight into the subject, "because the devoted Catholics of South America see the threat of the heavy hand of Fascism which has already been laid not only upon the faithful people of Austria and Germany but upon the hierarchy." A Fascist victory in Spain eventually would lead to the same result there, he added.

Spanish Envoy Makes Plan

In another appeal for Catholic sympathy for the loyalist cause, Dr. Fernando de los Rios, Spanish Ambassador, quoted with approval the "splendid statement condemning Hitler for his furious persecution of the Jews issued by the Archbishop of Baltimore, the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, in the name of every creed and race."

That statement should be compared, Dr. de los Rios said, with a recent remark of the Bishop of Madrid-Alcala, expressing his opposition to any attempt at mediating the Spanish war because "it is impossible to tolerate democratic liberalism, which is the mask of tyrannical Marxist absolutism."

In the Spanish bishop's words, according to the Ambassador, "the voice of the Inquisition still echoes," excluding any hope for freedom of conscience. But in the United States "Catholicism was born and exists due to the concept of religious freedom which is the guiding force of your Nation and Constitution," he pointed out.

Spain Denied Rights

Describing loyalist Spain as "the only European nation struggling to defend values so dearly cherished by Americans, he said, "I cannot help expressing my moral pain and amazement at seeing that my country, and not its aggressors, is the only nation which is denied the right to buy the means with which to defend itself."

Dr. James L. Garner, professor of international law at the University of Illinois and editor of the American Journal of International Law, told the conference "there are substantial reasons of law, public policy, national interest and fair dealing why the embargo should never have been laid and should now be repealed."

"We must correct this injustice before it is too late," he declared, "before Spain has been brought under the blighting incubus of an arrogant, swashbuckling dictatorship."

President Off To Georgia for Party Council

To Plan for Congress May See Berlin Envoy Views TVA Dam Today

By the Associated Press.

Aboard the Roosevelt Train En Route to Chattanooga, Nov. 20.—President Roosevelt was bound tonight on a two weeks' trip to the South, on which he may reach decisions on important domestic and foreign affairs.

His ultimate destination is Warm Springs, Ga., where he will arrive tomorrow night for a couple of weeks of rest preparatory to the meeting of the new Congress.

To Inspect Battlefields

He intended to spend half of tomorrow in Chattanooga, Tenn., inspecting the Chickamauga TVA Dam across the Tennessee River and visiting the Civil War battlefields of Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain.

At Warm Springs, the President is expected to:

Confer with Senate and House Democratic leaders on the program for the Congress convening January 3.

Possibly meet with Hugh R. Wilson, Ambassador to Berlin, who has been summoned home for consultation and report on the situation in Germany, including the anti-Jewish campaign.

Announce several important appointments, chiefly Federal circuit and district judgeships, in which an increase was voted early this year to help clear up court dockets.

Discuss with national and Warm Springs Foundation officials, ways of combatting infantile paralysis.

May Set New Tack

Observers will be constantly on the lookout for some hint from his congressional parleys as to whether he intends to push forward with his legislative ideas or ease his pace in view of Republican gains in the recent elections.

Leaving Warm Springs for Washington the night of December 4, he will have breakfast with Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina at the executive mansion in Columbia the following morning and speak that night in the University of North Carolina's non-partisan forum at Chapel Hill.

Also in the Presidential party were Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, Col. Edwin M. Watson, military aide; Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aide; Capt. Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician; Miss Marguerite LeHand, personal secretary; Miss Malvina N. Thompson, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, and a clerical staff.

Industry League Urges Enforced Health Insurance

A Nation-wide system of compulsory health insurance is urged by Dr. John A. Kingsbury in a 40-page booklet, "Health Security for the Nation," published today by the League for Industrial Democracy.

Features of the plan include compulsory membership for families with annual incomes less than $5,000; benefits to include services of general practitioner and hospital care, specialized medical attention and cash benefits in time of illness; cost of $30 to $35 per person to be financed by tax funds, employers and insured individuals.

Dr. Kingsbury predicts that under the plan the general practitioner will earn a better income than ordinarily, "apart from what he may earn from his noninsurance practice."

PWA Finishes Job of Allotting $924,000,000

Turns to Urging Speed D. C. Total $18,150,000 12 States Lead Capital

Allotment of the $924,000,000 voted for the PWA in the current spending-lending recovery drive has been completed, Administrator Harold L. Ickes announced last night. Of the total, $200,000,000 was given for Federal projects.

"With allocations completed," Ickes said, "efforts will now be concentrated on getting all projects under construction by the January 1 deadline. No efforts will be spared to aid applicants in getting their jobs started, but the deadline will be rigidly enforced."

He said construction already has begun on 1,059 Federal projects and on 48 per cent of the 6,333 non-Federal projects.

The total cost of non-Federal works for which allotments were made was placed at $1,477,995,426.

A table of loans and grants by States showed that only 12 States ranked ahead of the District of Columbia in total amount of allotments received, the District total being $18,150,000.

However, the District's allotments represent the total cost of all projects here, including the Federal Government's contribution of 45 per cent of cost and loans for the entire 55 per cent balance, amounting to $9,982,850.

New Evidence On Warrings' Bribes Awaited

Rackets, Police Tense Trial in Second Week 'Squeal' Not Expected

New revelations of "protection" paid by the $2,000,000-a-year Washington numbers racket are awaited with equal tenseness by police and the underworld today when the Warring conspiracy trial begins its second week.

However, probability was that the Warrings would not "squeal" under cross-examination by District Attorney Pine and Assistant District Attorney Wilson. Neither was it thought likely that Government witnesses could add the vital names, dates and places of the bribery charges.

The prosecutors have several more days of testimony to add to that already given by Treasury agents that the three racketeer Warring brothers conspired with their income tax counselors to defraud the Government of the tax on huge profits from the gambling which their books show totaled $4,000,000 in two and a half years.

Underworld Is Watching

Revenue agents said Emmitt Warring, 33, "brains of the gang," admitted paying bribes of $400 to $2,000 a month.

Alert for some clew to show to whom the bribes were paid, detectives and attaches of the corporation counsel's office are following every word of the testimony. The Government's case so far has been forged out of the Warrings' own declarations, their sworn returns, their books and the statements of Gordon L. R. Sadur, their tax expert, and his partner, Henry L. Scherr.

Just as alert are numbers runners, writers, payoff men, who have been taking their places in Justice Laws' courtroom. Officials well acquainted in underworld circles have recognized many of the watchers, it was understood.

Sadur Will Testify

At least one more Treasury official of the several with whom Sadur and Emmitt Warring conferred more than a year trying to straighten out the income tax returns, is due to take the stand. There was a faint possibility that he would recall more details of the "protection" disclosures.

Internal Revenue Agents H. Watson Leese and William H. F. Swain already have fixed the admitted bribes at $400 a month in 1934, $1,000 a month in 1935 and $2,000 a month in 1936.

U. S. Cities Show 5% Drop In Tuberculosis Mortality

Capital's Death Rate Falls 11 Pct. Figures Cover Fourth of Nation's People Larger Population Centers Most Perilous

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—The annual barometer of tuberculosis, the death rates of 46 American cities, was announced today by the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association. It is the first national report on tuberculosis in cities during 1937.

It shows that compared with 1936 the deaths rose in 11 cities and fell in 35. The rises in death rates ranged from 0.7 per cent in San Antonio to 38 in Worcester, Mass. No decrease was quite as large as the maximum rise. But the average for all 46 cities was a 5 per cent drop in mortality.

This census lists deaths of all residents of a city, whether at home or 2,000 miles away. It does not credit any city with the tuberculosis deaths of its transients.

Washington Rate Falls

The population of the 46 cities in round numbers was 32,000,000, one fourth of the United States total. These cities had a rate of 63.7 deaths per 100,000 population compared with the 53.3 figure for the country as a whole.

There were 527 resident and 31 non-resident deaths in Washington while 66 residents died out of town. The 1937 death rate per 100,000 of population was 95, a drop of 11 per cent from 1936.

Baltimore showed a rise of 2 per cent from 1936, with 629 resident deaths, 49 non-resident deaths and 232 resident deaths out of town. Its death rate per 100,000 of population was 101.

Large Cities Worst

"The large cities," said Godias J. Drolet, statistician of the association, "are still hotbeds of tuberculosis. For instance, among the residents of up-State New York, outside the greater city, the tuberculosis death rate in 1937 was only 39.5, whereas in the same year in the borough of Manhattan, New York City, it was 116, or nearly three times as great."

The repost called attention to the report of the Federal interdepartmental committee to co-ordinate health and welfare activities that deaths from tuberculosis can be reduced 50 per cent. It also pointed out that the National Tuberculosis Association estimated recently that 40,000 additional beds were needed for tuberculosis sufferers.

Yale's Head Defends Right To Free Mind

Assails Radicals' Critics Holds Conformity Vain Sees 'Dry Rot' Result

Special Dispatch to The Post

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 20.—Dr. Charles Seymour, in his first report as president of Yale University, gave emphasis today to his belief the university must continue as an institution of intellectual freedom and must ignore critics who would have the views of the faculty standardized in accord with their own views.

Dealing with the issue in the section of his report discussing the Yale Law School, Dr. Seymour noted some critics term the school faculty's members "radical" and imply that "they, like Socrates, are corrupting the youth."

"Similar charges were raised against William Graham Sumner half a century ago," Dr. Seymour said. "If the criticism implies that the teaching courses are made vehicles of social and political propaganda or that the legal issues covered by the various courses in the curriculum are unfairly presented, there is no foundation for it.

"If the criticism is designed constructively and points toward the elimination of those members of the faculty whose views as private individuals are not as conservative as those of the critics, then it points ultimately to the death of the school by dry rot."

As an institution, Dr. Seymour said, the law school takes no sides in controversial matters. In their private lives, he said, the faculty members represent various shades of political opinion, ranging from the conservative to the progressive.

He added that, as individuals, both students and teachers must draw individual conclusions or have their intellectual processes become inert.

Dr. Seymour expressed belief the existing strength of the school depends almost as much upon the diversity of faculty opinion as it does upon intellectual quality.

Juvenile Cases In Courts Rose in 1937, U. S. Reports

First signs of an upward trend in juvenile delinquency since 1930 were reported yesterday by the children's bureau of the Labor Department as statistics from juvenile courts of the Nation revealed a definite increase in youthful offenders.

The 1937 reports from 28 courts in 17 States and the District of Columbia showed delinquency cases increased 11 per cent over 1936. The courts handled 31,038 cases, an increase of 3,000 over 1936.

No definite cause for the increase was cited by the children's bureau. It was pointed out that 85 per cent of the offenders were boys and that in one-half of the boys' cases the offense was some type of stealing. Acts of carelessness or mischief accounted for more than one-fourth of the boys' offenses, the bureau said.

Largest number of cases involving girls were for running away, being ungovernable and for sex offenses, it was reported. The three types accounted for 65 per cent of all girls' offenses.

Similar forums will be conducted by the guild this winter with Samuel H. Ordway, U. S. Civil Service Commissioner, Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the Treasury, other government officials and legal authorities scheduled to speak. The meetings will be limited to guild members and their guests.

October Decline In Relief Reported

The Social Security Board last night estimated that relief cases and expenditures throughout the Nation declined 1 per cent in October as compared with September.

The estimate was made on the basis of telegraphic reports from 36 States and the District of Columbia involving 109 urban areas. These showed that 54 areas had decreases in relief cases, two of which reported declines of more than 20 per cent.

The board said that 50 areas reported decreases in amount of obligations incurred for general relief from public funds, ranging from 1 to 50 per cent. The other 58 reported increases ranging from 1 to 85 per cent, it said.

Leahy Reports Delays in Navy Construction

Plane-Carrier Held Up Recent Work Speeded Alteration Funds Asked

By the Associated Press.

The Navy's top ranking officer reported yesterday that numerous construction delays, both in Government and commercial shipyards, had until lately hampered efforts to strengthen the fleet.

Delays ranging upward to 10 months for the 14,500-ton aircraft-carrier Wasp, which is under construction at Quincy, Mass., were described in the annual report of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations.

His report covered the twelve-month ended last June 30. Since then, Assistant Secretary Edison has said, an increased number of craft have been delivered on or before scheduled dates.

Six Cruisers Delayed

One heavy cruiser and five light cruisers were delayed, the admiral reported, by "late delivery of material, insufficient drafting force, and necessary changes while construction was in progress."

He attributed difficulties in completing the Wasp to "necessary changes in structural features" and "difficulty in obtaining certain material."

The inability of certain vessels to meet trial requirements contributed, he said, to the delay affecting a majority of three 1,850-ton destroyers and 31 craft of the same general type which had not joined the fleet last June 30.

Noting that for 14 years alterations had been limited because of a more immediate need for repairs, Leahy estimated that urgently needed changes for all types of vessels would cost about $37,600,000.

Battleship Repair Asked

He recommended modernization of the five newest battleships, the Colorado, Maryland, West Virginia, California and Tennessee, at a minimum cost of $22,000,000.

The older battleships New York, Texas and Arkansas, which comprise the training squadron in the Atlantic, all require extensive alterations and the installation of 5-inch antiaircraft batteries, he said.

To be ready for war service, the present reciprocating engines of the New York, Texas and Oklahoma should be replaced by turbines, Leahy reported.

The last Congress authorized modernization of the big aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga, and Leahy said funds for this work would be asked at the forthcoming session.

Mgr. Corrigan Speaks in Pulpit Of Cardinal Hayes

Fulfilling one of the last requests of the late Cardinal Hayes, the Right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, filled the pulpit of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York yesterday in a plea for funds for the university.

Coupling his appeal with an attack on government by "ruthless might" and "atheistic concepts of government," Mgr. Corrigan said that the church is "the only power which can demand and maintain the democratic formula."

"The Catholic University of America has been told by the Holy Father, himself, that it must be prepared to accept even more momentous responsibilities in the future," Mgr. Corrigan said in comment on a message from the Pope which called for the highest development of the School of Social Science.

made his cross of gold speech and won the Presidential nomination.

He was elected a delegate to the 1908 convention, and became Democratic National Committeeman after the 1912 convention in Baltimore, succeeding his brother, the late Walter J. Costello, who held the post for many years.

At this Baltimore convention, Costello and the other District delegates cast their ballots for Champ Clark from beginning to end. When Woodrow Wilson won the nomination, however, they returned to the District and worked hard to get out the absentee vote here. Wilson later named him Recorder of Deeds, a post he held well into the Harding Administration. It was the only public office Mr. Costello ever asked for himself.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, will be a honorary pallbearer at Costello's funeral.

In 1920, at the Democratic convention in San Francisco, it was Costello's local delegation that nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for Vice President. Eleven years later, Costello was among the first to begin booming Roosevelt for the Presidential nomination. Three delegate votes may seem few, but they loom large in a tight convention fight, and James A. Farley was gratified to get Costello's support early in 1931.

Went Unrewarded

After the 1932 convention and Roosevelt's nomination, the local Democratic organization made unprecedented efforts to get out the absentee vote here. All this was recalled later by Costello's friends when, for some reason, the President cut off the local leader without any patronage. One explanation suggested was that Costello many years before had a dispute with Louis Howe, and that Howe was determined to "get even." The White House never made any explanations.

Born in the Northwest section of the city—in the old Fourth Ward—John Francis Costello was the son of Jeremiah and Catherine Lawton Costello.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Agnes Killeen Costello; two daughters, Mrs. Franklin A. Hart, wife of a Marine Corps colonel, and Mrs. Rignald Grady; a son, John F. Costello, jr.; a brother, Jere A. Costello, a sister, Mrs. Mary Costello Bryan, and three grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from Gawler's funeral chapel, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at 9:15 a. m. Wednesday. The body will be taken to the Blessed Sacrament Church, in Chevy Chase, where a requiem mass will be sung at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Overtime Waiver Illegal, Wage-Hour Chief Announces

By the Associated Press.

Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the wage-hour law, said yesterday an employer could not legally escape provisions of the act by obtaining the consent of an employe to overtime work.

Saying he had been informed some employers contemplated getting a waiver of overtime payment from workers, Andrews asserted such procedure would constitute a violation of the labor standards act and subject the employer to penalties.

The Children's Bureau of the Labor Department issued a regulation, meanwhile, providing five steps of investigations and hearings before an industry can be declared hazardous or detrimental under the act for minors between 16 and 18 years old.

Labor Department experts estimate yesterday that approximately 35,000 workers in cotton mills had received wage increases as a result of the 25-cent-an-hour minimum wage requirement of the labor standards law.

Palestine Held Possible Haven For 400,000

Zion

into which they have been locked," he said.

Senator King (Democrat) of Utah, urged Great Britain and the United States to undertake joint action to promote mass settlement of Jewish refugees in Palestine. He described his visit to Palestine some years ago and declared that the courage and idealism of the Jewish settlers there had established "a fine progressive democratic state," capable of absorbing 1,000,000 Jews in the near future.

Referring to the recent outrages in Germany, Senator King remarked that it was incredible that Germany, which had made such rich contributions to modern civilization, should have fallen into the hands of a "cruel, wicked, and sadistic regime."

The resolution telegraphed to the White House by the conference said, in part:

"In view of the fact that Great migration quotas which have been established by various countries capable of absorbing the refugees are not ample to provide for all the men, women and children who must be helped to flee from Germany before they are completely destroyed.

"In view o fthe fact that Great Britain and the United States are now contemplating a program which would swiftly and completely solve the tragic problem of the Jews of Germany through a mass settlement program.

"In view of the fact that the British government has been moved by the outrages against innocent Jews to give consideration to a large-scale mass settlement program in the British Empire and by this action has demonstrated her readiness to co-operate in a concrete plan of Jewish reconstruction and resettlement;

"We hereby urge Great Britain, in consonance with her declaration of sympathy with the homeless thousands, to make Palestine the spearhead of this mass colonization effort for the very reason that while vast expenditures and years of preparation would be required to establish settlement opportunities in isolated and undeveloped lands of the empire, large numbers of Jews could be settled immediately at the lowest possible cost in Palestine, where the labor and self-sacrifice of Jewish pioneers through 20 years have created wide opportunities for colonization without parallel in any other part of the British Empire."

Warned Against "Mirages"

Jews in the United States were warned by the conference against "mirages" in discussion of possible havens of refuge for thousands of Jews now living in "no man's land" without food or shelter. In this connection it was pointed out that many of the remote colonies of the British Empire which have been most frequently mentioned in recent days as centers of prospective Jewish settlement, had been found either uninhabitable or would require enormous expenditures and many years of intensive effort preparatory to the migration of considerable numbers of refugees.

The conference pointed out that "while vast expenditures and years of preparation will be required to establish settlement opportunities in British Guiana, Nigeria, or Tanganyika, large numbers of Jews could be settled immediately at the lowest possible cost in Palestine.

The conference based this appeal to the British government on the record of achievement in mass colonization in Palestine in the last two decades and particularly on the fact that within the past five years more than 200,000 Jews have gone to Palestine from Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Rumania and other countries.

Cost Low in Palestine

To demonstrate how much more economical mass colonization is in Palestine than in other areas, even when supported by an agency like the Italian government, Montor said:

"What has been done in Palestine provides the foundation for economical settlement. For example, at the present time it is costing the Italian government 2,000 pounds ($10,000) for the settlement of a family in Tripoli. This is exclusive of the cost of transport and security.

"It costs the Jewish agency for Palestine 650 pounds to settle a Jewish family in a co-operative colony in Palestine. The difference is due to two factors: First, the longer experience of the Jewish agency in this type of colonization; and, secondly, that intangible factor of historical attachment to the land, of idealistic fervor which enables the Jewish pioneer in Palestine to overcome difficulties which would be insuperable elsewhere."

Wagner Urges Exodus Aid

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Nov. 20.—Senator Wagner, in his first public speech since re-election, urged tonight that all American citizens contribute toward the exodus of Jewish refugees from Germany, where "we see revealed the purpose of the Nazi leadership to undermine and destroy the ethical basis of all religious teachings, and substitute the pagan philosophy of brute force."

Poles and Magyars Threaten Invasion of Czechoslovakia

Ruthenian Rioting Continues, Reports Say Neighbors' Troops Ready for 'Police Action' War Would Be Blow to Italo-German Prestige

By the United Press.

Vienna, Nov. 20.—Polish and Hungarian armed forces tonight were reported ready to march into Czechoslovakia's eastern autonomous province of Ruthenia, supposedly to take "police action," following reports of an open revolt in the Carpathian mountains.

Fear that Hungary and Poland, defeated in efforts to obtain a common frontier by the amputation of Ruthenia, might seize upon the disorders as pretext for a military invasion was reflected by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter.

The newspaper, asserting the ruling of the recent Italo-German court of arbitration which surrendered large slices of Czech Ruthenia and Slovakia to Hungary was a final verdict, warned that any military moves "can become an attack on peace."

Open Conflict Feared

The possibility of open conflict over Czechoslovakia's eastern frontier, was regarded by foreign diplomats as acute and it was suggested Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy might act sternly if the situation becomes more threatening.

During negotiations over Hungary's territorial demands Mussolini supported demands for a common Polish-Hungarian frontier while Hitler, favoring the Czech position, opposed them. As a result, Hungary was given the southwest corner of Ruthenia. This area included most of the province's population centers.

Observers said any occupation of eastern Czechoslovakia by Poland or Hungary would be a blow to Italian prestige. For Germany it would involve not only a loss of prestige, but would jeopardize Nazi ambitions to the east toward the Black Sea, interfering with Hitler's program of economic domination over Slovakia, Ruthenia, Bohemia and Moravia.

Reports continued to reach Vienna of fighting between Czech and Hungarian frontier guards along the Ruthenian southern border, particularly in the region of Feketepatak, while further inland a growing "uprising" was reported.

In addition to the Czech-Hungarian clashes, there were published reports of clashes on the Slovak-Polish frontier between groups of terrorists from Poland and Slovak frontier guards.

The Nazi press described the fighting in southern Slovakia, along the new Hungarian border, as due to "Jewish propaganda" and said the autonomous government of Slovakia was taking stern measures, including "new laws to eliminate Jewish domination of Slovak business life."

The Czech government at Prague stoutly denied Hungarian reports of an uprising in Ruthenia (Carpatho-Ukraine), but admitted that at least six persons were killed in border clashes with Polish and Hungarian "terrorists."

The fighting was attributed officially to enemies of Czechoslovakia.

France Tightens Borders

Paris, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The French government, spurred to action by the Paris assassination of a German diplomat by a young Jewish alien, is preparing to set up concentration centers called "zones of surveillance" for all undesirable foreigners, it was understood tonight.

Officials pointed out that the zones, where undesirable aliens will be put to work when it is impossible to deport them, will not be concentration or labor camps in the German sense, but will be places where workers, at stipulated pay, will carry out tasks of "public utility or useful national defense."

As a companion measure, the government will increase its watch over the frontiers by creating a new corps of 1,500 gendarmes charged with preventing aliens from entering France without authorization.

Barcelona Blaze Toll Exaggerated, Loyalists Declare

Barcelona, Nov. 20 (AP).—An official note was issued by the national defense ministry tonight denying extensive loss of life and damage resulted from a munitions plant fire in a Barcelona suburb Friday. The note read:

"In view of fabulous information carried by some of the foreign press concerning a fire some days ago near Barcelona there is published in the interests of truth the fact that there was little material damage and the number of victims was four dead, three gravely injured, 16 slightly wounded."

(Travelers reaching the French border from Barcelona yesterday reported that from 200 to 300 persons lost their lives as a shell accidentally exploded. Smoke and chemical fumes were said to have swelled the fatality list.

Fire Alarm False But 8 Die in Rush

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Nov. 20 (AP).—A false fire alarm in a theater during the showing of a film resulted in the deaths of eight persons and serious injury to 32 others today.

The deaths and injuries were caused by trampling of those struggling to get out of the building.

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP).—King Carol of Rumania began consultations with French officials today in an effort to obtain closer trade relations between the two nations, while his friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu, waited in her private suite at a Paris hotel.

Private sources confirmed Mme. Lupescu arrived here four days ago, preceding by three days the arrival of Carol. She was said to be keeping closely to her suite at the Hotel Muerice, where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor also are residing temporarily.

Carol and his son, Crown Prince Mihai, were honored at a formal luncheon at Elysee Palace as the guests of President and Mme. Lebrun. Carol later held preliminary conversations with Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet.

Nazis Seeking Latin-America Outlet for Jews

Nazi

the Associated Press said.—Editor's note.]

Although a large part of the civilized world once again has been roused to anger by Nazi tactics, the German press continued today its bitter attacks on certain foreign countries, notably the United States and Great Britain. As previously, much of the editorial comment was in the manner of a campaign to camouflage by counter-attacks the worst phases of the anti-Semitic terror in progress in this country.

Hitler's Paper Hits U. S.

[Reichsfuehrer Hitler's own paper, Voelkischer Beobachter, published what it called a history of the ejection of the Mormons from Illinois and Missouri, describing it as an "American parallel to the Jewish problem in Germany," the Associated Press reported.

[Marshal Goering's National Zeitung of Essen, mentioning "hysterical reaction" in foreign countries, said "nothing will be changed in the German measures" against Jews.

[The newspaper Boersen Zeitung called President Roosevelt a "prototype" of the anti-German wave arising from the campaign against Jews, charging the attitude was motivated by "absolute selfishness."—Editor's note.]

In a violent editorial the Montagspost accused the United States of being in the first rank in its "hysterical howling" about the racial situation in Germany, saying:

"It must be recalled that for hundreds of years the United States has provided an example of strange inhumanity and brutality. When Americans speak of the measures we are taking, we are in a position to reply, for example, by pointing to the systematic campaign of violation which the Yankees conducted against the Indian tribes with the motto, 'The only good Indian is a dead Indian.'

Lynchings Cited

"Indignation in the United States over racial persecution? What about the atrocities that screamed to heaven—the American white man's measures of self-defense against mixing with his Negro fellow citizens?

"In that country man hunts are arranged by Judge Lynch. These fellow citizens—Negroes—are tortured to death, forced to stand on piles of shattered glass and made to sink to their death by stages in swamps. From time to time regular invitations are issued to these affairs. There are even special trains and convenient bus services for sensation-loving sightseers."

Soviet Hits 'Cannibalism'

Moscow, Nov. 20 (AP).—Soviet Russia's press assailed German Nazis today as "contemporary cannibals" for their anti-Jewish campaign.

At the same time the newspapers asked why Britain and France, having made peace with Reichsfuehrer Hitler once at Mpnich, now were remaining "silent."

"Why," asked the Comsomol Pravda, "are the 'saviors of humanity' silent? Why are these 'custodians of the high culture of Europe' silent?

"They are silent because the bloody tumult in Germany is on their conscience—their own hands are dipped in the blood of Jewish women, children and old men. They are silent because their human feelings are benumbed by mortal fear of their own people.

"They prefer Hitler, with all his medieval barbarism, with all his bloody deeds—they prefer Fascism."

Cardinal Calls Nazis Mad

Boston, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, in his second attack upon Nazi Germany within two days, today charged that nation represents "intellectualism gone mad."

His interpretation of the recent events in Germany was given before the Federation of College Catholic Clubs at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

Social Ills Blamed

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP).—Charles E. Coughlin today, in a radio address, attributed the persecutions of Jews in Germany to what he said was the Nazi government's belief that they "were responsible for the economic and social ills suffered by the fatherland" since the World War.

Embargo Asked

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP).—After hearing Gov. Frank Murphy voice the opinion that the persecution of Jews in Germany was not "the will of the people," a mass meeting of 5,000 persons today adopted a resolution calling for the United States to place an embargo on all trade with the Nazi government.

Roosevelt Criticized

Rome, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Italy's leading anti-Jewish writer, Giovanni Preziosi, asserted today in his magazine Vita Italiana that all of President Roosevelt's principal collaborators are Jews and that of 75 departmental directors in Washington 52 are Jewish. He warned Italians to "look out for Roosevelt" because "his Administration's policy is pro-Jewish and against the totalitarian nations of Italy, Germany and Japan."

Nazis Accuse Archduke Otto Of Graft Plot

Hapsburg Exile Named $2,000,000 Involved At Least 10 Jailed

Vienna, Nov. 20.—Police announced today discovery of "large-scale embezzlements" through which they charged Archduke Otto of Hapsburg received 20,000 schillings ($4,000) monthly from the government of former Chancellor Schuschnigg.

The police asserted the cash was sent to Archduke Otto, pretender to the nonexistent throne of Austria now living in exile in Belgium, through the Netherlands Bank which, in turn, deposited it in a Brussels bank.

They charged that other prominent persons who received money included Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi, president of the Pan-European Union; Benjamin Schier, who administered the funds; Edward Ludwig, former chief of the press department, and Wilhelm Klasteraky, secretary to former President Miklas.

Count Coudenhove-Kalergi is not in Germany, but most of the others named in the charges have been under arrest since the Nazis assumed power in Austria last March.

Police said ten persons involved had been arrested. These presumably were additional to men who have been under detention since last March.

A court report said that those charged, so far as possible, would be placed on trial.

Police said secret funds amounted to between 7,000,000 and 10,000,000 schillings ($1,400,000-$2,000,000), which were divided into three parts.

These were the Dollfuss and Central Gift Funds collected from the wealthy to foster the interests of the regime of Schuschnigg and his predecessor as chancellor, the assassinated Engelbert Dollfuss, and a secret press fund voted by Parliament.

The police report charged "Schier collected much for the Central Gift Fund under the threat that the persons asked would be put on a blacklist if they refused to contribute."

cultural penetration of nations, and held that "the job of the United States is to show the American countries a working democracy here and lend a hand to help them raise their living standards so that fascism will have no appeal."

"Attempted overlordship by the United States," the statement declared, "will make for worse, not better, relations between the two American continents." It concluded:

"The President will do the whole cause of inter-American co-opertion a service by withholding further attempts to scare people into moves which have not been thought through and on which our supposed partners have not been consulted. He will also do a favor to the taxpayers of this country by not pyramiding futher tax burdens of billions upon them."

On the other hand, Berle, who will attend the Lima sessions, pointed out that "oceans no longer insulate the New World," that "airships, either of peace or war" soon will be able to cross from the Old World to the New, and that there now are "vital" reasons why cooperation between all American countries must be continued.

The peace in America is not "the peace of empire," he said, but the "peace of co-operation."

"This hemisphere indulges the hope," he asserted, "that all countries may, in God's good time, find it possible likewise to discover that there is more safety in understanding than in arms," but until that time comes and disarmament is possible, "we naturally must hold our own strength."

He said that on this subject "all of the western nations appear to be united. There is no difference of opinion from Canada to Cape Horn."

The Inter-American Conference of 1936 at Buenos Aires, it was recalled, agreed that the American republics, in event the peace of this continent was menaced, should "consult with each other for the purpose of finding and adopting methods of peaceful co-operation."

"Events," Berle continued, "have moved with tragic speed since that time. It is well, then, that we continue the steady development of the institutions by which the inter-American standard of international realtions shall be continued" at the Lima meeting.

The assistant secretary of state repeated pledges by the United States that it will not intervene in the internal affairs of its neighbors.

Latvian Envoy Foresees Free Baltic Union Patterned After United State's Example

At a reception for the minister of Latvia yesterday at 1708 New Hampshire avenue northwest, members of that Baltic republic celebrated their twentieth year of independence. Left to right are Mrs. Alma A. Padgett, hostess; Mrs. Rudolf Smits, wife of the secretary of the Latvian Legation; Alfred Bilmanis, Minister of Latvia, and Mrs. Bilmanis

A union of Baltic states modeled after the United States of America and removed from "entanglements in Central Europe" was foreseen yesterday by Alfred Bilmanis, Latvian Minister, as members of the Baltic-American Society observed the twentieth anniversary of Latvia's independence—without fireworks.

Bilmanis, speaking at a reception given in his honor by the society at the International Students' House, 1708 New Hampshire avenue northwest, said that despite "very distressing reports" received from Europe in recent weeks "we are approaching the point of peaceable solution of world problems."

The Baltic states are following the "fine example of peace, co-operation and good neighborliness the United States has set in the Americas," he said, adding that Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia and Poland are developing a co-operative movement that will eventually band them together.

"It is my hope to see this co-operation create some day a union of Baltic states such as you have here in America," Bilmanis said. "I am certain this will come. It will take time and we are going slowly. But this country was built up in the same way."

Bilmanis praised trade policies of Secretary of State Hull and said the reciprocal trade pacts signed Thursday by the United States, England and Canada will result in "strengthening of a liberal world trade so needed at this time."

As persons of all nationalities—from the Baltic states, Siam, China, and other countries—listened, Bilmanis outlined the progress of Latvia from the date of its independence, November 18, 1918, to the present.

"Just as Washington and those early American farmers had to struggle, we have had to struggle to keep our indepedence," he said.

Presenting the society with the flag of Latvia, Bilmanis said "this represents our willingness to give the blood of our hearts for our liberty."

A concert, at which Alexander Wesley-Vasiliauskas, of New York City, sang, climaxed the Independence Day observance. The Baltic-American Society, composed of residents and former residents of the Baltic states, is headed by Dr. Ellis Haworth, of Washington.

as the "little Queen" because her head did not quite reach the shoulder of King Haakon, tallest monarch in Europe, and because she weighed only about 115 pounds.

Her nickname of "Harry" was given to her by her father, King Edward VII, who found great amusement in her vivacious and amusing actions. Fond of outdoor life, she also was talented and accomplished in four languages.

Her marriage to Haakon, then Prince Charles, her cousin, on July 22, 1896, culminated a love match that was frowned upon by both families. Queen Alexandria opposed it because of the close relationship, while Princess Louise of Denmark saw a shattering of her plans to marry Prince Charles to Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.

Prince Charles was a lieutenant in the Danish navy at the time of his marriage and it appeared he would never sit upon the throne, because he was the second son of the crown prince. He was called to the throne, however, when Norway shook off domination of Sweden in 1905.

Death Shocks Norway

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—News of the death of Queen Maud, announced from the pulpits of churches, spread like wildfire today among her 2,815,000 subjects, who 33 years ago this month "elected" her and King Haakon as their rulers.

There was deep grief among the Norwegians who profoundly admired their British-born Queen, and thousands were shocked by news of her death because they had been led to believe she was recovering.

reply had not stated openly the empire's intention to renounce the Nine-Power Treaty.

"The reply to the American note was an excellent chance for Japan to clarify her attitude toward the treaty," Yomiuri said.

"The government's reply was too conservative. The treaty is a dead letter and its continuance is harmful. The government at the earliest occasion should make a clear-cut expression in this direction."

Yangtze Tributary Closed

Shanghai, Nov. 20 (AP).—Japan broadened her forcefully established monopoly of interior waterways of China.

Japanese military authorities in Hankow notified United States and other consular officials the Han River great Yangtze tributary traversing Hupeh province, now was closed to navigation except upon "special permission" of the Japanese army.

This action augments Japan's armed possession of the Yangtze, China's principal navigable river, which she has closed to commercial navigation by other countries.

(The United States, Great Britain and France on November 7, made representations to the Tokyo foreign office protesting against closing of the Yangtze. Japan a week later rejected the protests, pointing out continuance of military operation and presence of Chinese guerrillas and mines.)

Foreign Shipping Throttled

Tsingtao, China, Nov. 20 (AP).—Most foreign shipping is avoiding the Japanese-occupied ports of Tsingtao, Chefoo and Weihaiwei because of restrictions in force, resulting in a virtual monopoly for Japanese shipping in Shangtung province.

Foreign business men assert that increased regulations on top of exchange and other restrictions, against which the United States protested to Tokyo October 6, slowly were throttling foreign business in the province.

Canada's Premier Hails Trade Pact

Ottawa, Ontario, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—The friendliness surrounding Anglo-American relations "should be a source of general rejoicing," Prime Minister MacKenzie King said today upon his return from Washington where he signed a trade treaty with the United States.

Operation of the system is completely automatic, including domestic hot water supply. And you'll like its truly low operating cost. The Arco Thermo System comes complete with all controls and Arco Copper Pipe and Fittings. It is easily installed in any home, whether new or old—and on easy FHA terms too—no down payment—just a few dollars a month—up to three years to pay. Too Long Vacant

Policies of great importance to the District of Columbia are in the making. The appeal of the District Suffrage Association for establishment of a municipal assembly for Washington serves as a reminder that the whole question of this city's local government is still at issue. Added to that are numerous day to day problems requiring the constant attention of alert and conscientious executives.

A few weeks ago it was announced that the District Commissioners are considering 30 legislative measures. To prepare this program for Congress in addition to supervising the administrative activities of the local government is an onerous task for two Commissioners. During the last few days, moreover, further difficulties have arisen for Chairman Hazen and Col. McCoach. The Warring trial has raised a grave question of corruption in the Police Department that must be investigated, and the "mad sniper" of Rock Creek Park has become a formidable challenge to the city's law enforcement machinery.

This is an extremely inappropriate time to leave vacant the post from which Commissioner Allen resigned nearly three months ago. It is well known that the President's attention is absorbed by national and international problems. But this local position is certainly of sufficient importance to command action in the near future.

Of course, no District citizen favors a casual or hasty appointment. Delay would be preferable to the selection of some political hack for this exacting administrative job. But that only emphasizes the desirability of thoughtful attention to the handicap under which the local Board of Commissioners is working.

Gloomy Outlook

One member of the President's official family, Secretary Wallace, is not entirely satisfied by the progress of the trade agreements program. Last week he told the students of Duke University that the program "does not obtain tangible results in the way of duty reductions" so far as cotton is concerned, because cotton is on the free list in nearly all countries.

His skepticism regarding the prospect of expanding our foreign trade in general through reciprocal pacts is also indicated by his assertion that the Munich agreement "means an increased fear of war over the entire world rather than a lessened fear." The larger sphere of German influence, he said, means "a much greater use of bilateral trading with bartering devices of one sort and another."

While it is rather confusing to have the head of one great executive department openly decrying the achievements of another, there is good reason for Secretary Wallace to feel alarmed about the outlook for cotton. That the AAA policy of curtailment and subsidization designed to raise domestic price levels has added greatly to the difficulties of finding export outlets for our cotton is obvious. But the forces set in motion or accelerated by an economically unwise policy are factors that henceforth have to be reckoned with, regardless of whether or not AAA controls are abandoned.

Synthetic fibers are, as Mr. Wallace points out, making heavy inroads into the market for cotton. Germany and Italy have cut their cotton consumption from all sources from an average of about 2,400,000 bales yearly prior to 1930 to 1,700,000 bales. The deficit is said to have been more than offset by synthetic fibers. Debates as to the comparative cheapness of these substitutes are, in Mr. Wallace's opinion, "academic when applied to a totalitarian state with a surplus population."

Experiments now under way in this country to produce fibers exclusively from mineral products are not regarded as an immediate threat to cotton, but Mr. Wallace looks with misgiving toward the future. His warning that Southern farmers should be informed of these new developments and made aware of their significance is certainly timely. Even if the bilateral system of trade favored by the totalitarian states eventually collapses from economic or political causes, or a combination of both, the demand for cotton will undoubtedly be adversely affected by the direct and indirect competition of laboratory products.

Moreover, new methods are constantly being devised to increase the acreage output of cotton—a development which further intensifies the gloom of the Secretary of Agriculture. Greater diversification of crops, shifts of young people in the South from farms to industries, and research to discover new uses for farm products sum up Mr. Wallace's remedial program. To Government relief and control agencies he assigns a role of subordinate importance. Perhaps if he had been more impressed with the fundamental factors controlling demand for cotton when the AAA was first launched, he would have less reason now to make an appeal for facing unpleasant facts "with the utmost courage and determination."

District Taxes

No other individual in or outside of the public service is so well qualified to discuss Washington's finances as Maj. Donovan, auditor and budget officer of the local government. His current tax program will undoubtedly carry great weight with both the local advisory committee and the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation which is studying the District's revenue system. It is important, therefore, to obtain a wide expression of public opinion on his proposals at the hearings to be conducted November 28 and 29.

With effective brevity, Maj. Donovan marked two inequitable levies for repeal. The intangible personal property tax, he said, "has fallen into general disrepute." The business privilege tax is a "stop-gap measure" which "gives no recognition to ability to pay." No extensive arguments are needed to prove either point. The people of Washington are thoroughly familiar with the defects of both measures and will gladly indorse a death warrant for both.

Nor will there be any serious questioning of Maj. Donovan's emphasis on the need for more local revenue. On numerous occasions he has pointed to the lag in the city's public improvements. Outlays for schools, libraries, playgrounds, public welfare institutions and similar construction needs have shrunk to a relatively small figure. Unless Washington is to forsake all pretense of rendering adequate municipal service, more generous allowances for such improvements will have to be made during the next few years.

Maj. Donovan estimates that no less than $6,000,000 per year will be needed for projects of this sort. Moreover, the city's operating expenses are growing at the rate of about $1,000,000 per year. He calculates the additional local revenue that will be needed during the 1941-47 period at $15,000,000. That will mean a substantial tax load. It re-emphasizes the desirability of working out an equitable revenue system for the District.

No less obvious, however, is the necessity for a revision of the fiscal relations between the local and national governments. In recent years the so-called Federal lump-sum has been severely slashed whether the District budget has been expanded or contracted. That fact is largely responsible for Washington's fiscal difficulties. An improved tax system will be of little avail unless Congress also recognizes its definite obligation to the Nation's Capital and establishes a routine means of meeting it.

As to the taxes proposed by Maj. Donovan, opinion will probably be divided. The corporation net income tax would be a reasonable substitute for the present business privilege tax because of its adjustment to ability to pay. Further explanation of the proposed "non-salary, non-wage personal net income—retail sales tax" is needed. As a substitute for a graduated personal net income tax, however, the proposal is disappointing.

After recognizing the superiority of the income tax under ordinary circumstances, Maj. Donovan shied away from it because the constitutionality of extending such a local levy to Federal salaries is uncertain, and because income tax bills have failed in the past. He believes, moreover, that a sales tax is the most certain way of reaching Government employes, tourists and outside firms doing business here, and that coupled with a levy on personal income from investments and nonincorporated business, it will preserve the principle of ability to pay.

The obstacles in the path of a local income tax are many. Yet the public in appraising this report, and the joint committee in making its final decision, ought to remember that the task at hand is to devise a permanent revenue system. Sales taxes bearing upon rich and poor with the same relative weight ought to have no place in that program. And they probably will not have if, at the forthcoming hearings, citizens place proper emphasis on the principle of ability to pay.

Freedom On The Seas

That English-born American who returned to the land of his adoption, sailing a 30-foot boat solo from Southampton to Savannah in 90 days, had plenty of time for earnest thought. So one may reasonably estimate his declaration that "Europe is no place to be these days" as being one grain of truth out of a bagful. And mixed with the truth there should be some thankfulness.

He may thank heaven for liberty. True liberty consists, among other things, in freedom to move from here to there and back again when and how one pleases. This a man will never wholly possess while the world knows frontiers, passports and customs officers. But once aboard the lugger the girl is yours. Here in the real wide open spaces there is freedom, with a wet sheet and a flowing sea and a wind that whistles "Westward Ho!"

He could thank heaven for pleasant employment, even though there was no salary attached; and be equally thankful for pleasant unemployment, when the elements permitted. He was making no history and breaking no records. And that he was producing nothing did not set him apart in a commercial world where there are millions like him. "Jobs," as he said, "are not plentiful for men of 54."

And now he is "back in God's country" where all current industrial and social problems may be solved, if not now why not eventually? Perhaps Frank Edward Clark, navigator, knows the answer. One has a chance to do a lot of thinking in ninety solitary days.

The President's Tribute

President Roosevelt has set aside many precedents in the years since he entered the White House. But he has never departed from custom more gracefully or to better purpose than last Saturday night. The guest of honor at the thirtieth anniversary dinner of the National Press Club, he relinquished his privilege of speaking "off the record," to render a public tribute to the memory of several newspaper correspondents now dead.

Perhaps it was the sudden and deeply lamented death last week of Rodney Dutcher, mourned by a wide circle of friends in Washington and throughout the Nation, that opened the floodgates of Presidential reminiscence. But whatever the circumstance that impelled Mr. Roosevelt to speak as he did, it was a timely and appropriate tribute he paid to departed friends of the newspaper profession and to American newspapermen generally.

In many parts of the world the relationship between the government and the press has become that of master and servant. In those countries newspapermen are the mouthpieces of dictators, the lackeys of totalitarian regimes. That, happily, is not the case here. In the United States the torch of freedom is being kept aloft and to no small extent because of the efforts of a free and functioning press.

It is also encouraging that this state of affairs is appreciated even by Government officials who sometimes are irritated by criticism from the press. No President of recent times has, in certain particulars, been more critical of the press than Mr. Roosevelt. But on Saturday he expressed the belief that there is no finer, more sincere or more sensitive group in the world than the newspapermen of the United States.

The tribute, we hope, is well deserved. In making it President Roosevelt revealed his broad-mindedness and his deep democratic instinct. The fact that such felicities are freely exchanged between the President and men of the press, despite all differences over policy, is for the American people a cause for much satisfaction.

Touchez!

As many of our readers are well aware, chapter three, paragraph two, of the Journalist's Guide and Handy Compendium, reads as follows: "Before donning the robe of editorial omniscience, it is advisable that this garment be meticulously inspected for rents, rips, moth holes, worn places and other unseemly apertures through which a fallacious humanity may be discerned beneath the dazzling vesture. As soon as discovered, all such apertures must be darned, patched, sewn, blotted with ink, or otherwise mended."

Perhaps there are newspapers on which this rule may sometimes be ignored, but this is not one of them. For one reason, Post readers are too alert to permit escape.

The case in point is an editorial on November 11, concerning the award of the Nobel prize in literature to Pearl Buck. We were unfortunate enough to say that it had been given to only one other woman, Fru Sigrid Undset. "Indeed?" writes a subscriber, "What about Selma Lagerlof? And I seem to remember that an Italian woman also received the award."

That's hitting into a fast double play for you! The keen memory of our correspondent is correct. The prize was given to Selma Lagerlof in 1909 and just 17 years later to Signora Grazia Deledda. The only excuse offered by the culpable writer is that at the moment when the Swedish Academy happened to honor Mme. Lagerlof he was wholly engrossed in a crucial and dramatic game of marbles. He has not yet thought how to explain the omission of Signora Deledda, but if and when he does, we shall pass it along.

Many a person who is too polite to put a knife in his mouth will not hesitate to stick one in your back.

Decline And Fall?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I listen three times each week to the radio talks of Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times. His talk is always preceded by the tolling of Big Ben, the clock in the tower of the British Parliament.

As I listen there passes in review before me the glories of England's past, and the long line of her illustrious statesmen, diplomats, soldiers, and sailors, who made her great and a world empire; and then comes a comparison with her rulers of the present, and their attitude and activities in world affairs, which are characterized, as it appears to me, by timidity, lack of vision and statesmanship, as evidenced by the Munich fiasco and surrender, by Chamberlain's ignominious pursuit of "appeasement" with Germany, the reversal of her attitude regarding Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, and her apparent indifference to and want of courage in dealing with the Far Eastern situation that is threatening her empire in that part of the world.

She seems to have grown weary in carrying the burdens of the world, and with that weariness has come timidity and pacifism, which are always the sure signs of decay and disintegration. Furthermore, in addition to wise statesmanship, England's strength and influence in the past were due largely to her naval supremacy and control of the sea. This she has now lost forever with the introduction of the airplane and the submarine. As I listen to the deep and solemn tones of Big Ben, intoning the passing hours, it seems as if I were listening to the death knell of the British Empire, which I fear is inevitable in time, and I am deeply saddened, because with the passing of the British Empire one of the greatest influences for good in the world and of mankind in general will have passed away, and the world will be the poorer and the loser.

More About The Jefferson Memorial

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Federation of Women's Clubs, with a membership of about 2,000,000 throughout the Nation, the Daughters of the American Revolution, all the citizens' associations and all the commercial associations of Washington, many other bodies and virtually all the citizenry made earnest protest against the surrender of the Tidal Basin to cement and to some New York politicians.

President Roosevelt has stigmatized this grave protest as "flimflam." I submit that this is extraordinary and most improper language for the President of the United States to apply to citizens trying to protect their city against a vandalism that has already so seriously marred it. And I submit that the incident discloses such a growth of dictator psychology as may well cause a general uneasiness.

President Roosevelt announces that 1,000 trees are to be planted in the place of those that this ill-omened project will root up. As this is the first time anyone has heard of the 1,000-tree planting, we are left with but one of two conclusions. Either the President has been in intimate touch with the mysterious, persistent and strangely powerful interests that have forced this vast absurdity upon us, or he has gifts of clairvoyance and divination.

If he has come upon the power that slipped the design through Congress he should reveal to the rest of us what has been a baffling mystery. Diligent and patient inquiry through two years has failed to discover any considerable number of persons that had the least toleration for the destruction of the Basin, but many that wondered as to the size of the profits the cement trust will reap therefrom.

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.
Washington, Nov. 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can't seem to get excited over the passing of a few cherry trees that belie their name by nonproduction of the fruit we often hanker for in pies and distillation. But why an ornate structure as useless as costly, more than half submerged in a mudhole, as memorial to our great outstanding apostle of simplicity and utilitarianism, whose name remains a rallying cry for all believers in real democracy, and many pretended believers as well?

WALTER N. CAMPBELL.
Washington, Nov. 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although I have loafed a good deal around the Tidal Basin and done some fishing there in my time, I do not have the cherry trees chiefly in mind in relation to the intrusion of the Jefferson Memorial there. The thing to be deprecated is the indication of a growing tendency to fill the parks with various kinds of marble and mortar memorials.

When it was planned to build the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park I was disappointed, and memorials placed there since have met my disapproval, whatever that may have amounted to. My wish has always been that the natural charm of all our parks might be kept free from architectural artificiality.

It is astonishing that "artistic experts" should hide memorials of the Jefferson type on a river bottom. Their proper place is a hilltop as the architects of Greece and Rome seem to have realized.

It was determined to place the Washington Monument where it is because of the splendid show it would make in the view of the steamboats approaching the Federal City. Had its builders been aware of later railroad transportation they probably would have been aware of the desirability of placing it on a height. At least it is hard to see why classic but squatty memorials should be located on the flats because the towering George Washington Memorial is located there.

My opinion is that city parks entirely free from architectural embellishment are exactly what the average fellow would like, if it were his choice.

TIPTON TALBOTT.
Washington, Nov. 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Jefferson Memorial is not to be built solely with the funds of Washingtonians, or as a business venture, but with funds from the whole United States.

People come from all parts of the United States to see their Capital. If it is blossoms they wish to see, many can see them as beautiful, or more so, in their native States. The apple blossoms of Virginia are beautiful, the orange blossoms of California and Florida equally so. But Americans travel miles to see their Capital and to look upon its buildings and memorials. The Capital belongs to the whole United States.

If the Congress of the United States has decided that the monument should be on the Tidal Basin site, I see no reason why it should not go there.

Pedestrian Perils

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Prof. Thomas McMorrow gives a very interesting exposition, from his legal experience, and from the personal pedestrian angle, for wanting pedestrian control imposed upon the recalcitrant.

En masse crossing undoubtedly contributes to greater safety, as he says. When one of them (unavoidably) gets you, you can carry yourself in a sling with greater grace and that exalted feeling of having complied with the law. Then there's your feeling of social security—especially when you bring suit against some mug whose worldly goods may consist of an equity in the trap he is driving (while drunk or sober) obtained with borrowed money and lapsed insurance.

This still doesn't solve the problem of the many oldsters, who probably should be removed anyway, who on their faltering way to a daily sunning, have to brave the traffic horrors; left-turners and corner-spinners whose normal mode of progress is an advanced form of running amuck.

New York Preferred

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Everyone to his own taste," said the old lady. Harlan Miller is entitled to his preference of Washington over U. S. A.'s No. 1 city, little old New York. The writer, however, finds Mr. Miller's merely ridiculous and a trifle childish. Imagine finding such twaddle and rot about Washington in a New York paper! It must require a sentiment of profound envy and jealousy to produce such an inane statement as the following:

"It's no wonder that many of the more restless, intelligent socialites in New York give their shirts for an excuse to edge into the more sophisticated, gay worldly life of the Capital."

More sophisticated, gay and worldly, indeed! And in what respect, pray? Where is there an opera in D. C. to compare with New York's Metropolitan? Where is there a club that can come up to the high blue-blooded standards of New York's Knickerbocker, Union, or Racquet clubs? Where can one find in D. C. one-tenth the number of first-class restaurants, legitimate theaters, department stores, etc?

Taxes And Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of November 14, Mr. Henry Ware Allen presents a letter commending former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, jr., for having initiated a movement for repeal of the income tax amendment. He charges that the levies thereunder are extreme class legislation and therefore undemocratic.

A democrat is supposedly one who believes in an equal sharing in the benefits and responsibilities of government. As concerns equal sharing of responsibilities, there is no clearer proof of the rarity of that brand of democrat among us than the sort of legislation given us under the amendment. The surest and speediest means of putting it out of commission would be a levy at one fixed rate on all incomes from the highest to the lowest, letting no one escape. That would be quite on the democratic order, but it is suggesting the impossible in this land of the birth of modern democracy.

The $400,000,000 assessment against the Jews in Germany is just a more strikingly sadistic example, on racial lines, of what we are doing as a regular thing to our more conspicuously successful promoters of business and industrial enterprise.

The Post Impressionist

City Of Rockland

THE CITY OF ROCKLAND was a coastwise steamer that once sailed the bounding Atlantic, carrying passengers from Boston to Bar Harbor and back, or very likely the other way about. When we boarded her in Boston that far-away summer evening, I thought she looked beautiful and bravely decked, with her white paint, her one stack smoking, and her flag fluttering in the breeze. Little did we know as she sailed out of the harbor that in some heavenly log her doom was sealed, her days were numbered, and the moment when she would draw her last briny breath already recorded. From out of an old photograph album (circa 1924) the City of Rockland looks back at me, just as she was a few minutes after she shoved off from the dock. In that picture my older sister, Nan, and I, on the way to camp near Bar Harbor, Me., are two infinitesimal specks on the upper deck waving good-by to Dad as he stands on the dock snapping the picture.

With us when we boarded the City of Rockland for the return trip some two weeks later were Mildred, one of my camp companions, and Nan's ardent suitor, who had followed her to the camp without permission. The boat was packed with a Labor Day crowd of homing vacationers, husbands and wives, youths and children, little toddlers, and many tender infants. It was in the early evening and the misty fog that was rising around us seemed to me rather pretty.

Mildred and I were untroubled young spirits. We ran around the decks, we leaned upon the rails and peered into the swelling fog. We turned to each other with a kind of tickled solemnity, and said, "Thick as pea soup, isn't it?" That was something people said about fogs. "Yeah, thick as pea soup." We didn't run up and down the stairs between decks, but rather, as my seagoing brother had taught me to say, "scrambled up" and "fell down" the "hatches." We went laughing and chattering gaily about the boat—and all the while the fog kept pressing in upon us with the falling of night.

Nan was somewhere forward on the upper deck, still scolding her young man, no doubt and Mildred and I finally settled on the main deck, toward the stern, to eat sandwiches, and now and then we'd stop to lean over the rail with hands up before our faces, saying gravely, "Can't see a hand before your face, can you?" But we weren't afraid. We rested serene upon the wave, and felt that the power to save was not so much with God as with the very handsome radio operator we had seen in our prowlings about the ship. We had peeped into his small cabin, looked with awe at the equipment that joined him to the infinite. I had said wisely, noting his headphones, that they were "to bring him SOS calls from other ships, in case they got in trouble." Nothing, of course, could happen to us.

And then to my stunning astonishment that such things were not alone in books and newspapers, but could also happen to me—and later, to my everlasting joy in recounting the adventure—the crash came! The noise might have been some fabulous giant breaking our little top craft to fragments with his bare and mighty paws. It might have been bolts of Jove's thunder hurled at us in his wrath. But it was none of these. It was the impact of the City of Rockland with a jagged reef of rock that we should have cleared, and—didn't. Struck amidship, they said.

Chaos came to life. Women screamed and fainted, babies shrieked, people were hurled to the dining room floor, and others streamed wildeyed from their staterooms. The crew came to life. Orders were bawled, people were herded to the right side of the boat, women were revived and babies in some measure comforted. And all the while I clung to the rail, filled with the enormous wonder of it, hearing as in a dream the shouts, the cries, the caterwauling. Nan came tearing through the boat looking for me and Mildred, with her young man at her heels.

Then, miraculously, out of the soupy night came the Coast Guard—stalwart and beautiful as gods—with extra lifeboats to take us off the groaning ship (how busy that good-looking radio man must have been)—and bringing the thrice welcome news that we were not very far from a small island on which was an abandoned camp. We were helped into the little boats—"Women and children first!"—by the crew of the Coast Guard, and stouter fellows I have never known. We were lowered down and down through the vaporous fog into the soft black water, and rowed to the island with a slap-slap of oars, and the sound was startling against the hushed silence that then befell us all, even the little children . . .

It was a slimy rocky little island; the abandoned old camp was dirty and noisome; but fires were soon lit, and babies were made happy with canned milk salvaged from the ship's store. And while the lifeboats were going back and forth, and before all the men had landed, the women—their women—stood gaunt and tense, straining their eyes against the darkness, listening each for the sound of her man's voice.

When we heard the swish and slap of a lifeboat the waiting women called their husbands' names and the Jim or Joe or Henry who happened to be in the boat called back reassuringly, producing in the wives an almost hysterical relief. I looked up at Nan. She didn't call as the boats approached, but she too stood waiting. The lights had already gone out on the big ship and the City of Rockland was in the throes of her extinction. At last, in the final lifeboat load with the crew and the radio man, came Nan's young man. I didn't know for many years thereafter how glad she was to see him that night.

The gray light of morning struggled through the rising fog. Haggard people rose from a few winks of sleep upon the damp ground near the extinguished embers. They were glad to be alive, and they felt like heroes. They gathered themselves up, and turned to look for the last time on the City of Rockland, a portion of whose once proud hulk still showed above the water. Slowly she disappeared from view, and a cry arose: "Good-by, City of Rockland," they shouted, "good-by. . . ."

Outstanding Commentators On Current Events At Home And Abroad

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

A Writer Eats Crow

WHEN WORSE pieces are written than mine of the 8th instant, regarding the flying services and the exclusiveness of the officers' corps of the Navy, they probably will be written by the same hand. Impatient of compromise and half-measures, when I'm bad I'm lousy, and I didn't need telling that I had fallen on my face, although several naval officers have been good enough to say so, in case you don't know.

PEGLER

I think it was as bad in its flippancy, which imparted an unintentional tone of rudeness and seeming contempt for the officers' corps, as in the lack of technical information about flying skill, equipment and organization. This lack was total but for the sort of reading that any layman puts his eye to in casual browsing. And, although I began by saying that I seemed to be at my best when writing of things which I knew nothing about and therefore should be pretty good that day, it was effrontery to sound off.

So I take my wigging without smirk.

"TAKE A LOOK some time at the history of aviation and see what kept the interest and research alive from the end of the war to the Lindbergh flight," one officer wrote. "See who put up the cash for the development of the radial engines, who experimented with wing designs, who owned and operated the wind tunnels in which the designs were tested. Find out for yourself what strategic conditions Germany has to face and how they differ from ours and compare the two programs. Maybe Al Williams is right and maybe he is wrong, but he's not as right as you seem to imply nor is aviation in the Government services the stepchild you infer it is.

"Look into the records of the transport fliers. See where they got their first training. See what percentage of them are in the reserve forces of aviation. Look at the list of flying cadets in training today and see how many of them get jobs with the transport companies after their tour of active duty is over. And tell me something: Why a flier shouldn't know something about the service he will revert to when his reaction time and his astigmatism get to be a menace not only to himself but to his fellows.

"IS IT A FAULT that the Navy wants big shots in the higher brackets who know something about aviation and hence wants to keep former flying men for sea duty, which involves an understanding of flying problems? Do you feel withal that our whole future is tied up in aviation, that the land and sea forces are obsolete, or does the fact that Germany, with all her air strength, still wants a navy at least a third the size of Britain's have any bearing on the subject?"

And so forth, without drawing a breath or repeating himself.

Well, all right, and this is the point at which I am going to let Mr. Williams hold the baby, because he is the one who calls the radial engine a built-in headwind and whoops it up for a streamline engine, who insists that the Army and Navy both regard the airplane as a weapon or an auxiliary, when, in his mind, it should be a service by itself co-operating with the two others, and who holds that the military air service should retain and not farm out to the passenger companies pilots developed at public expense by the Army and Navy.

THIS IS NO RETORT of mine, for I just don't know but merely got hopped up on some contentions which Williams not only is willing to debate but cannot be restrained from promoting.

I would like to pick one splinter out of my pelt, however. The officer grants that there are many people outside the Navy who would make good officers but still refuses to believe that the Navy is a poor one simply for that reason. But I didn't say it was a poor Navy for that or any other reason. I did call the Naval Academy a glorified high school in view of the fact that it admits boys, but, by the age limit and the promotion system, excludes from naval careers many young men who have acquired in other schools technical skill and learning which the Navy should invite and somehow fit into suitable rank.

AND I DIDN'T THEN but I do now propose that the Navy, considering the nonstrenuous nature of many important positions, could waive some of its highly fastidious requirements of teeth, toes and weight to admit as officers men of skill and brains who are not physically perfect.

There once was a very good naval officer named Lord Nelson, who lost first an eye and then an arm but fought right smart when he was reduced to a mere remainder.

Domestic Note

Revealed recently by Lynne Garrett in "The English-Speaking World" is the varied menus she has prepared for the Prime Minister.

"Menus . . . include a great many fish dishes, but not much meat, because of his gout. Lancashire hot-pot, however, is allowed him. Other good old English fare . . . includes roly-poly and treacle. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain like puddings, particularly steamed ones.

"Grilled herrings provide the Prime Minister's favorite breakfast dish. Mrs. Chamberlain is among the housewives who believe in having everything home-made, from preserves and cakes to Christmas fare."

Both the Prime Minister and his wife are avid readers, though when asked to describe her taste, Mrs. Chamberlain laconically says: "A terrible mixture."

Mixture, ranging from poetry to the Victorian novelists and some of the sciences, has very often stood her husband in good stead. Many of the apt quotations with which his speeches are liberally peppered have been discovered and put forward by Mrs. Chamberlain.

The German Jews

More Expressions Of Reader Opinion

The Chinese, Too

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Amidst the present outpouring of sympathy for the German Jews the plight of the "heathen Chinese" apparently has been forgotten. The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse ride rampant over that unhappy land and, notwithstanding that one "could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a twentieth century civilization," thousands upon thousands of noncombatant men, women and children continue to suffer and die in China.

One writer advocates the absorption by the United States of the victims of the Nazi wrath. If Father Knickerbocker can digest them certainly the Pacific Coast can do likewise with the innocent victims of the Mikado. The American Chinese are not as well organized or influential financially and socially as are the American Jews and, politically, of course, the former practically do not exist. Perhaps that is the reason why Ambassador Grew remains at Tokyo.

'Ready To Fight'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The treatment of the Jewish races in Germany and Italy is barbaric, uncivilized and damnable. No Christian, with an ounce of humanitarianism in his system, can feel otherwise. Have the Christian nations of the earth become so soft and so smug that they wrap their mantles about them and heed not the agonized cries of the distressed?

This writer, has not one drop of Jewish blood in his veins, but he does believe in fair play and a chance for every human being. He is a direct descendant of pure New England stock. His great grandfather was Amos Hall, a drummer boy in the Revolutionary service and a major-general in the War of 1812, a gentleman ready to fight for any righteous cause. Although past middle life his great-grandson stands ready to follow in his revered footsteps.

Civilization is approaching chaos, and delay is just postponing the inevitable. The evil-doers of the Old World must be checked in their inhuman and barbaric actions, before their malignant growth takes root in all the lands of the earth.

To paraphrase; the barbarians are at our doors, to your tents all ye Christians.

Here In America

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

We, in the United States, are not so saintly as to feel free to condemn peoples of other nations in the matter of religious intolerance.

Not long ago, according to press news, a Protestant minister of the Gospel, while holding religious service in a Michigan town, was attacked and the tent in which the service was being held was torn down and burned by the infuriated mob, and for the apparent reason that the mob, or its instigators, could not stand criticism of certain doctrines. And this in our own United States!

It is also a matter of record that members of a sect of devoted Christian people, known as Jehovah's Witnesses, have again and again been molested and thrown into prison for simply distributing literature. Then we have the notorious Hague restrictions on free speech in Jersey City—a contradiction of our pretended right to free speech and assembly by those in authority.

So, while condemning persecution in foreign lands, let us look with grave concern upon what sometimes happens in our own land.

The Grynzspan Case

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

If Miss Thompson is trying to prove the inadequacies and terrifying nature of the Nazi Party through the aiding of Herschel Grynzspan, she is bound to achieve her goal. If she succeeds in helping Herschel Grynzspan to prove that he was acting under duress caused by the unspeakable persecution of his people in Nazi Germany, she will have won a major victory in showing the world that there is justice and reason in democratic countries.

No doubt, the Nazis will not like what Miss Thompson is trying to do, but she must continue the fight. She must prove that she is not only helping a Jew, but that she is helping him with funds provided by American non-Jews. She will show that America is the one Nation in the world which approves of religious toleration, and does not need to use terror or persecution to maintain a successful Government. If Miss Thompson proves all of these points, she will have scored a major victory against Nazi Germany.

Tolerance Begins At Home

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The emotional spontaneity of many people in this country over the recent rulings of the German government concerning German Jews is comparable only to the display of puerile imagination demonstrated a few weeks ago on the occasion of Orson Welles' broadcast of a Martian invasion.

There is absolutely no reason for the vituperation heaped on the German people for something that has been happening from time immemorial among mankind and will continue to exist as long as nature constitutes man as he is today. Selfishness and its children, which we call hate, bigotry and jealousy, are imposed on us by nature, and, unfortunately with such force that we cannot overcome them with the relatively little intelligence and reasoning with which nature has endowed us.

The edicts of the German government with respect to the German Jews are very little different than those directed not so long ago by the English against the Irish and by the French against the Protestants, and countless other cases down through history. By what stretch of imagination do we think we can change man's nature?

We can, however, if we want to give ourselves that vain feeling of a righteous superiority, practice a little justice and tolerance right here in the United States. Some of the most vociferous in their denunciation of Germany are incidentally the very ones who become indignant over any consideration shown others not of their own particular entity. Man will not eradicate prejudice from his soul, and it is practiced just as effectively in a secret, undercover manner between the different groups as it could be through any government decree.

Sees A Paradox

To the Editor of the Post—Sir:

"Missouri Minded" would like to know why our President Roosevelt gets itchy under the collar over the treatment of Jews in Germany, while the atrocities committed against human beings in Russia, Ethiopia, Spain and China cause our President not the slightest irritation.

Frankly, such an attitude cannot be explained unless it be that in Germany financial and property rights were infringed, while in Ethiopia, Spain, Russia and China merely human rights were violated. And, of course, that makes all the difference in the world.

In the Roman Church it is forbidden Catholics to marry non-Christians and Jews. Marriage with non-Catholics is allowed only when it is guaranteed that offspring of both sexes will be baptized and educated in the Roman Catholic religion.

While the Roman Church protests against the prohibition of marriage between people of different races, the officials of this church are grieved when anyone protests against its prohibition of marriage between people of different religions.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

Nothing "Singular" About It

THE GERMAN government, in recalling the Ambassador to Washington, Dr. Dieckhoff, says that he is recalled in order to "inform Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in detail regarding public sentiment in the United States and the singular attitude toward domestic events in Germany manifested in various declarations by President Roosevelt and other important United States personalities."

DOROTHY THOMPSON.

It is to be hoped that Dr. Dieckhoff will "inform Mr. Ribbentrop that there is nothing at all "singular" in the attitude of President Roosevelt, but that on the contrary the President is acting in line with a tradition which has been consistent since the beginning of this Republic.

John Quincy Adams said in 1791, "The principle that a whole nation has the right to do whatever it pleases cannot in any sense whatever be admitted as true. The eternal and immutable laws of justice and of morality are paramount to all human legislation."

Daniel Webster said on November 7, 1849: "There is something on earth greater than arbitrary or despotic power, and that is the aroused indignation of the civilized world."

IN 1840 our Minister to Turkey, David Porter, was instructed to make strong representations to the Turkish ruler in protest against atrocities against Jews in Damascus and Rhodes, upon the express direction of President Van Buren.

In 1878 the United States cooperated with the great powers at the congress of Berlin to obtain full and equal rights for the Jews in the Balkans. In this they were supported by the president of the congress, the great German statesman, Bismarck, who declared that the clauses granting religious liberty and protecting minorities "have in view an advance in civilization against which doubtless no cabinet will have objections in principle. The assent of Germany is always given to every motion favorable to religious liberty."

IN 1881 Secretary of State James G. Blaine instructed James Russell Lowell, United States Minister at London, to seek English co-operation in a joint diplomatic move on behalf of the Jews in Russia.

In 1902 Secretary of State Hay protested to the Rumanian government at the express direction of President Theodore Roosevelt. The protest included these words: "The United States offers asylum to the oppressed of all lands. But its sympathy with them in no wise impairs its just liberty and right to weigh the acts of the oppressor in the light of their effects upon this country and to judge accordingly."

In 1903, after the Kishineff massacre in Russia, President Roosevelt forwarded to the Tsar of Russia a petition of protest signed by a vast number of American citizens and accompanied it with the statement, "In any proper way by which beneficial action may be taken, it will be taken, to show the sincerity of the historic American position of treating each man on his merits without the least reference to his creed, his race, or his birthplace."

In 1911, President Taft abrogated the Treaty of 1832 with Russia because of the Russian government's maltreatment of the Jews. The immediate cause was the refusal of the Russian government to recognize the passports of American citizens who were Jews.

In 1915, the United States Government officially interceded in behalf of the persecuted Christians in Armenia. Representations were made to the Turkish government by Secretaries of State Bryan and Lansing and Acting Secretary of State Polk. In this case, it was Russia who asked for American intervention, "to prevent the massacre of noncombatant Armenians in Turkish territory."

ONE PROVISION of the peace conference in 1919 that President Wilson was instrumental in obtaining was the adoption of treaties guaranteeing minority rights, including the protection of religious minorities. Most notable of these was the Polish minorities treaty, which protected the civil, political and religious rights of all minority groups in such newly created states as Poland.

It was declared in this treaty that infractions of the rights of racial, religious or linguistic minorities "constitute obligations of international concern."

At the peace conference Germany gave an express pledge to the United States that she would guarantee protection of her own religious and racial minorities on the same basis as that established for the minorities of Poland. Hence, the United States is not limited to general consideration of humanity and mere intercession in connection with Germany's treatment of her racial, religious, or linguistic minorities.

And in 1923 Germany herself successfully invoked the jurisdiction of the world court to enforce these very articles against Poland for her infringement of the rights of Germans.

THE GERMAN government has itself, on occasion, "intervened" to protest against persecution in other countries. In October, 1915, the German Ambassador at Constantinople delivered a note to the Turkish minister of foreign affairs saying, "The German Embassy is constrained to remonstrate once more upon those horrible deeds and to decline any responsibility for the consequences they may involve . . . all the more because Germany, as a friendly power, allied to Turkey, may be considered to have approved or even instigated their acts of violence."

THE UNITED STATES Government has shown enormous patience in dealing with German intervention in the domestic affairs of this country.

In September, 1937, at an extraordinary meeting in Stuttgart, the German foreign minister, Baron von Neurath asserted it as a principle of German policy that Germans in other countries, including the United States, would act as agents of the German government. Ernst Bohle, "leader" of the Nazi foreign organization, an official government instrument, said, "Whoever lives abroad as a German businessman, is working not only for himself but primarily in the service of the German fatherland."

This statement was followed by Nazi rallies organized by Germans throughout the United States. The United States Government has never recognized the right of a foreign government to organize a propaganda on our soil. In August, 1935, we threatened to break off diplomatic relations with Russia, as a result of the meeting of the Comintern.

The United States has never claimed the privilege of setting up groups inside Germany or Russia to try and change the forms of government of those countries, but the German and Russian governments are both doing that on this soil, under—save the mark!—the claim of free speech.

Intervention in the domestic affairs of other countries is a direct revolutionary instrument of Nazi policy. It has gone so far as to attempt to interfere with the course of justice in France, to publicly warn Great Britain against the danger of having Duff Cooper, Winston Churchill or Anthony Eden as Prime Minister, to suggest a racial policy to Italy, and to attempt to dictate the foreign and domestic policies of all the small neighboring countries. And all of its interventions in every direction are backed up by the intimidation of armed force and economic reprisals.

What it is doing has no precedent in any previous German policy, but President Roosevelt's action has the precedent of our whole history.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Virginibus Puerisque

I HAVE BEEN SITTING ON the floor all day surrounded by more than a hundred children's books. This is Children's Book Week, and here is a hasty report on the pile.

Some of the best are serial stories, new adventures of old friends. Such is "Babar and His Children" (Random House, $3), in which the best beloved of all elephants appears for perhaps the last time (Author de Brunhoff died last year), now the proud father of triplets—and elephant triplets are unique in a story as well as in the biological world, as worthy of attention as the Dionne quintuplets. Another classic family reappears in Elvira Garner's "Ezekiel Travels" (Holt, $1.50), in which Ezekiel an he sister, Emancipation, an he brudder, Lil Plural, an Assafetida, the baby, continue their engaging meanderings.

"Wee Gillis" Viking, $1.50, is in no sense a serial story, but it is the work of Muro Leaf and Robert Lawson, author and illustrator, respectively, of "Ferdinand" and that fact has already proved sufficient to send some thousands of eager parents into the bookstores. I don't think this story of a small boy and the biggest bagpipes in all Scotland is equal to the already classic fable of the pacifist bull; but it stands out among the piles of books upon the office floor. Mr. Leaf also offers, for the very young, "Safety Can Be Fun" (Stokes, $1.25), in the ingenious tradition of "Spelling Can Be Fun." Mr. Lawson seems to have passed his spare time making drawings for the Atwater's "Mr. Popper's Penguins" (Little, Brown, $1.50), which is so winning a tale that I could not resist commenting upon it when I first saw it in September, without waiting for Children's Book Week.

One of my annual delights is the Phil Strong story for boys approaching their teens. This year's offering is "Young Settler" (Dodd, $2) a tale of a boy and a horse and Injuns in Ohio frontier days. Having lately been immersed in the research in the history of the American beard, I regret that Mr. Wiese, ably illustrating this successor to the ever-memorable "Honk, the Moose," on which he also collaborated, was so unhistoric as to provide the Ohioans of the 1830's with beards, which they did not yet have; that is, after all, a minor fault in a book which can include so precious a sentence as (reporting an Indian council): "Every one said 'Hoongh,' which was the same as people clapping and stamping their feet in a moving-picture theater." Mr. Strong knows boys. Beards are in place with Marguerite de Angelin's story of Michigan 60 years ago, "Copper Toed Boots" (Doubleday, $2), one of the prettiest books of the season.

Grace Paull, illustrating Elizabeth Coatsworth's "Dancing Tom" (Macmillan, $1), includes similarly anachronistic beards. Edward Laning's pictures for Phyllis Crawford's "Hello, the Boat!" (Holt, $2) are correctly clean-shaven. "Hello, the Boat!" won the Julia Ellsworth Ford's $3,000 award this year; it is a "Life On the Mississippi" set in flatboat days, almost half a century before Mark Twain got his nickname. It's a book for the younger teens; "Dancing Tom" tells a similar story more briefly, for a kindergarten age . . .

A Halfway Program

By Ernest K. Lindley

Instead Of WPA, What?

WHY IS WPA so much less popular than PWA, the CCC, rural electrification, and Federal aid to highway construction?

If the public were primarily budget-minded, WPA should be more popular than these other work programs. In over-all figures it has been the biggest single item in the Federal budget for four years. But, on the average, it costs less per person employed than do its more popular alternatives.

LINDLEY.

Throughout the last few years it has proved much easier to obtain money from Congress for PWA, the CCC, and several other Federal programs than for WPA. That fact has gradually been sinking into the minds of members of the Roosevelt Administration. Quite a few of them have reached the conclusion—which seems altogether sensible—that the public is really worried less about cost than about value received.

PWA work is done by private contractors using the most efficient methods. CCC is direct public work, and most of the CCC youth are wholly unskilled when they enter the camps. A great deal of the work done by the CCC has been necessarily extremely simple manual labor. But the CCC has been immune from criticism almost from its inception. Without attempting to measure very accurately the value of the work done by the CCC, the public seems to feel it is getting its money's worth.

WPA AND ITS predecessors—the Civil Works Administration and the work program of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration—have added vastly to the national wealth. Unquestionably it has been profitable for the Nation to pay the difference between the cost of straight cash relief and the cost of the WPA program. The value of the work done must greatly exceed the extra costs, above those of cash relief, for materials, supervision, and wages. And that gain takes no account of the saving in morale, by providing work instead of idleness, and of the stimulating economic effects of the work program.

But WPA rests under a cloud. Together with many useful projects, it has undertaken some foolish ones. Too often it doesn't use the most efficient means of production; it does work by hand that could be done more cheaply by machinery. And, despite the loyal defense of Harry L. Hopkins and his aides, anyone who keeps his eyes open as he travels around the country knows that the WPA shovel-leaner is not altogether mythical.

WPA has fallen short, too, in that it has never been conducted on a big enough scale to provide jobs for all the employable persons on the relief rolls. Throughout the last four years there has always been a long waiting list of employable persons on the relief rolls of local governments. In addition to persons on relief, there has always been a great group of unemployed outside the relief rolls. It is obviously unfair to penalize the man who has been thrifty enough to put aside some savings, by requiring him to exhaust those savings before he became eligible for a WPA job.

All in all, WPA is a kind of halfway program. Partly because of concern for the Federal budget, and partly because of a persistent over-optimism in the White House and in Congress concerning the prospects for economic recovery, WPA has never been given enough money and enough assurance concerning its future to do a first-class job.

HENCE THERE IS a growing sentiment in the Administration for funneling more money into the special kinds of spending which seem to meet with general approval—the CCC, the NYA, slum clearance, the building of hospitals and health centers, as proposed under the national health program. In this category must also be included rearmament, which will bulk large in the next budget.

If the level of Federal spending is sustained by those special programs, and if general economic improvement continues, the residual spending through WPA can be decreased gradually. Probably some kind of flexible program of "light works" will always be needed to take up the economic slack. Eventually, even this "light works" program would be opened up to all unemployed, whether or not they are in immediate need of relief. That is what Harry Hopkins was getting at in his New York City speech last week, when he said that the "relief test" over a period of years is on the way out and that "unemployment has got to be treated as a problem of unemployment per se."

Capital Society Begins Thanksgiving Whirl

Tuckermans Give Tea for the Younger Set
The Misses Cresson, Miss Townsend Are Feted
Andrews' Hold Cocktail Party in Georgetown

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

SOCIAL CIRCLING went into high gear yesterday as Washington residents stepped out and about to more parties in one afternoon than they generally attend in a week.

Beginning the Thanksgiving whirl well ahead of time, debutantes and dowagers . . . youngsters, oldsters and in-betweens . . . notables of every age and every interest dashed about from house to house . . . from Washington to Alexandria, and back again . . . to while away the hours over teacups and cocktail glasses.

Many from the younger set lingered longest at Tuxeden, the Bethesda home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, where the Misses Emily and Helen Cresson, of Philadelphia, and Miss Margaret Townsend were feted at tea. The Misses Cresson with their mother, Mrs. Caleb Cresson, arrived last week to visit Mrs. Tuckerman who, incidentally, entertained quite a large house party over the week-end.

One of the high lights of the round of events for the visitors was the dinner given by Mrs. Tuckerman on Saturday night at the Chevy Chase Club where Miss Emily Cresson, a debutante of the season, was guest of honor, and Miss Alice Tuckerman presided at the table where younger members of the company of 32 were seated.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S tea drew a sizable section of the debutante group and a number of out-of-towners, several of whom were here especially to attend the party.

Receiving in the drawing room, Mrs. Tuckerman was gowned in plum duvetyn, made on simple lines and worn with an orchid corsage. Standing with the hostess was Miss Emily Cresson, in a peach chiffon frock, fashioned with a front panel of Chantilly lace that also formed a broad band around the bottom of the full skirt. Also in the receiving line were Mrs. Cresson; Miss Margaret Townsend, who had chosen a light blue taffeta frock with a fitted bodice and a full skirt and who carried a huge bouquet of red roses; her mother, Mrs. Effingham Townsend, gowned in purple, and Miss Helen Cresson, in black velvet, set off with a white lace collar and cuffs to match.

ALTERNATING at the tea table were Mrs. John Meim Carter, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard, Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson, Mrs. Edward R. Alexander, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, and Mrs. Lawrence M. C. Smith. Debutantes assisting were Miss Maisie Howard, Miss Sylvia Alexander, Miss Elise Hill, Miss Ashby Proctor and Miss Agnes Magruder. Miss Mary Wright and the Misses Laura and Ruth Tuckerman, daughters of the hostess, also assisted.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Jane Bodine, of Villanova, Pa.; Miss Lydia Fulweiler, and Miss Frances Randolph Packard, of Philadelphia. Still others from Philadelphia were John and Paul Newhall, Walter Biddle Page, Caleb Cresson, 6th; John Clark Sims and Alexander Coxe Stokes.

Following the tea, Mrs. Tuckerman entertained at a supper party in honor of Miss Townsend, guests for that event including the debutantes who assisted at the afternoon party and the out-of-town guests.

WHILE THE YOUNGER set made merry at Tuxeden, shoals of guests were enjoying a party in Georgetown where Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer Andrews and Mrs. Andrews were entertaining at cocktails. From 5 to 7 o'clock, the spacious house that last winter was occupied by former Senator and Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, was crowded to the walls.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and their daughters, Jean Eleanor and Daphne Frank greeted their guests in the drawing room, but for the most part the gathering centered in the library and the dining room, where cocktails went the rounds for well over two hours.

ASSISTING the hosts were Miss Eugenia Pope and the Assistant Wage-Hour Administrator, Paul Sifton, and Mrs. Sifton. Among the guests were members of Mr. Andrews' staff, a scattering of officials from other divisions of the Labor Department, scores of press representatives, and several out-of-towners.

Very much a center of attention was Morris Ernst, noted New York lawyer, who declared he had "crashed the party." Senator T. M. Stork, of California, was another glimpsed in the crowd. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg were their; also David Saposs, Dr. Isadore Lubin, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Sayers—to mention but a few in the throng. Shortly after the event, Mr. and Mrs. Sifton motored to Baltimore, where their latest play, "The Doctors," is being cast. It is to be produced at the Johns Hopkins Play Shop in a few weeks.

STILL ANOTHER party on yesterday afternoon's schedule was the tea given by Col. and Mrs. Charles Beatty Moore at their home in Alexandria. Illuminated by tall tapers, the drawing room was decorated with pink gladioli and chrysanthemums, and the long table in the dining room, also lighted by candles, was set off with masses of yellow chrysanthemums.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Harry Blair, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Benton McMillin, Mrs. George Daniel, Mrs. J. Fred Essery, Mrs. Burt Garnett, and Mrs. Charles Stuart, of New York. Also asked to pour tea was Mrs. George Barnett, who arrived late, having gone first to Baltimore to attend the christening of her grandchild, George Barnett Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gordon.

Mrs. Francis Savage was another on yesterday's long list of hostesses. She received in her apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street, where a number of her friends gathered between 5 and 7 o'clock. Among others who had guests during the tea hour yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Walker Buel, who entertained at their home on Gramercy street.

ON THE CALENDAR: The Polish Ambassador has cards out for a tea tomorrow afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock . . . Mrs. Basil Manly, wife of the Federal Power Commissioner, will be "at home" on Friday, December 2, in compliment to Mrs. Henry F. Grady (Lucretia del Valle Grady), who recently arrived in Washington from California to spend the winter . . . Mr. and Mrs. William H. Goodacre have issued invitations for the debut party of Mrs. Goodacre's daughter, Miss Ashby Proctor, on Sunday, December 11, at Salubria, Oxon Hill, Md. . . . Mme. Witold Wankowicz, wife of the Polish Counselor, will entertain in honor of Mme. Anna de Romer on Wednesday, December 7, from 5 to 7 o'clock . . . A flock of sporting social lights will be on hand for the preview of the Chevy Chase Ice Palace on Wednesday, November 23, from 4 until 6:30 o'clock. Invitations have just gone out with the note, "If you are a skater, come prepared to try out the ice" . . . Parties are piling up for the Minister of Finland and Mme. Eero Jarnefelt, who will leave early in January for Rome . . . I'll have more to tell you about their calendar later . . . Also, about the round of entertainments being planned for the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, who will be as widely feted as any couple ever to bow out of public life. But rumors are going the rounds that even though the "A. G." is giving up his Cabinet post, he still may be very much in the official picture, as another big job is to be offered to him—one, however, that will not keep him in Washington.

Wadleigh, Mr. Remey received his guests in the drawing room. The program took place in the library. Following the program, supper was served in the dining room.

Weight Issue Big Factor in Keeping Young

Excess Fat Is Aging
Posture Important
Menus Suggested

By Ida Jean Kain.

DO WOMEN stay younger than men? Women think they do, according to a vote taken recently at a session attended by thousands of women. It was agreed that many women look unnecessarily older because they let themselves go, while men keep spruced up for business and are able to throw off minor worries. Men cannot afford to get into a rut—but neither can women.

No sensible woman wants to keep looking sweet 18 all her life, but it is the sheerest nonsense to look older than your years. The starting point in this question of looking older than necessary is the silhouette—the sum of weight, shape and posture—which overshadows everything else.

Normal weight, however, is relative. It depends entirely on your structure and too great a variation up or down the scales is ageing. Many women have large bones and a streamlined weight makes them appear gaunt. There is a basic weight for the first 5 feet of height allowing for the difference in structures.

Weight Explained

Ideal weight may vary from 100 pounds for the first 5 feet of height to 110 pounds in accordance with the slight or the statuesque structure. Then there is an additional allowance of 5½ pounds for each inch by which the height exceeds the first 5 feet, which is the same for all figures.

The very small-boned girl can only allow 100 pounds for the basic height, the medium size girl 105 pounds, the statuesque type is entitled to a minimum of 110 pounds for the 5 feet.

An excessive amount of weight is more ageing when badly distributed and special exercises are needed to firm the muscles at the fat-susceptible points—the midsection, the backs of the upper arms and the throatline.

Minus Is Suggested

A slumped posture can be as aging as avoirdupois. By making your weight distribution seem worse than it is, a poor posture can make your figure seem heavier. You must be eternally on guard against any tendency to slump, and the rule that will help you most is this: Always stand and sit as tall as possible.

This week's articles are all intended to help you to look your old self—and not your older self.

Gleam of Lame Against Black Crepe

Harris & Ewing.

A flash of gleaming lame animates this afternoon gown of crisp black crepe which was worn by Mrs. Arthur M. Hylor at a recent country club fashion showing. When complemented with silver fox furs and a conical veiled toque of Crusader origin, this ensemble takes naturally to teas, theater dates and bridge luncheons. Minus the bolero, the flash of the bejeweled V-bodice and sleeves lend sparkle to an "at home"

MISS BUBBLE—GIRLS! Did you all see Gracie Binn?

CHORUS—Did we!

MISS JENKS—Did you ever see such a change in a human being?

MISS TOOTLE—And when you think of how she used to look around here——

MISS HACK—That just shows what getting away from this place does for you.

MISS FLYTIE—It shows what getting married does for you?

MISS JENKS—Well, I know I could get a man if she did.

MISS SNIPP—Well, the whole thing with me is I've always been too particular.

MISS STAKE—You know, I've just about decided that any girl's better off married.

MISS GOODE—Well, you want to be sure that it's Mr. Right——

MISS FLYTIE—Say, I could marry Mr. Wrong just to get away from this place.

II.

MISS CHEESIT—GIRLS! Guess who I just saw downstairs!

CHORUS—Gracie Binn!

MISS CHEESIT—Why, I didn't know her! I never saw such a change——

MISS FLYTIE—It just shows what getting married does for you.

MISS HACK—It shows what getting away from this office does for you.

MISS CHEESIT—Well after seeing Gracie I'd be willing to be married to anybody.

MISS GOODE—Well, there are some things worse——

MISS JENKS—Anybody! How'd you like to be married to Mr. Flint?

MISS CHEESIT—Oh, that's different.

MRS. GRUBB—Well, it's not everything in just being married. Just give Gracie two years——

MISS HACK—I say it's this office. Everybody that goes away comes back looking like that.

MISS BUBBLE—Girls, why don't we all get new jobs?

MISS JENKS—That's what we ought to do. You never get anywhere at this place.

MISS FLYTIE—Exactly! What man ever looked at Gracie until she left——

MISS SNIPP—Wait! I thought I heard Mr. Flint. Anyway we'd better get busy.

III.

MISS CHUMLEY—GIRLS! I've just had the shock of my life. I saw——

CHORUS—Gracie Binn!

MISS CHUMLEY—Did you ever see anything like it. I'm going right out and get me a husband.

MRS. GRUBB—I tell you it's not just in getting a husband——

MISS FLYTIE—It's in getting one who can support you.

MISS CHEESIT—Where are you going to find him?

MISS HACK—Certainly not in this place.

MISS SNIPP—I should say not. Where's there a man in this whole building you'd have?

MISS BUBBLE—The whole trouble's with this town.

MISS JENKS—There simply are no men in it.

MISS BUBBLE—Girls, why don't we all go to some other town?

MISS CHEESIT—Well, after seeing Gracie, I'd do most anything.

MISS HACK—I tell you it's this office.

MISS FLYTIE—No, it's in getting married——

MRS. GRUBBS—No, it's not altogether in getting married——

MISS CHUMLEY—It's in staying home. Nature never intended women to work——

MISS SNIPP—It's in getting out of this town.

MISS BUBBLE—Well, I don't know what it is, but it's something——

MISS GOODE—You know what I think it is? I think it's love.

MRS. GRUBB—Love!

MISS HACK—Sh-h! Here comes Mr. Flint!

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Nov. 20.

YOU CAN SAY what you like about New York, and I have an idea that you usually do, but I bitterly dare you to prove that any State in the Union can produce two more beautiful, wise and all-around delightful women than the helpmates of Messrs. Herbert Lehman and Thomas E. Dewey, who so recently fought and liked to died for the doubtful pleasure of squatting in the Governor's hot seat at Albany.

ALICE HUGHES.

Herbert got in by his party's smallest majority for the New York governorship since 1918, and he did it for sheer duty. Everybody knows that he, and especially his unusually beautiful wife, would like to brush off the cares of that awful office for the lives of private citizens. Mrs. Lehman is tall and well made and greying, with beautiful blue eyes and more charm than any one woman customarily draws in life's raffle. Her three children are big and in college, and she is a wonderful wife to the man who labors for the Commonwealth. She is tired of it, but she's a good trouper. Her constant slogan is, "Where the Governor goes, I go," and she makes it stick. She composes music, and she is an ardent sportswoman, but she never neglects the duties of a statesman's wife, which probably are rank poison to her now.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Gaffer Hall came scuffing back from a matinee of the swell musical show, "Sing Out the News," with the boycott note that all the chorines in the troop wear rayon rather than silk stockings to cover their shapely shafts throughout the opera. While this may not save China, he thinks it a pretty thought, and also opines that the legs look very lovely in their proletarian castings. The old dog.

One of the prettiest sights in town—Mrs. Warren Pershing dancing gracefully in her best white satin dress. She's a baby doll, as the boys used to say. The helpmate, however, still says that the most fetching item in town is his beloved Edwina Atwell in creamy yellow satin brocaded with flowers. He certainly cares for her—at long range, never having met the lady, of course.

Girl Asks How to Regain Whole Heart of Man Who Turns to Her Rival, After Lovers' Quarrel

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been going with a boy since last January. From his actions, I was sure he was sincere when he told me he loved me. He didn't date other girls, either. However, last month we had a fuss and didn't make up for a week. During that week he dated another girl. She was a girl he had gone with for several months about a year ago, before he met me. But after she started liking him he stopped going with her.

Since we have made up, I have dated him about three times a week, but he continues to see the other girl once a week. His best friend goes with her best friend and they always double-date. Naturally, I knew he wouldn't continue dating her if he didn't enjoy being with her. So this is my problem: How can I keep my rival from beating my time? I have been having other dates; in fact, I believe I have had more dates than he has. And I am sure I still come first with him, but how long will it last?

It looks to me as if he is getting tired of going with me, or why would he want to date other girls? Do you think I should stop dating him for a week or two? Or should I go away on a visit? Please tell me how to handle this situation gracefully and effectively. With best wishes, I am, sincerely,

WORRIED.

The Significant Clew

DEAR WORRIED: Without realizing the importance of your discovery, you seem already to have stumbled upon the secret of "gracefully and effectively" managing this young man. The secret, it appears, consists in never letting him know he has you on the anxious seat; for you say of the other girl that "after she started liking him, he stopped going with her." Apparently he fights shy of possessive girls, and of girls who await his coming with bated breath and palpitating pulse. It appears that the biggest thrill a girl can give him is the thrill of the chase; and that the last thing he wants is a young lady's heart on a silver platter.

When your quarrel of a month ago was stubbornly prolonged for a period of a week, I suppose he turned to the other girl for transient consolation, thinking to salve his ego with the eager welcome he expected to receive. But she may have surprised and rather excited him by running no temperature over his return; by giving the impression that he is no longer a person of extra-special importance in her life—so that his interest in her is quickening again.

However, you seem to have retained the inside track in his affections, despite the upset, and the way to maintain that advantage is to keep your heart off your sleeve. I think you would be overshooting the mark in pointedly declining to see him for a week or two, or in going away for a visit just now. The one would savor of telltale petulance and might put a final end to the friendship, and the other might be construed as flight from the scene of a badly bruised heart.

I think you should deliberately exclude your supposed "rival" from your thoughts; nonchalantly accept the young man's attentions on the terms he has tacitly imposed—namely, those of mutual devoted friendship rather than exclusive thee-and-me courtship—and in the meantime keep your eye peeled for the coming of some other young man who will provide him serious competition for your favor. And by that I do not mean merely a youth who will give you a rush, but a youth who will strike you as being pretty devastating.

M. H.

The Beautiful and Brainy

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Years ago I was in exactly the same spot as "Curious," your correspondent of November 9, who yearns to know good looking women with brains and poise. I was a distinctly choosey bachelor who preferred a good book if he couldn't step out with a combination of beauty and brains. Heaven knows I'm conceited enough in some ways, but still I never fancied myself as the complete answer to a maiden's prayer. And yet I managed to muster a fairly numerous and responsive acquaintanceship amongst ladies who were both beautiful and bright.

Beauty was a prime requirement for a first date, and the dumb ones didn't get a second bid. Girls of the type I admired were popular, I found. Frequently I had to call half a dozen numbers in order to acquire an immediate date—and sometimes I had to fall back on a good book after all. But that wasn't time wasted. I needed to read a good many good books in order to keep up with those attractive gals. Realizing my almost total lack of the Arrow Collar ad effect, I reasoned that the least I could do was to try to be entertaining, interesting and interested in my social negotiations with the opposite sex.

The system worked well for me, so well that my men friends wondered how I got away with it. One of the brainy beauties finally decided to take a chance and marry me, and she gives no evidence of having regretted the step. And as for me, I still read good books—many of them aloud to her. But to revert back to the main theme—in all my choicy bachelorhood, I never regarded myself as a catch and the gals were anything but predatory. They could endure me for an evening and like it, and also, they could get along for weeks without seeing me, and like that equally well, I suspect.

Marriage hasn't dulled my appreciation of beauty plus brains and I continue, insofar as possible, to choose my women friends on that basis—from the ages of 20 to 80. And there are lots of them in Washington, more than in most towns of comparable size. "Curious" must lack something in his approach. Maybe he fails to approach women as intelligent human beings. Plenty of the loveliest really appreciate that approach, although far too many still rest on the trite assumption that most men like 'em a little dumb.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Soak 2 tablespoons of gelatin for five minutes in 1-3 cup of cold water. Dissolve in 1 cup of boiling pineapple juice. Add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, ¼ cup of orange juice and 4 tablespoons of granulated sugar. Cool. Chill until slightly thick. Beat until frothy. Add following ingredients; 1 cup of whipped cream; ½ cup of sliced dates; 1-3 cup of sliced raisins and ½ cup of sliced pineapple. Put into a mold and chill.

How to Buy Spices

In buying spices choose the smaller packages, for spice must be replaced often as the essential oils evaporate. Don't allow your spice to waste its sweetness on the air. Keep cans and jars tightly closed. If your gingerbread has not been up to par, if your pickled peaches are flat, the answer probably is in the spice jar.

If the cinnamon is stale and the all-spice caked and dark, bought goodness knows when; if the cloves are pale and wrinkled caricatures of their former large, smooth selves—throw them out.

A five-day week, time and a half in cash or leave for overtime, and optional retirement after 30 years of service were recommended for all Federal employes in a resolution formulated at the Congress of Industrial Organizations convention at Pittsburgh and made public today.

The C. I. O. called upon all branches of the Government "to accede to the public policy of the Nation by according full recognition to labor unions chosen by their employes to represent them with regard to terms and conditions of employment."

Also urged in the resolution were:

Adequate minimum wage stands and automatic wage increases.

Curtailment of the hiring of temporary employes.

Improved working conditions in all Government hospitals, jails and other institutions and for custodial and mechanical workers in Government buildings.

Enlargement of the Social Security program to provide unemployment and sickness insurance for Government workers.

Legislation "democratizing the relationship between workers and administrators in Government services by the creation of fair and impartial appeals machinery for dealing with disputes and grievances."

The resolution commends President Roosevelt for extending the Civil Service and advocates "extension throughout all Federal services."

C. of C. Convenes Transport Parley On Rail Problems

By the Associated Press.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States announced yesterday that the transportation conference it sponsored recently would meet again here today to consider "the present emergency situation" in the railroad industry.

The conference, composed of transportation operators, shippers and investors, had an organization meeting in Washington two months ago. The agenda for today's meeting includes as major topics: railroad rate provisions, consolidations, co-ordinations, and abandonments of trackage, "relief from burdens and restrictions," financial reorganization of railroads, and Federal financial aid.

Girl Trade School To Reopen Here

After a year of inactivity, the National Training School for Women and Girls, privately supported educational institution in Lincoln Heights, will be in operation this year under a new name to avoid confusion with the District's corrective institution for girls located on Conduit road, it was announced yesterday.

The institution will be known as the National Trade and Professional School for Women and will stress courses in household management for its colored students, Miss Sarah Miner, treasurer of the school's fund raising committee, said.

Representatives of 21 States met on the school's campus Thursday and Friday to map plans for preservation, promotion and development of the work of the institution in response to invitation of Miss Nannie H. Burroughs, president. A committee of 200 was appointed to conduct a Nation-wide drive for $50,000.

Peons Now Have Standing of Human Beings, Says Mexican Diplomat, Praising 'Revolution'

"The revolution in Mexico is making headway toward a better way of living for the majority of my countrymen," Salvador Duhart, second secretary of the Mexican Embassy, told the Forum of the Universalist National Memorial Church yesterday.

Speaking before the second of a series of forums on "the American Republics," Duhart pointed out that previously the peon had been looked upon as a "working machine," but that now "he has been given the standing of a human being." More than 9,000 rural schools have been built in the first four years of the present administration, he said.

In calling attention to clarification of relations with Mexico over expropriation of agricultural holdings of United States citizens, Duhart said, "The settlement affords a good example of realistic, and not idealistic, negotiations."

Dr. Raul d'Eca of the Pan American Union, also briefly discussed international aspects of the Mexican agrarian program.

Next Sunday's forum will hear Dr. George Howland Cox, director of the Inter-American center of George Washington University, broadly cover Latin-American relations with the United States under the title "Floodlight on the Americas."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey presents Lawrence Tibbett in a song recital Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall, with Stewart Wille as accompanist and assisting artist. Program of songs by Boyce, O'Brien, Heseltine, Brahms, Wolf, Verdi, Tschaikovski, Warren, Harris, Wolfe and Enders, and piano pieces by Beethoven, Richard Strauss and Lecuona.

Filling Constitution Hall, admirers of Lawrence Tibbett welcomed him yesterday afternoon with an enthusiasm that must have given him a glow of satisfaction, and with a vehemence of applause which resulted in extra numbers that prolonged his recital beyond a normal length. If the popular American barytone had shown traces of vocal fatigue, it would have been pardonable after the strain of his recent Australian tour on which he sang 52 recitals in less than five months, but he seemed as unwearied as though it had been a vacation. His voice was fresh and resonant, firm in quality and as capable as ever of those long-breathed tones that he likes to sustain.

He began his program with an old novelty, "The Song of Momus to Mars," by the English organist, William Boyce, who died when Beethovan was a lad of 9. This was followed by Vincent O'Brien's arrangement of the traditional Irish melody, "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded," and the rousing "Good Ale," by the late Philip Heseltine, who composed under the pen-name of Peter Warlock. When recalled, he told his auditors that he would start then and there to comply with some of the requests he had received for extra numbers. The first was "Where 'er You Walk," from Handel's "Semele."

His second group, in German, contained three lieder by Brahms—"Der Tod, das ist der Kuehle Nacht," "Mein Leiebe its Gruen" and "Wir Wandelten"—and Erich Wolff's "Ewig." The encore for this group was sung in English: "If Love Has Entered Thy Heart," by the Austrian, Josef Marx.

The operatic aria chosen for the afternoon was "Cortiginai, vil razza dannata" from "Rigoletto," and it was delivered with admirable emotional fidelity, the contrast between angry denunciation and pleading humility being effectively drawn. To this he appended as an encore Escamillo's entrance song from "Carmen."

A group in English, comprising Tschaikovski's "None But the Lonely Heart" and "Pilgrim's Song" and Elinor Remick Warren's "Wander Shoes," was followed by Christian Victor Hely-Hutchinson's amusing Handelian parody, "Old Mother Hubbard." The final group consisted of Edward Harris' "Moan," Jacques Wolfe's "Betsy's Boy" and Harvey Enders' adaptation of a Negro folksong, "Hangman, Slack on the Line."

Stewart Wille, whose accompaniments were at times a little too emphatic and more assertive than necessary, contributed a clean and crisply played group of solos: Isidor Seiss' arrangement of a German dance by Beethoven, one of the early piano pieces by Richard Strauss, "Traumerei," and the familiar "Malaguena" by Ernesto Lecuona.

SIAM. The lady in black with her dark hair parted in the middle went to Bangkok with her husband, a doctor. The socialites in Bangkok aren't very numerous, so they saw much of the royal family with its innumerable princes and princesses.

When the doctor died in Siam, the Queen was curious to see how a Western woman would react to the rites of cremation. So the widow watched the ceremony (as stoically as possible) while the Queen watched her. She still grows tense as she tells the story.

• • • •

But she came through with flying colors, and the Queen presented her with a bracelet studded with rubies and emeralds. The dead doctor was posthumously made a prince.

Later, when the urn was shipped to America, the Siamese Legation was directed to photograph the widow with one hand on the urn, for the Queen's album.

BRAZIL: Soon you find yourself taking a drink with the dark, slender young man from Rio, with the little black mustache . . . He is merely a stripling, but he was an officer of a crack regiment which put down a revolt.

His country, he thinks, is lenient with revolutionists; even rebellious soldiers and officers are not shot.

• • • •

At first he seemed mild-mannered, but now he bristles with a fiery patriotism . . . Did not the President himself speed up to the front line in a presidential limousine, where the shooting was heaviest? That was the day the loyal troops in the barracks had to be cannonaded along with the disloyal.

• • • •

He hints that there are dark undercurrents in South America. There the Latins are not afraid of European aggression. But Brazil must keep control of the rivers on which her commerce from the interior flows—even if neighbors across those rivers get a little nervous . . . He knows all the wars, all the battles, all the national heroes for 100 years.

His regiment's proudest monument celebrates a battle it didn't win.

PERSIA: She was a handsome, spirited girl when she went to Turkey after the war. Kemal Ataturk's mother wanted her for a daughter-in-law, thinking all Americans were princely. But she explained that back home she was only an American girl.

So she passed up Kemal, married an American consular officer instead.

• • • •

Two years later her husband was killed by a Persian mob which mistook him for someone else. The mob attacked her, too, but she was rescued. The Persian government paid an indemnity of $80,000 for the assaults, which our big-hearted Government largely turned back for an educational fund.

• • • •

Since then she has been immersed in endless complexities with the State Department, constant litigation, hearings before Congressional committees.

The State Department thinks her husband's estate owes the Government $130; she feels she has never been properly indemnified for her husband's death and the buffets she received from the mob.

GHA 'Pioneer,' Speaker Tells Modern Forum

N. Y. Physician Speaks Foresees Acceptance Opposition Flagging

Dr. Kingsley Roberts, director of the Bureau of Co-operative Medicine in New York City, last night praised the Group Health Association as a "pioneer" in a movement to extend medical service to America's middle class through voluntary medical insurance.

Dr. Roberts, opening the second Modern Forum lecture series at the Washington Hotel, said Group Health in the near future would find a changed attitude on the part of medical societies. He said the present controversy between G. H. A. and the medical societies which is the subject of a grand jury hearing, was founded on lack of understanding of group health aims.

Sees Opposition Falling

In the development of group hospitalization schemes, which he said had received support of 3,500,000 persons in the United States, Dr. Roberts saw a sign of approaching breakdown of opposition to such organizations as Group Health. Officials of the American Medical Association, he said, were ready to accept plans for prepayment of the costs of medical care.

He questioned whether such organizations had accurately determined the real costs of hospital care, and he suggested the establishment of a medical center as a future project for Group Health Association, if existing hospital facilities could not be used economically.

Dr. Roberts declared no one method of distributing medical care would do for the entire population, but that the 30 per cent of the population whose incomes ranged from $1,500 to $3,000 would find co-operative organization the best method of becoming "medically self-supporting."

"Successful application of the insurance principle to medical care is going to come, because you want it, not because the societies tell you what they will do," he said.

Holds Fees Too High

Dr. Roberts scored present-day medicine as too expensive, too highly specialized and slow to make scientific discoveries available to the patient. He said the medical profession had failed to meet problems of rural care, or to co-operate with the programs of public health agencies. He charged organized medicine had supported individual against group practice at the expense of efficiency and economy and had obstructed experiments.

Members of the forum discussion panel were Robert H. Shields, of the Department of Agriculture, and Irving J. Levy, chief of litigation for the Wage and Hour Administration. Ross Garrett, head of the Health Security Administration, presided.

Wanted: 25 Men For Jobs Paying $5,600 a Year

The United States Government is looking for 25 men to take $5,600-a-year jobs.

However—

Applicants must be topnotch chemists and chemical engineers. No exams will be required. Applicants are to be rated on education, training and experience.

Vacancies are with the Department of Agriculture, which is setting up four regional research laboratories, each to have an appropriation of $1,000,000, under an act of last Congress.

Dr. Henry G. Knight, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, pointed out that the needed men must be specialists on such subjects as cellulose, cotton fiber, starch, oil, protein and organic analysis.

25-Ounce Infant Tips Scales at 18 Pounds in Year

Powhatan Courthouse, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Homer Hamilton Zartman, weighing only 25 ounces and given a scant chance at life when he was born a year ago yesterday, celebrated his first birthday as a normal, plump baby of 18 pounds.

Believed to be the smallest baby ever born in Richmond, Homer struggled for life for several months in an incubator at Johnston-Willis Hospital.

2 Women Beaten By Purse-Snatchers

Police are searching for marauders who assaulted one woman and slugged and robbed another in the Northwest section last night.

Mrs. Grace Guest, 52, of 3124 P street northwest, told police a light-skinned colored man stopped her in the 3000 block of Q street northwest, knocked her down with his fist and escaped with her purse which contained $1.

Mrs. Helen Quigley, 39, 5616 Second place northeast, was thrown to the ground by a young white man who attempted to snatch her purse but fled as she screamed.

Neither woman was seriously injured.

D. C. Pastors Decry Nazi Oppression

Thousands Pray Americans Warned Hatred Can Spread Hitler Called Mad

Washington's spiritual leaders yesterday called for a united Jewish-Gentile front in facing the Nazi persecution crisis and in fighting the possible spread of anti-Semitism in this country as thousands here joined the Nation in a day of prayer for victims of persecution and oppression.

The day of prayer was initiated by the Federal Council of Churches and the Washington Church Federation.

Describing Hitler as a "madman" using the Jews as "scapegoats," Dr. Howard Stone Anderson warned from the First Congregational Church pulpit: "There is anti-Semitism in our own country. We must have a definite refusal to be filled with animosity toward the Jewish people."

Must Ask Question

Dr. Frederick W. Perkins told his Universalist Memorial Church Congregation: "American must ask itself if democracy can rely on liberty to overcome the foes of liberty; or are we breeding 'imitation Hitlers' with their suppression of free speech and free assembly."

Dr. Albert J. McCartney said at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church: "The maltreatment of the Jews is not a Jewish question, but a humanitarian problem that transcends borders, creeds and nationalities. So far as we Gentiles are concerned, the worst thing that could happen to our Nation is a reign of anti-Semitism."

Indifference Decried

The church rises above racial prejudices and clasps the hand of brotherhood, declared the Rev. James S. Montgomery, House of Representative chaplain, who preached the 136th anniversary sermon at Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. W. S. Abernathy, of Calvary Baptist Church, warned against the attitude that allows indifference "when wrongs and injustices are being perpetrated."

"The German people are partly to blame for their present state," maintained the Rev. Roy A. LeMoine at the Esther Memorial Episcopal Church, Anacostia, "because they placed their trust in a man instead of God."

The Rev. Carroll S. Coale, of Brightwood Methodist Episcopal Church, urged children of his Junior Church "to pray for the unfortunate boys and girls in Germany, and give thanks that you live in a land where you have freedom to pray."

Women's Leaders Broadcast Appeal For Cherry Trees

Five Washington women's leaders last night in a Nation-wide hookup appealed to American voters to rally in a move to save the cherry trees which are to be cut down to make way for a Jefferson Memorial. They urged the voters to wire protests to President Roosevelt and members of Congress.

Speakers were Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, president, District Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Amos A. Fries, vice president, Children of the American Revolution; Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, president, Dames of the Loyal Legion; Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president, District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, past president, District Federation of Women's Clubs.

The program opposing the "downright vandalism" originated from WOL and was broadcast over 80 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Debaters Agree on How to Fight Fascism at Town Hall

Bliven, Mumford Agree Urge Arms for Spain No Plans on Reds

Scheduled to debate at the second Town Hall forum at the Shoreham Hotel on "How to Fight Fascism," Bruce Bliven, editor of the New Republic, and Lewis Mumford, one of the magazine's foremost contributors, found themselves last night in unexpected and almost perfect harmony.

Instead of debating their subject, they agreed:

That the policies of Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain should be condemned.

That the United States should lift its embargo on materials to loyalist Spain.

That the United States should open its doors to refugees from Germany.

That the United States should maintain a policy of isolation in the face of European disturbances.

In urging removal of the embargo, Bliven termed loyalist Spain "the spearhead of anti-Fascist forces throughout the world." He said the United States should demand that Great Britain follow a policy "not at cross purposes to our own" and that this country should transfer unfilled immigration quotas of other countries to permit large number of refugees from Germany to be admitted.

Bliven urged Mumford, if he desired to combat Fascism, to join him on committees to:

Help bring democracy to sharecroppers of the South.

Get constitutional rights for steel workers in Ohio.

Work for decent housing.

Keep down sentiment against bringing refugees from Germany into the United States.

Mumford urged nonintercourse with Fascist states coupled with relief for industries adversely affected by such a policy. He said the United States should "watch its own patches of Fascism" and should avoid militarism.

Asked from the audience how this Nation might cope with the threat of communism, Mumford said the question was too large for consideration at the moment. Bliven did not reply to a similar question.

Thanksgiving Is Theme in City Churches

Blessings Recounted Freedom Is Cited Dictators 'Addled'

Heralding the approach of Thanksgiving, many Washington churches yesterday devoted services to themes of prayer and praise, with "appreciation for the spiritual and material blessings of America" as the keynote.

Speaking from the Immaculate Church of the Conception, on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of Catholic University, declared:

"It may be the goodness of God in making you a resident of this country or the citizen of this Nation which grants you freedom of belief and worship and liberty of religious assembly, while God-forsaken and addle-brained dictators create governments where God is a criminal, worship is a crime, and criminal suppression of God-given rights becomes a virtue."

The Rev. Joseph Bradley gave the benediction at the service, over which the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra presided.

"We should be thankful that, in matters of religion, we have no 'Caesar' to tell us when we may or may not worship," commented the Rev. Clifford H. Jope from the pulpit of the Ninth Street Christian Church.

The Rev. Richard T. Scholl, pastor of the Gorusch Methodist Episcopal Church, Fourth and E streets southwest, emphasized the importance of a "spiritual thanksgiving every day in the year for our many blessings."

Trinity M.E. Marks 136th Anniversary

Speaking last night at the 136th anniversary celebration of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Fifth street and Seward Square southeast, Dr. G. Ellis Williams, presiding elder of the Washington District of the Methodist Episcopal Church, urged the congregation to "put on 'garments of understanding and sacrifice' in facing conditions in the world today, with brutality and persecution rampant."

Other features of the observance included an address in the morning by Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives; a talk before the young people's organization by Curtis Deily, and special music by John Steelman, the adult choir and others.

Trinity's first edifice was located at Fourth and E streets southeast, and in 1896 the present structure was built. Seven pastors, including the Rev. Mr. Ennis, have served since 1896.

Sudeten Anti-Nazi Flays Munich Pact

The Munich pact "has made way for a new gospel—that the brutal shall inherit the earth," Dr. Karl Deutsch, a Sudeten German Democrat, told the congregation of Foundry Methodist Church last night.

Dr. Deutsch has been on a speaking tour of the United States since the World Youth Conference at Vassar this summer to which he was a delegate from the Social Democratic Youth of Sudetenland.

Mr. Abbott Puts the Bard Into Musical Comedy

Converts 'Comedy of Errors' Into a Tune-Show
Arleen Whelan Pays Washington a Visit
This, That and the Other About the Theater

UNTIL now conspicuously absent from the current year's list of successful stage producers, the name of George Abbott finally leaps into the news with the announcement that "The Boys From Syracuse" will inaugurate Mr. Abbott's new season in the Alvin Theater, New York, on Wednesday night of this week.

BELL

"The Boys From Syracuse" is a bit unusual in that it converts Shakespeare into musical comedy. It is Mr. Abbott himself who has fashioned the book of the piece from Master Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors." The musical score is by those eminent tunesmiths, Rodgers and Hart. The item of authorship alone ought to be enough to insure a lively and melodious evening in the theater.

George Abbott possesses an almost unerring sense of what is needed to supply rapid-fire footlight entertainment, as witness his productions of "Boy Meets Girl," "Brother Rat," "Room Service," and "What a Life." Rodgers and Hart, of course, have brightened the airwaves with the tunes of such hits as "My Heart Stood Still," "Blue Moon," "A Connecticut Yankee," "I'd Rather Be Right," the current Broadway "smash," "I Married An Angel," and many more.

But the interest in "The Boys From Syracuse" extends beyond the structure of the frolic to its casting. Jimmy Savo, the wide-eyed pantaloon of vaudeville and a Washington favorite with his inimitable and inevitable "River Stay Away From My Door," and Teddy Hart, the pint-sized comedian of "Three Men on a Horse" and "Room Service," will play the two Dromios. The other set of twins will be enacted by Eddie Albert, who has carried his tremendous personal success in "Room Service" over to the screen in the Warner Brothers' picturization of that play, and Ronald Graham, whose identity seems to elude this column at the moment. To a remote Washington outpost, Jimmy Savo and Eddie Albert would seem to be enough, but Mr. Abbott has not stopped there.

Wynn Murray, bouncing comedienne of "Babes in Arms"—another Rodgers and Hart show, by the way—will play Luce, while the other leading feminine roles will be portrayed by Muriel Angelus, an English prima donna making her American debut in this production, and Marcy Westcott, heroine of last season's "Two Bouquets."

It is to be regretted that "The Boys From Syracuse" did not make the trek into New York City by way of Washington. We could use a musical comedy down here on E street.

First auditions for Washingtonians with "Secret Ambitions" to be entertainers will be held in the Earle Theater tomorrow night following the last regular performance. At that time Production Manager Harry Anger will review the local aspirants and select those who will be invited to appear on the Earle stage some time during the week of December 2. The breathless bulletin from the Warner Brothers offices states further that applications have poured in to "Secret Ambitions" at the Earle ever since announcement was made in the local press of the quest for resident talent. Singers, instrumentalists, dancers, novelty entertainers, a glee club and a ballet are among those who will be given auditions. But perhaps more important is the fact that there is still time to write that letter. Further auditions will be held in the near future. All that is necessary is to state what type of entertainment it is you wish to present, your present occupation and that you are 18 years of age, or older.

The Washington Variety Club is preening itself today—it remained in bed all day yesterday—in the consciousness that last Saturday night's fifth annual banquet and ball was the most effulgent affair in the series staged yearly by the local showmen.

With the main ballroom of the Willard Hotel packed to capacity with barkers, barkerettes and their guests, continuous entertainment was presented from 7:45 p. m. until midnight, with dancing to Jimmy Dorsey's swing orchestra, after that, until goodness knows when. Every act of note appearing in Washington's theaters and night clubs this week was on hand to do its bit, and some of those "bits" took on tremendous proportions—conspicuously Harriet Hoctor and her ballet; Chaney and Fox, dancers; The Fredysons, whose bounding gymnasticism seemed more startling in a ballroom than it had on the stage; the Radio Aces, songsters; the Three Wiere Brothers, in their marvelously timed eccentric dances; Sylvia Kaplowitz's Accordeonettes, with Bernadette Crouch as vocal soloist; George Byron, barytone; the Herberts, from the new Lounge Riviera, and The Roxyettes. Tony Wakeman, of WOL; Arch McDonald, of WJSV, and Johnny Perkins, comedian and official Variety factotum for this sort of thing, shared responsibilities and honors as masters of ceremonies, in the order named.

With Jimmy Dorsey's, Leon Brusiloff's, Sande Williams' and Ted Mills' orchestras doing the tooting and moaning in relays, there was no dirth of danceable music—and if you think there was any dirth of dancers, you ought to have got yourself out there and tried it.

Determination of the ownership of that LaSalle sedan was something else again. It went to a distant child of fortune resident in Winchester, Va.

He can make it now in less time than it took Sheridan!

The two best voices on the Variety program should be sources of pride to the National Capital. They were displayed by Bernadette Crouch, of Sylvia Kaplowitz' accordion ensemble, and George Byron, featured on this week's vaudeville bill at the Earle. Miss Crouch is the daughter of George A. Crouch, veteran executive of the Harry M. Crandall-Warner Brothers organization, and is endowed with a soprano voice that should lead to any artistic heights she may wish to attain. George Byron, also a Washingtonian, is paying his first professional visit to his home town after having been featured for seven years on both CBS and NBC network programs from New York. A graduate of Central High School, Byron was an NBC announcer here before going to New York. He has done much stage work, in addition to his radio appearances, and for a year played the juvenile lead in "New Faces." Several West Coast studios are said to be interested in his plan to make an early Hollywood invasion.

Speaking of Hollywood, another potential film star arrived in Washington yesterday for a visit of several days. She happened to be Arleen Whelan, the Twentieth Century-Fox starlette, who only a little over a year ago was a manicurist in a Hollywood hotel. In case you cannot immediately identify this attractive young woman, it was she who appeared with Warner Baxter and Freddie Bartholomew in "Kidnapped" and with Don Ameche in "Gateway."

This afternoon at 4 Manager Sam Wheeler, of the Twentieth Century-Fox interests in the Washington territory, will host it at a press cocktail party at the Variety Club, in the Willard Hotel, in Miss Whelan's honor.

And please don't begin calling in for addresses and telephone numbers, you autographiers. Miss Whelan is a house guest in the private home of friends while in Washington, and I don't know where or what number. So that's that—I hope.

Gertrude Lawrence, after all, will not rehearse a new play and give special matinee performances of it while still playing in an old one. She has relinquished the leading role in Lenore Coffee's new play of "The Birds Stop Singing," because she finds her present role of Susan, in "Susan and God," too demanding to permit her to undertake a "double-header," in a manner of speaking. This decision put an end to John Golden's plan to present Miss Lawrence in "The Birds Stop Singing" at special matinees in the Harris Theater, Chicago. The new play will be produced with another actress as soon as a suitable player for the part can be found. Miss Coffee has urged an immediate production and Miss Lawrence has withdrawn—much as she likes the new play—to facilitate that end. She will continue in "Susan and God" throughout the current season.

Buy-Call-the-Wagon Note.

Miss Coffee is a clever and a thoughtful playwright, but don't hand me any of that monkey-business about, "Yeah, she works the old beat!"

Gayety

CAREY'S REVUE." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical production in two acts and 25 scenes, featuring Bob Carney and Carrie Finnell, supported by Mimi Reed, Johnny Barry, Evelyn Brooks, Bill Crooks, Virginia Jones, Jack LaMont, Doris Weston and the Carney Twins. Dance numbers devised by Beverly Carr; staged by James A. Lahr. Reviewed Sunday matinee by Art Johns, B. C. A. A.

The Carney family, consisting of father Bob and his two talented and charming daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, and the personable Carrie Finnell prove the dominant factors in an entertaining attraction which the good Col. Lake is offering his patrons at the Gayety this week.

Bob Carney is a comedian infallible in his sense of humor and the manner in which it is presented. Assuming the master-of-ceremonies role in introducing the various scenes and numbers, Bob exhibits an attractive personality and a smile that go a long way in stamping him as a real artist. That Mr. Carney is proud of his two images is revealed in the fact that papa steps out of the limelight and lets Mary and Elizabeth deliver some excellent dance steps while he, a pretty good stepper himself, remains in the background and merely beams his fatherly approval.

Carrie Finnell, making her initial bow to local audiences, is one of the most unusual artists seen herely lately. Resembling the much loved Sophie Tucker and possessing the physical appearance of our own Kate Smith, Miss Finnell offers several songs and climaxes all this with some amazing dance routines that defy imitation.

Attractive Virginia Jones, shapely Doris Weston and the talented Mimi Reed complete the distaff portion of the bill. Miss Reed's interpretative dances prove a real highlight of the bill.

A local boy, Johnny "I'll kill 'em" Barry, assisted by Evelyn Brooks and Jack LaMont, is seen in several hilarious comedy skits, with the "Honeymoon Hotel" scene proving a laugh riot.

Bill Crooks offers some fitting songs, while the "ladies of the ensemble" dance through some worthwhile ballet numbers. The settings and lighting effects of this production and the wardrobe of the entire company are much above par.

Late Honeymoon

Shirley Ross and her new husband, Ken Dolan, are going to take a honeymoon starting late in November because of work in Miss Ross' latest picture, "Thanks for the Memory," in which she appears opposite Bob Hope.

Shannon discovered why, after the meeting. The entire group he was addressing had seen a Paramount short at their local movie—a short featuring Harry Shannon.

LOCAL NEWS: The Dorothy Thompson defense fund cabled $8,000 to Vincent de Moro Giafferi, the most famous criminal lawyer in France, who has agreed to defend Herschel Grynszpan . . . Peggy Fears walked out of her job at El Rio—because, she says, the showgirls wore nightgowns in one number . . . A bill will be introduced in the State Legislature to prevent prosecutors from hand-picking judges to try aces. Civil-court calendar practice will be applied in the criminal courts . . . Washington now expects Col. Lindbergh to ask the U. S. Government to supply helium to Germany . . . Olsen & Johnson have been signed for a radio program.

SOCIAL NOTES: The Broadway cafe owners whose licenses were suspended because their chorines sat with the customers after the show are seeking retaliation . . . A candid cameraman, attired in tails, now is visiting the swank spots which feature debutante singers and photographs the bluebloods while they sit with the Social Registered patrons.

ILLUSTRATED SECTION: Last week Vincent Astor's St. Regis Hotel was awarded a prize at the Hotel Show for the candied rosettes baked by the Italian chef . . . When the cameramen arrived to photograph the chef he was told to pose wearing his apron, white coat, and hat . . . The chef obliged—but the hotel's press agent called a halt, because on the lapel of that white coat was the mark of a swastika . . . "Yes, yes, I had it put there," the chef confessed. "Every week somebody'd steal my coat. So I had this mark put on—and now nobody wants it."

HELP WANTED: The Beech Nut Co. has been anxious to employ 25 couples who can walk on stilts to carry signs advertising its products . . . The search unearthed only three such couples, who assured that they were the only stilt-walking couples extant . . . "We need 22 more couples," Beech-Nut proposed. "We'll pay you to teach these other couples how to walk on stilts" . . . "Oh, no," was the answer. "Now we're only three—and we won't create competition."

In New Comedy

Edward Everett Horton and Franciska Gaal, importantly cast with Akim Tamiroff and Shirley Ross in Paramount's production of "Paris Honeymoon"

Little

That uniquely significant comedy, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," one of Frank Capra's outstanding screen creations, yesterday opened a return engagement at the Little Theater as chief film feature for the week. No picture comes readily to mind more worthy of repetition.

Adapted from a story by Clarence Budington Kelland, "Mr. Deeds" concerns itself with the metropolitan adventures of a young smalltowner who lies him to New York to take possession of a huge fortune bequeathed him by a departed relative. The uses to which he puts all that money causs those covetously interested in its disposition to bring charges of insanity against the young man in whose nature is such a strong vein of kindly humanitarianism. His lunacy trial marks the high point in the play's dramatic as well as comic development.

For this sterling bit of whimsy, adapted to the screen by Robert Riskin, Director Capra assembled an especially fine cast led by Gary Cooper, in the title role, and Jean Arthur, as Babe Bennett. Contributory roles of prime importance are played by such notables as George Bancroft, Lionel Stander, Douglas Dumbrille, Raymond Walburn, H. B. Warner, Margaret Matzenauer, Warren Hymer, Muriel Evans, Ruth Donnelly, Spencer Charters, Emma Dunn, Arthur Hoyt, John Wray, Jameson Thomas, Mayo Methot, Walter Catlett and Margaret Seddon, the Washington actress to be seen with Tallulah Bankhead in "I Am Different." There is something worth while for all to do and all do it well.

On this visit "Mr. Deeds," as usual, is surrounded by a selected group of short subjects, including a new type of newsreel, presented under the title of "Date-Line."

World News Features Bill At Trans-Lux

Nazis Condemned
Sports Rate High
Cartoon Is Funny

International problems fill the news at the Trans-Lux Theater this week. America, in no uncertain terms, through President Roosevelt, definitely condemns the Nazi terrorism. Ambassador Wilson is recalled from Germany, while all race lines are let down with the Rev. Cannon, of Fordham; Bishop Hughes, Herbert Hoover, Al Smith, Alfred Landon and Thomas E. Dewey speaking on the subject of Nazi persecution.

There are some fine shots of President Roosevelt at the Armistice Day services in Arlington Cemetery. Also we find Mme. Chiang Kai-shek as she supervises the evacuation of Hankow. Further into the 75-minutes of news comes such subjects as Col. Battista's visit to Washington, the royal air force flight from England to Egypt, the Kansas City oil blaze and the beatification of Mother Cabrini.

Football is well covered, as usual. Shots from the games presented include Michigan - Northwestern, Princeton-Yale, Notre Dame-Minnesota, Cornell-Dartmouth and Texas Christian-Texas University. Also in the line of sports are some exciting hockey shots and Olympic diving thrillers in an aquatic show at Palm Springs, Calif.

The shorts are exceptionally fine. The National Philharmonic Orchestra, 200 strong, with a large male chorus, do themselves proud with the rendition of Wagner's "Tannhatiser."

The travelogue is all about Africa, and there is also a drama, the "Bravest of the Brave."

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 20.—This is the third time Paramount has swung into "Hotel Imperial." First with Marlene Deitrich, who walked out; then Margaret Sullavan, who tripped and broke her arm; now Isa Miranda, who's going to be something of a sensation, unless I miss my guess. She's the third stellar name occupying her dressing room—Pola Negri and Clara Bow. The first three mornings she worked, she got to the studio at 3 a. m. After hair-do and makeup had been applied came an hour's ride to location and then she was doing rain, wind and mud scenes. And not one peep out of her. Rudolph Forster, one of the great actors of Europe gave up a French picture to play in "Hotel Imperial." The production number of the picture is 303. And the studio is giving three cheers because they waited for Isa.

HEDDA HOPPER

It's nearly always interesting to hear nice things about yourself. But Mary Boland wasn't so pleased to hear them the other day. After Halloween she discovered pranksters had taken her beautiful plants from around the fountain and dumped them into it. Mary, in a pair of slacks and sweater was out, bent over double, rescuing them. A sight-seeing bus stopped and the barker with a gift tongue yelled: "Here's the home of Mary Boland, the motion picture star who loves goldfish and each morning sends her maid out to feed them. There she is now." Needless to say, Mary remained in that unflattering position until the bus moved on.

When Metro made "The Great Waltz" they knew that "Gorgeous" Korjus possessed a voice but her audiences discovered she has sex appeal, too. It enguirs you almost as completely as the strains of Strauss. Now four pictures are being written for her. One is "Rozza Sandor"—but she'd rather do the life of Adelaide Patti, with Charles Boyer and Toscanini, playing himself. That girl's got taste as well as showmanship.

Walt Disney took his staff of 100 to a children's matinee. The cartoonists all went childish when they saw "Peter Pan" at the Ebell. As you know, Disney is now making that into a feature length picture. Wonder which character will ask, "Do you believe in fairies."

Twentieth-Century-Fox is coming to the rescue of the Los Angeles Zoo, which has been having money troubles lately. Twenty of the wild animals were used with "Charlie Chan in Honolulu"—an amusing idea of welcoming their new Chan.

The grandson of Frankiein, adorable 4-year-old Donnie Dunagan, was having bedtime stories read to him on the set at Universal the other day. Becoming bored he said: "I'm tired of this pap. Read me a bit of Freud."

Jane Withers's Sicilian donkey, Cactus, broke into the house the other day and her mother is not on the trail of Leo Carrillo, who gave her the beast. Any night now, Mrs. Withers says, she expects Jane will take him to bed with her.

Shirley Temple waited to greet "Believe It or Not" Ripley before relaxing at Palm Springs. I wonder if she gets extra salary for being the official greeter.

Simon Simone, in wiping out her Hollywood memories, has dyed her hair jet black.

I see that Connie Bennett gives Sam Goldwyn credit for discovering her at a fancy ball in New York. Has Connie forgotten "What's Wrong with Women?" which she made 16 years ago, while she was the dancing partner of Maurice at the old Knickerbocker Hotel at Broadway and 42nd Street?

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

Contest

THE FEDERAL DIARY wishes to anounce the opening of a contest which is aimed at finding the woman in the Government employ who is the most ideal civil servant.

The selection, to be on the basis of nominations sent The Post, will be made by a board of impartial judges sometime before the opening of National Civil Service Week, January 15-21.

Announcement of the award will be made at one of the public meetings held in connection with National Civil Service Week here. The person adjudged the most ideal civil servant will receive a loving cup, a gift of The Post.

The contest judges will be selected by the Civil Service Commission and the American Federation of Government Employes, which sponsors National Civil Service Week.

The winner will be accorded the designation of "Miss Civil Service," though the marital state will not be a consideration.

The candidates will be adjudged on the quality and performance of their service; their general adaptability to Federal work, and with personality as an element. Also, how the candidates have adapted themselves into the life of Washington, the interest they have taken in civic matters, will be considered by the judges. Briefly, decision will be made on how well each candidate matches up to being what expert judges believe to be the ideal for Federal employes.

Nominations may be made either by candidates or by their friends. These should be sent directly to the Federal Diary, care of the Washington Post, and should contain full information. The facts should bring out every possible point in favor of the subject. Wherever possible, include a photograph of the candidate.

Full information is imperative, because the judges will use this information in considering candidates for possible interview before a final selection is made.

The Federal Diary will, from time to time, carry excerpts from these sketches and will print pictures of the candidates, though not in cases which request otherwise.

It is emphasized that this is neither a beauty nor a personality contest. It is designed solely to find the most ideal feminine civil servant.

She must be employed in full-time Federal work in the District of Columbia; obviously she must have civil service status. The decision to be made by the judges will be accepted as final. No one associated with The Post will be a judge.

Nominations are invited at once. The closing date on nominations has been tentatively fixed for January 10. Announcement of the winner will not be made until the meeting during which the award is tendered.

While the American Federation of Government Employes sponsors National Civil Service Week here and is co-operating in the contest to the end that it will give time at one of the meetings for the award to be made, all Government employe organizations are cordially invited to participate in the contest. Those employes who are not affiliated with any organization are likewise urged to participate.

The contest is being held with the one motive of stimulating interest in National Civil Service Week and in the extension of the merit system in the Federal Government.

The subject of merit extension gained in the public eye enormously with the issuance of the Executive Orders of June 24. This move by the President extended civil service to approximately $1,000 previously exempt employes. Beyond this fact, is the additional legislation for merit extension which will be introduced in the forthcoming session of Congress.

Friends of the civil service think that every indication of public interest will have telling effect on the passage of the new legislation—will bring about a speedier abandonment of the spoils system to the advantage of good government.

So the contest opens with the view of stimulating interest in the civil service and with the view that some women can be singled out as an example to present and future Federal workers.

ICC Is Urged To Let Railroads Work Out Destiny

St. Louis, Nov. 20 (A).—A recommendation that the Nation's railroads be permitted to work out their own programs of consolidation "without interference of the Interstate Commerce Commission" was a major topic at the opening session of the Mississippi Valley Association convention here today.

"The present law is ineffective," declared Lachlan MacGlegy, executive vice president of the association, "as it requires the Interstate Commerce Commission to prescribe consolidation plans in advance, instead of permitting the rail lines to work out their own problems.

"Legislation should be enacted to permit the rail carriers to develop a program of consolidation, joint operations and pooling of traffic without interference of the commission, unless in the judgment of the commission the public interest is adversely affected."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, author of the resolution under which the committee was established; Senator Herring (Democrat), Iowa, is chairman of the committee and Senator Johnson (Democrat), Colorado, is a member.

"It is for the testimony to demonstrate," Vandenberg said in an interview, "whether some system by which industry shares its profits with labor can bring about improved labor conditions. Perhaps it can and possibly it cannot."

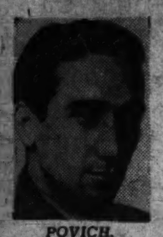
A Horse Poll

The All-American fever now appears to be thoroughly out of hand. It has spread to horse racing. Five hundred appointed experts are now being polled to determine the All-American team of thoroughbreds for 1938. Shortly they will announce their findings and name:



POVICH.

The outstanding horse of all ages.

Edgar G. Horn, enterprising editor of the Turf and Sports Digest, whose mother was frightened by a poll, according to one story, is the guiding light of the current poll taking. He is sounding out sentiment among the Nation's turf writers and the owners of the elected steeds will be presented with bronze plaques.

Unlike 1936 when War Admiral was figuratively thumbing his nose at the opposition in his wake, the turf this year has not produced an unbeaten 2-year-old in either the colts or fillies division. The closest to approach War Admiral's record is Smart Crack, the filly owned by T. P. Morhan and trained by E. L. Snyder.

Winnings Low

Smart Crack, a dark gray hide by Kiev-Wise Crack, has won six of its seven starts, but its record may not be tops in the 2-year-old filly division. Because Smart Crack, which started the year as a claiming race entry, has won only $9,820 in purses despite its six victories.

Apt to be rated above Smart Crack are both Cienca and Incoelda, the former a cohort filly owned by the King Ranch and trained by Maxie Hirsch, licked Smart Crack in the Autumn Days Stakes at Empire and has earned $8,580 in winning four of its 13 starts and finishing in the money 10 times.

Incoelda, by the good sire Inaco and owned by Herbert M. Woolf, is tops among the 2-year-old fillies in point of earnings with $30,565. She has to her credit the Arlington Lassie Stakes and a powerful race in the Selima Stakes in which she finished second by less than a length after being virtually left at the post.

Challedon Tops

Among the 2-year-old boy horses, the top ranking will undoubtedly go to W. L. Brann's Challedon, trained by Lou Schaefer. Challedon is tops among the 2-year-olds in purses won with $69,630, and he has finished first in four of his half dozen races. He won the Maryland Futurity at Laurel, the New England Futurity at Narragansett and the Pimlico Futurity at Pimlico, showing no partiality for any kind of a track.

Volitant is Challedon's closest challenger for 2-year-old colt honors, by Display and owned by the Saratoga Stable. Volitant also has four wins to show in his six starts, but they have earned him only $12,960. His best effort was his winning race in the Saratoga Sales Stakes. He finished second to El Chico in the Junior Champion Stakes, his rider claiming a foul which was disallowed.

It will not be surprising to discover that a filly has been nominated as the All-American 3-year-old. There are none among the boy horses in that age class which can match the record of Ed Friendly's Jacola, by Jacopo, and a granddaughter of Sir Galahad III.

Jacola Rates High

Jacola raced to fame at Laurel by beating the older Seabiscuit in the Laurel Stakes by 2½ lengths and setting a new mile record of 1:37 for the track. The filly failed to respond to training until September, but since then has compiled a brilliant record, winning the Maryland Handicap and the Washington Handicap in addition to the Laurel Stakes.

All-American honors would be no novelty for Jacola. In the 1937 poll conducted by Editor Horn, she was voted the outstanding 2-year-old filly of the season.

Second place among the 3-year-olds undoubtedly will go to Warren Wright's Bull Lea, the disappointment of the Kentucky Derby. Since that dismal race, the son of Bull Dog has won seven of his 16 starts and earned $39,575. He beat Menow twice at Keenland, was second to Stagehand at Narragansett Special and won the Autumn Stakes and the Pimlico Handicap.

Which brings us down to the older-horses division, and for that honor there are only two contenders. And who do you like? War Admiral or Seabiscuit?

Personally, I thought that match race at Pimlico settled that debate, huh?

JOEY ARCHIBALD

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Another 3-to-1 favorite goes to the post tonight at the arena in the cherubic person of Joey Archibald, featherweight champion of New York, who boxes Paul Lee in the ten-round feature, but a wary audience will hesitate before nibbling at those juicy odds.

By all the rules Master Archibald should punch Master Lee all out of proportion, but the fine disregard for rules evidenced by underdogs in the last few bouts has the experts guessing. Yucatan Kid's defeat last week, and that of Tommy Rawson the week before has filled the sporting gentry with a profound respect for the underdog, and they'll hesitate before laying out the lettuce tonight.

On paper Archibald looks well nigh invincible against Lee, for the Providence pug returns to the scene of his most brilliant triumphs boasting a record of 14 consecutive victories. This will be the choirboy's initial appearance in any ring since annexing the 126-pound crown in a bout with Mike Belloise, at New York, and the first of a series

Arrows' Touchdown Looks 'Suspicious'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20.—Alternately playing football and clowning for the benefit of 6,000 Richmond fans, Washington's Redskins nosed out the Richmond Arrows, 51 to 6, in an exhibition game this afternoon.

Scoring two touchdowns before the first five minutes had elapsed, the Redskins toyed with their Dixie League opposition and proceeded to stage a show. They executed such dazzling maneuvers as a pass play from Baugh to Milliner to Baugh; they worked the hidden-ball trick, and they lateral-passed to Tackle Turk Edwards and Guard Lee Olsson.

The Arrows came up with a suspicious-looking touchdown in the fourth quarter to avert a shutout. With the Redskins holding a 44-0 lead, Sammy Baugh tossed a pass into a clump of Richmonders and Allen Keen returned it 30 yards to a touchdown.

Jay Turner's slightly sprained ankle was the lone injury of the game.

First quarter (14 points)—Frank Filchock broke around right end from the 1-yard line for the first goal. George Karamatic broke loose from the Arrow's 39-yard line on a touchdown gallop two minutes later.

Second quarter (17 points)—Sammy Baugh faked a pass and crossed the goal standing up on a 5-yard plunge. Tillie Manton kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line. Bill Hartman passed to Hal Bradley for 5 yards and a touchdown.

Third quarter (10 points)—Tillie Manton kicked a field goal from the 28-yard line. Center Vic Carroll, playing in the backfield, took the ball on a reverse and galloped 20 yards around end for a touchdown.

Fourth quarter (10 points)—Don Irwin place kicked a field goal from 30-yard-line. Bill Hartman flipped a pass to Wayne Milliner who sprinted 40 yards to the goal on a play that covered 61 yards.

Giants Beat Packers, 15-3; 'Tuffy' Stars

Scores on 75-Yd. Run

Hein Sprints 50 to 2d

Green Bay Wilts

48,279 See Game

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Tuffy Leemans, the loose-hipped running back of the Giants, broke away on a 75-yard touchdown gallop that overwhelmed the Green Bay Packers today. After that run the New Yorkers went on to win, 15 to 3, and solidify their position at the head of the National Pro League's Eastern division.

The Packers had pushed the Giants all over the field in the first half and were leading, 3 to 2, as a result of Paul Engebretsen's 21-yard field goal, when Leemans went to work in the third period. The 48,279 fans in the Polo Grounds went absolutely mad when Tuffy went to work.

Poole Blocks Isbell

First he caught Engebretsen's try for a second field goal on the Giants' 2 and dashed up to the 25. On the first play he started through his own right tackle as Nello Falaschi, the blocker, erased Wayland Becker.

Leemans cut to his left as Jim Poole blocked out Cecil Isbell, swung back and shot into the clear. No one else gave him any trouble. He ran over without another Packer taking a shot at him.

Ward Cuff calmly place-kicked conversion and the game was in.

The defeat in their final regular-season game cost the Packers a chance to clinch the Western division title. They have won eight games and lost three. The Detroit Lions, who defeated the Chicago Cardinals for their sixth victory in nine starts, have two games to play. The Giants, who also have two to go, can be beaten out only by the Washington Redskins in the Eastern division.

Mel Hein, who played 57 minutes of great center for the New Yorkers, added the second New York touchdown early in the fourth quarter. Arnold Herber, standing on his own 45, drove a pass to the flat. Hein gauged the ball perfectly, took it off Hinkle's fingers and dashed 50 yards for the touchdown, aided by expert blocking by Frank Cope, who knocked the last Packer defender galley-west.

Packers Outplay Giants

That ended the Giant outburst. It was all the more surprising because the Packers had all but knocked the Giants' brains out in the first half.

Once they had driven to the 25 with their fast-breaking, off-tackle stuff and Cecil Isbell's great running on an in-and-out maneuver eating up the yardage. This march was stopped when Hanken intercepted a fourth-down pass. Again in the second period they went to the 10, where Hinkle's try for a field goal was off.

They made threatening gestures all through the second period and no one was prepared for the Giants third-quarter surge.

They got their first 2 points when Hinkle dropped Cuff's kickoff on his 2, picked it up and ran back over the goal line. When he cut to run back, Johnny Dell Isola, Cuff

Karamatic Wins Exhibition Race

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20.—The Redskins triumphed today before the opening whistle sounded for their exhibition game with the Richmond Arrows.

Fullback George Karamatic proved the fastest of ten selected printers by winning a 60-yard dash by a full stride from Ed Justice, of the Redskins, who finished second. Karamatic ran the distance in football regalia in 5.8 seconds.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh justified his pregame notice by winning the forward passing competition from the 25-yard line. Baugh sent a pass through an automobile tire suspended from the crossbar two times in three attempts.

Maniaci Is Star

Parker Sparks Drive

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, Nov. 20.—The Chicago Bears wrecked the Brooklyn Dodgers' slender chance for Eastern honors in the National Professional Football League with a 24-to-6 shellacking today.

The Bears prowled ferociously and none was more ferocious than Joe Maniaci, a former Fordham flash who played with the Dodgers before being traded to Chicago.

Greeted by scattered boos from a crowd of 26,000 when he replaced Jack Manders in the second period, Maniaci scored 10 points in 12 minutes. He booted a placement field goal from the 15-yard line, circled left end 18 yards for a touchdown to cap a 90-yard march, and kicked the extra point.

An 18-yard pass from Ray Buivid to George Wilson brought the Bears' first touchdown. The final touchdown was made on a pass from Bernie Masterson to Bill Conkright after Sam Francis made 53 yards to the 1-yard line in five thrusts.

Brooklyn's score in the last minute of the first half was engineered by Ace Parker, who passed and ran most of the 80 yards the drive carried. The climax was a 7-yard toss to Perry Schwartz.

Beat Pirates, 14 to 7

White Goes Over

Makes 75-Yd. Run

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 20.—The combined efforts of Dave Smukler, Bill Hewitt and Dick Riffle outweighed the individual brilliance of Whizzer White today and the Philadelphia Eagles almost clinched fourth place in the National Pro League by downing the Pittsburgh Pirates 14 to 7.

WHITE

The Eagles put across a touchdown early in the first quarter, due largely to a poor kickoff by Niccolai at the start of the game. They threatened again before the half was up, and so did the Pirates, but there was no further scoring until White reeled off his breath taking run.

After Mortell's punt was returned by Fiske from the Pirates' 15-yard line to the 21-yard marker in the third period, the Whizzer slipped over left tackle, ran over to the sidelines and then cut back to the center of the field to continue the run untouched.

The Pirates, inspired by White's run, went to work after that and held the Eagles in check until the fourth.

Then the Quakers paid off. With the ball on the Philadelphia 32, after an exchange of punts, Riffle drove over center for 3 yards and then wiggled through right tackle on a delayed buck for 54 yards.

Cards Tally First

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Detroit's Lions kept alive their chances of tying Green Bay for the Western Division championship of the National Professional Football League by defeating the Chicago Cardinals, 7 to 3, today as the Packers bowed to New York, 15 to 3, in their Western finale.

The Lions can tie Green Bay at eight victories and three defeats each by conquering Chicago's Bears and Philadelphia in their closing games.

Detroit came from behind to triumph, although all scoring was in the opening quarter. After a long pass to Buddy Parker had placed the Cards deep in Lion territory, three plays failed to make necessary first down yardage and Bill Smith place-kicked a field goal from the 24-yard line.

The lead lasted only 5 minutes, for the Lions received the kickoff on their 30 and marched to a touchdown in five plays, Jim Moscrip taking a pass from Vern Hoffman and going over for the touchdown. Moscrip also added the point.

The Lions reached the 4-yard line in the second period and the 3-yard in the third, but were halted. The Cards' only other threat came in the last period, but a fumble stopped the advance at the Lions' 28.

Kasunich Scores Both Touchdowns

End Tallies on Passes

Vidnovic Throws One

Fiorellino the Other

Cairo Kicks Points

Special Dispatch to The Post

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20.—Co-ordinating their running and passing game for two swift drives in the third period, Catholic University's Cardinals defeated Loyola University, 14 to 0, today in the Wolfpack's final game of the season. It was Catholic's third straight victory and its fifth of the season.

Threatening constantly in the first half, the Cards got going in the third quarter with two touchdown passes which climaxed drives of 63 and 34 yards. John Fioreino passed 17 yards to Capt. John Kasunich for the first score and Burke Vidnovic tossed a 26-yard aerial to the same end for the second score not many minutes later. Frank Cairo, called in after the first touchdown, kicked both points from placement.

Loyola was on defense during the first three periods but made the game interesting with two drives in the last quarter against second-stringers, one ending on the 3-yard line and the other on the 19.

Cards Lead in First Downs

First downs were ten to seven in favor of the Cardinals. All but two of Loyola's first downs were made during the final period against the Card reserves.

Except for an interception of a Catholic U. pass that gave Loyola the ball on the Cardinals' 35-yard line late in the first quarter, the entire first half was played in Loyola territory with Catholic U. showing what little offensive football there was in these periods.

First downs at the end of the second period favored C. U. four to one, with the Cardinals making five forays deep into Loyola territory, going down to the 25 and 23 in the first quarter and to the 31, 11 and 21 in the second period.

Catholic U.'s running game, geared by Bert Vidnovic and Henry Brostek, functioned well in these drives, but the aerial game the visitors unleashed when in scoring territory proved futile. They threw 11 passes and completed only one in the first two periods, that for 12 yards from Vidnovic to End Lou Shine, giving them the initial first down of the game on Loyola's 25-yard line.

Loyola Threat Halted

At this point Vidnovic gained 2 yards at left tackle and then threw three incomplete passes, with the ball going over to the Wolfpack. Shortly afterward, Kline Weatherford, Loyola center, intercepted Vidnovic's pass on the Cards' 45 and ran it up to the 40, where he lateraled to Halfback Ed Bordes, who was finally downed on the 35-yard line.

Loyola rushed the ball to Catholic's 28 for its deepest penetration of the first half, but Bordes fumbled and Shine recovered for Catholic on the 36 as the first quarter ended.

Runs of 19 yards by Brostek and 5 and 9 by Vidnovic brought the ball from Catholic's 36 to Loyola's 31, but the Wolfpack dug in and forced Vidnovic to punt out of bounds on the 18.

Loyola came up with its first down at the opening of the half, but then Joe Frecchia's third-down punt was blocked out of bounds by Substitute End Miller on the Loyola 28 and the Cards were dangerous again.

Matukaitis and Vidnovic punched the ball to the 11-yard line, where Loyola finally took it after a futile fourth-down pass from Vidnovic to Brostek.

Sachon Intercepts

With time running out Loyola tried a pass which was intercepted by Substitute Back Sachon, and the Cards, with Vidnovic throwing, failed in three aerials.

John Matukaitis, hard-plunging fullback, and Henry Brostek smashed the Wolfpack line to pieces, setting up the first touchdown in the third quarter. Brostek smashed the line for 4 yards and then Matukaitis got loose over right tackle for 35 yards to the Loyola 25. Brostek came right back with a smash through the middle that carried the ball to the 7-yard line.

Two plays by Brostek lost 10 yards as Loyola's right end, Joe Magadan, smashed through, but on third down Fierellino faded and tossed Capt. Kasunich in the end zone. Cairo, sent into place-kick, was perfect at the try.

An interception set up the second score. Vidnovic dragged down a Loyola pass on the 34, and the Cards were off again. Vidnovic and Matukaitis smashed to the 26 on two plays and then Vidnovic sent a long one to Kasunich in the end zone. The Card captain caught the ball in the clear on a dead run. Cairo again converted.

Catholic U.'s reserves were sent in at the start of the fourth quarter and Loyola drove down field with Halfback Russ Freel and Substitute Halfback George Fonseca making most of the gains. The Wolves made three first downs in the drive, but Freel's fourth-down fumble gave the Cards the ball on their own 8.

Baugh Rates T. C. U., Irish Equal at Top of Nation's First 10 Teams

By "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh,

Forward Passing Champion, National Football League.

Surveying the situation after last week-end's battles, there appear to be two stand-out football teams in the country. They are, of course, Notre Dame and Texas Christian U., my alma mater.

I rank that pair on a par, and a bit later I'll attempt to explain why. But whether you agree or not, here is the manner in which I rate the first ten college teams for 1938 as the season nears a close.

1—Notre Dame
1—Texas Christian
3—Tennessee
4—Duke
5—Carnegie
6—Pittsburgh
7—Oklahoma
8—California
9—Southern California
10—Holy Cross

Last week, I was willing to admit that Notre Dame should be ranked ahead of T. C. U. despite the fact that both were untied and unbeaten. The Irish had just galloped to an impressive 19-0 victory over Minnesota. That victory apparently dissipated all doubt that the Irish were a truly great ball team.

But I believe Notre Dame has lost caste over the week-end. It's 9-7 victory over Northwestern was a squeaky sort of affair, coming as it did by an intercepted pass and a third-quarter field goal. And the Wildcats scored their touchdown by marching through the middle of the Notre Dame line. Northwestern is the team, incidentally, against which Wisconsin ran up 20 points.

Texas Christian, I admit, has not been asked to meet the stiff schedule that Notre Dame has taken on, but the T. C. U. opposition has been by no means weak. They are playing in a fast league when they meet such as Arkansas, Temple, Texas A. and M., Marquette and Rice, and the T. C. U. scores have been very impressive. They have averaged 26 points a game for their nine games, compared to Notre Dame's 16.

As I see it, the Notre Dame T. C. U. debate will not be settled until after next week when the two teams play their final games of the season. T. C. U. meets Southern Methodist and the Irish play Southern California. If Notre Dame gets by that one impressively, it should rate as the top team in the country.

I rate Duke no better than fourth despite the fact the Blue Devils are not only unbeaten or untied, but unscored on. The Dukes have not played a schedule to compare with that of Tennessee which I rate third. Tennessee can show victories over L. S. U., Vanderbilt, Auburn and Clemson.

Despite the tendency to rate Pittsburgh as the outstanding team in the East, I like Carnegie Tech for that honor. Still fresh in my memory is Carnegie's 20-10 defeat of Pitt. Those two teams, however, are the stand-out clubs in the East, with Holy Cross the only other Eastern team that deserves a high ranking. Dartmouth's bubble burst last week when it was handed its first defeat by Cornell.

Oklahoma is the undisputed champion of the corn belt with its untied-unbeaten record. The Sooners in winning their first four games from Rice, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska, allowed only six points, and their goal line has been crossed only twice in eleven games this season.

On the coast it is a muddled situation with the teams taking turns beating each other, but I rate California as the best of the lot despite its beating by Southern California. The Trojans' defeats by Alabama and Washington have seemingly knocked them out of first consideration.

Three Big Stakes Remain as Maryland's Racing Season Nears Close

Marshall Back Tops East Scorers

Elkins Has 90 Points F. and M. Back Is 2d Cassiano Gains

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Everett Elkins, of Marshall College, has just about clinched individual scoring honors for the Eastern football season of 1938. Elkins scored only one touchdown, his fifteenth of the season, against Ohio University Saturday, but none of his leading rivals could do that much.

After nine games Elkins has scored 90 points and he has one more game to play. His closest rival, Sammy Roeder, of Franklin and Marshall, has 79 points from eleven touchdowns and 13 extra points, while Ray McLean, of St. Anselm, and Seni, of St. Vincent, remained tied for third with 72 points each. McLean already has concluded his campaign.

Biggest week-end gain was registered by Dick Cassiano, of Pitt, who tallied 18 points to tie Jack Morlock, of Marshall, for fifth place at 66 points.

Elkins' 15 touchdowns easily gave him the lead in that department of point-getting, while Frank Huffman, of Marshall, and Bill Daddio, of Pitt, continued to share kicking honors. Huffman has made 19 points after touchdowns, and Daddio 17 of the extra points and two field goals.

Heurich Names Tentative Line-up

The starting order that will open the American Basketball League season of Washington's Heurich Brewers against Philadephia Sphas in Philadelphia Saturday night was tentatively named by General Manager Bob McDonald last night.

Though subject to revision, the line-up expected to start for Heurich follows: Mickey Schonfeld and Whitey Wilson, forwards; Ed Kweller, center, and Ed Hargaden and Arthur Zahn, guards.

Capt. Ralph Bennie, Ben Goldfadden and George Frelicher probably will be held in reserve at the game's start, but appear destined to see plenty of service as play progresses.

Stars Seeking $5,000 TopsHolidayProgram 37 Horses Eligible Endurance on Sat.

By Walter Haight.

The last full week of Maryland's fall racing season gets under way today at Bowie with the $1,200 added Milestown Handicap featuring the wash day program. With this modest start, the week will bring a pair of $5,000 stakes. On Thursday, horses of all ages will compete in the Thomas K. Lynch Memorial Handicap. On Saturday, the main show will be turned over to 2-year-olds in the annual running of The Endurance. With these tests out of the way, Bowie will have only one big race remaining. The Bryan-O'Hara Memorial with $10,000 added, on the closing day of the meeting.

The Lynch, topping the Thanksgiving Day show, was named in honor of the late Bowie official who was one of the first to make the charts that are now the basis of our past performances. A field of about ten is expected to face the barrier in the battle of a mile and a sixteenth. Most prominent of the 37 nominations are those of Edward Friendly's Jacola, winner over Seabiscuit, and Mrs. Louise Dian's Conquer, victor in five straight Maryland races and a party to last Saturday's dead heat with Honey Cloud in the Prince Georges Autumn Handicap.

Honey Cloud Absent

Unfortunately, Honey Cloud was not named for The Lynch. However, Jacola, Conquer, Aethelwold, Chanceview, Mr. Canron and others are primed for the struggle which promises to be a worthy holiday event.

Mrs. B. Franzheim's sensational 2-year-old Xalapa Clown and Donaldson's Christmas' Solvit head the list of 25 eligibles for the Endurance.

Xalapa Clown, 2-year-old black son of Eternal and Loma Linda displayed sensational form at the recent Aqueduct, N. Y., meeting when, with 116 pounds up, he raced five-eighths of a mile in :58 3-5. Back of Trainer A. C. Dettwiler's charge that day were Skyflier, Dr. Whinny, Cross Question, Temulac, Off Guard, Patapsco, Fast Flight, Felsun, Saxonian, Lynxholm and Marriage in the order named.

List of Eligibles

The official list of Endurance Handicap eligibles are A. C. Bostwick's Fictitious, W. L. Brann's Bi Play, Donelson Christmas' Solvit and Lady Solace; A. C. Michigan Gets Three Honor Posts On All-Star Big Ten Football Team

Pick Two Sophs And Three Juniors A Nice Outfit

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The most "youthful" Western conference honor team in recent years, the 1938 all-big ten football eleven was chosen by conference coaches today for the Associated Press.

Two sophomores and three juniors were awarded places on the mythical eleven, with the Mentors rounding out their all-star aggregation with veterans who were standouts over three seasons of varsity competition. The result was a team which possesses speed, weight and ranginess, a rugged defense and high scoring potentialities.

Michigan's strong team gained three places to lead all schools in representation on the team, the coaches elevating two of Michigan's sophomore stars to first team awards. They were Tom Harmon, halfback, and Forest Evashevski, quarterback. The veteran guard, Ralph Heikkinen, was a third Wolverine choice. Wisconsin and Purdue each placed two men, with Northwestern, Indiana, Minnesota and Iowa each placing one player.

Diehl at End

The end positions went to Cleo Diehl, of Northwestern, and Erwin Prasse, of Iowa. The latter just nosed out George Nash, of Minnesota, who placed on the second team, as did his teammate, John Mariucci. Bob Haak, of Indiana, and Joe Mihal, of Purdue, were placed at the tackle posts, with Bob Voights, of Northwestern, just missing first team selection.

Heikkinen's running mate at the other guard position is Francis Twedell, of Minnesota, the only repeater from 1937, in which year he was the only junior on a team which numbered ten seniors. Both Heikkinen and Twedell were standout choices, with Heikkinen getting seven first team votes.

The center position race was closely contested, with the award going to Jack Murray, Wisconsin's brilliant junior, over John Haman, Northwestern. They tied in total votes, but Murray won the position because of more first team ballots than his Wildcat opponent.

Brock Is Chosen

Evashevski, Michigan's great blocking quarterback, edged out Vince Gavre of Wisconsin for the signal-calling job by a single vote. Both ran far ahead of the field in that position. Lou Brock, Purdue's speedster, polled seven first team ballots to easily clinch a halfback post, with Harmon right at his heels. Wilbur Moore of Minnesota easily gained a halfback post on the second team, with Roy Bellin of Wisconsin taking the other halfback spot in a close race with Bernie Jefferson, Northwestern's Negro star.

There wasn't any doubt about the first team fullback once the votes started coming in. Howard Weiss, Wisconsin's line smashing ace, ran away with that contest, receiving eight first team votes, the high total of the selection.

Several coaches picked the Evashevski-Brock-Harmon Weiss backfield, and pointed out that a team with those players would be the coaches "dream" offensive combination, possessing especial ruggedness to carry through a strenuous schedule. Evashevski and Harmon in their first season, stamped themselves as great blockers. Weiss' durability has been proved, with both Harmon and Brock contributing the speed for "breakaway" plays.

Pittsburgh-Duke, Army-Navy Games Head Week's Card

Duke Risks Unscored-on Record at Durham Tennessee Would Break Kentucky Jinx

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—With five major championship issues settled and three others brought nearer to conclusion, the 1938 college football campaign today headed into its final week of general Nation-wide competition—a week which will find such Thanksgiving Day fixtures as Tennessee-Kentucky, Alabama-Vanderbilt and Pennsylvania-Cornell sharing the headlines with a Saturday card topped by the annual Army-Navy service duel and unscored-on Duke's battle with Pittsburgh.

The titles won and lost in yesterday's gridiron battles were:

Big Six, by unbeaten-untied Oklahoma in its 10-0 defeat of Iowa State.

Big Three, by Harvard in its water-logged 7-0 conkuest of Yale.

Southern Conference, by Duke in a 7-0 decision over rugged North Carolina State.

Rocky Mountain Big Seven, by unbeaten but twice-tied Utah in its 39-0 rough-riding over Wyoming.

Gophers Easy Winners

Minnesota, ruining Wisconsin's hopes for its first Big Ten title since 1912 for the second time in ten years, won all the way. With Larry Buhler, George Franck and Marty Christiansen attending to the scoring, Bernie Bierman's boys threw up such an effective defense that the Badgers staged only one threatening march, to the 6-yard line, and saw that sally's back broken by a pass interception.

Meanwhile Michigan, completing its first season under Fritz Crisler with six victories, a one-point defeat by Minnesota and a tie, cleared the Gophers' way to exclusive occupancy of the conference throne by handing Ohio State its most thorough defeat in the five years Coach Francis Schmidt has presided at Columbus. With Sophomore Tom Harmon the offensive star and behind a line that only once permitted the Buckeyes to penetrate to the 20-yard line, the Wolverines effectively ended a jinx that had seen them shutout for the last four years of this rivalry.

Oklahoma Pressed

But if Minnesota and Utah found their climax games unexpectedly easy, the three other championship winners travelled a rockier road. Yale, which played eleven men without a substitution for almost three periods, finally was worn down by one brilliant 80-yard Harvard march; Duke, with Eric (The Red) Tipton rushing for 33 yards and passing for the other 13 in its 46-yard touchdown drive, had to call out its line regulars to stop N. C. State for no gain twice, first on the 7 and again on the 20, and Oklahoma, showing unexpected skill with a flanker pass, needed all of that skill to subdue an Iowa State team whose line played the vaunted Sooner forwards to a standstill.

Surviving in the all-winning class with Duke and Oklahoma were Notre Dame, Texas Christian, Georgetown and Texas Tech.

The Irish, in gaining their eighth straight victory over typically tough Northwestern by 9-7, uncovered a new backfield star in Willard Hofer, 22-year-old second-stringer who accounted for all nine points with a 65-yard runback of an intercepted pass and a 30-yard field goal. Only Southern California, to be met December 3 at Los Angeles, now stands between Elmer Layden's crew and its claim to the ever-mythical national championship.

T. C. U. Awaits S. M. U.

T. C. U., with Davey O'Brien at his absolute best, turned in a 29-7 rout of Rice and now moves on to a Saturday meeting with Southern Methodist, 21-6 conqueror of Baylor, that probably will decide the Southwest Conference championship. O'Brien's 12 completed passes of 20 attempts went for 117 yards and three touchdowns (he scored the fourth himself); he picked up 108 yards in 14 rushes, ran back five punts for 73 yards, converted three extra points and played 57 of the 60 minutes. It was by all odds the day's, and possibly the season's, best individual performance.

Georgetown, only major Eastern team to finish the season with a perfect record, came close to having it marred by previously unimpressive Maryland. The Hoyas won, 14-7, but had to overcome a 7-6 deficit. Texas Tech, its record threatened to be marred by a tie, scored 10 points in the last 40 seconds of play on a field goal and 70-yard runback of an intercepted pass, both by Jodie Marek, to top New Mexico, 17-7.

Villanova vs. Manhattan

As Iowa State dropped out of the unbeaten but tied group, Villanova prepared for its Thursday finale with Manhattan, 13-0 winner over West Virginia, by running all over Boston U., 39-6, and Boston College, despite a 238-52 edge in yardage, was held to a scoreless tie, its second deadlock of the season, by little St. Anselm's.

On the Pacific Coast California, beating Stanford, 6-0, after recovering a last-period fumble deep in Indian territory, moved into temporary possession of the conference lead. The Bears are assured of at least a tie for the title, and will claim it and the right to go into the Rose Bowl again unless Southern California whips U. S. L. A. Thursday. The coast also contributed one of the day's few surprises as Jim Nicholson, of Oregon, headed a drive from his own 23 to Washington's 4-yard line, where he booted a field goal to down the Huskies, 3-0.

Tenn. Would End Jinx

In the South, where Tennessee stakes its perfect slate against the Kentucky hoodoo on Turkey Day, a Florida defense featuring End Tom Walker played Georgia Tech to a scoreless tie; Auburn came back from a 13-14 deficit to trip Georgia, 23-14; Tulane and Louisiana State breezed past Sewanee and Southwestern Louisiana Institute; Weenie Bynum sparked Centenary's 48-0 rout of DePaul; a kick blocked by Bill Little gave Southwestern (Tenn.) a 7-3 decision over Mississippi State, which bottled up high-scoring Gaylon Smith, and V. M. I. nosed out Roanoke, 6-0.

In the mud, muck and mire of Eastern gridirons Walt Zimdahl scored both touchdowns and Capt. Jim Bruett kicked the deciding extra point as Syracuse downed Columbia, 13-12; Army's line, with Bob Little the star, was the deciding factor in a 19-7 walloping of Princeton that proved the Cadets were in fine shape for the Navy game; a 63-yard "Rockne Run" and a blocked kick gave Fordham a 13-0 triumph over South Carolina; Pittsburgh's Dick Cassiano romped to three touchdowns as the Panthers warmed up for Duke with a 26-0 pasting of Penn State; Bill Lane's fine punting opened the way to Bucknell's 16-0 defeat of George Washington, and Sub Sammy Moyer ran 35 yards to an early score to give Lafayette a 6-0 triumph over Lehigh.

But Archibald picked no setup when he signed to meet Lee, for the Tennessee wildman is a better-than-average ringman. We have dwelt on his unorthodox tactics before, and this angle seems to be the one pointing to a Lee victory. In a stand-up match, boxing or slugging, Archibald undoubtedly would put the snore on the half-pint hillbilly, but this isn't going to be a stand-up match if Lee can help it.

Paul does everything but kick 'em. Archibald will find himself boxing a veritable Jekyl-Hyde, for if he solves one stance Lee is certain to shift to another. He'll stand up like the old timers in picturesque poses, crouch and weave a la Dempsey, and even crawl to get in a clean shot. And that's another point. He takes a good punch, and is willing to exchange one for the privilege of a sock at the enemy. Archibald may be surprised to land one flush on the button and find Lee still coming at him rather than dropping.

Lee is the "hungry" fighter of this bout, with everything to gain and nothing to lose. He has long contended that he is Archibald's master but never had the pleasure of meeting him before. Tonight's engagement affords him an opportunity of making good on the boast, and if he should win there are more lucrative assignments awaiting him. Lee will have the advantage of at least a three-pound pull in weights, for he has guaranteed to come in over 128, while Archibald probably will make 126.

All things considered, it figures to be one of the best of the early season matches pitting a polished, cagey ring master, Archibald, against a smart, enthusiastic, albeit a trifle crude, tradesman. It may end in a knockout, but if so, the victor will have a faint recollection, at least, of having been in a disorderly rumpus.

Archibald also has announced that this afternoon he will challenge Leo Rodak, the National Boxing Association's No. 1 featherweight, to a 15-round bout for the undisputed championship of the world. The challenge will be deposited with Heine Miller at the District Boxing Commission, and Joey, according to reports, will meet Rodak any time, place and under any conditions specified by the N. B. A.

Tonight's supporting card, which will have difficulty matching last week's preliminaries, holds promise of some sizzling bouts, what with Chester Ruby and Eddie Saugstad meeting in a six; and Charley Gilley and George de L

District College Grid Season Ends With 3 Games This Week

The Punch Line

By Lewis P. Atchison

We Protest

Word that Al Weill, manager of Joey Archibald, wants the Police Boys Club to sponsor a bout next spring between his fighter and Leo Rodak, the National Boxing Association's No. 1 ranking featherweight, for the featherweight championship of the world stirs this department to protest.

ATCHISON.

According to advance and reliable information, Weill will accept the N. B. A.'s ultimatum to box Rodak for undisputed recognition as champion this afternoon when Archibald weighs in for tonight's bout with Paul Lee. Then, it is said, he will suggest to Maj. Ernest W. Brown that the Boys Club promote the fight in May.

That suggestion has a slightly brass tinkle. To begin with, the Police Boys Club has no business promoting professional boxing shows. The organization was founded for a different and far nobler purpose, and while we do not question the sincerity and enthusiasm of club officials in using this means of raising funds, we do question their right in the promotional field.

Has Advantage

Maj. Brown, as chairman of the District Boxing Commission and superintendent of police, has an unfair advantage over the average promoter which is not befitting his office to exercise. First, he can ask the promoter to yield any date he, the Major, deems best suited for the Police Show, and ask the promoter to temporarily close up shop several weeks in advance to insure favorable publicity for the show. Secondly, he can put tickets in the hands of all policemen, and feel assured that they will sell at least two each.

Now, it is only logical to presume that a promoter with even a modicum of intelligence will grant the Major's request for any date on the calendar, when said promoter must do business with him 52 weeks in the year and needs his friendship and help. As for the second item, it isn't sporting or fair to make ticket sellers out of policemen when the average promoter has only one box-office and a staff of two to handle his ducats. With policemen peddling pasteboards Goldie Ahearn vs. Syd Fischel would be a sell-out. But this is merely incidental, and beside the point.

Against the Law?

The main argument boils down to this, that the boxing commission, through Maj. Brown, Secretary Heine Miller and the Police Boys Clubs, is stifling the game it was organized to govern and foster. There is nothing in the law legalizing boxing in Washington that authorizes any of the aforementioned to promote shows. Both Maj. Brown and Miller have been actively identified with past Police Club Shows, and that is strictly against the law.

Fifty-two weeks in the year the only fistic firm in town gambles on the elements, the fancy of the fans, the whims of fighters and the caprices of their managers to keep the game alive in Washington. It is up to its neck in red ink for the current year, and prospects for the immediate future are not flattering. The partnership of Turner and Ahearn has struggled through good times and bad to keep boxing on the high plane it has attained here, and they deserve help from the commission—not competition.

Turner and Ahearn first showed Archibald here—gave him work when he was the laughing stock of New York and other Northern points, and made a grade-A box-office attraction of him. They built him up to the point where New York's commission invited him to box Mike Belloise for its copyright on the featherweight championship, and then awarded him the belt when he defeated Belloise.

They Can Stand It

More recently, the firm brought in Leo Rodak and Freddy Miller for the top N. B. A. 126-pound ranking. They gambled on this show, an artistic financial flop, as well as all of the shows in which Archibald was featured. They did the work of building up these fighters, and, in the event that Archibald does sign for a bout with Rodak, they deserve to have the opportunity of staging the match. It would be a financial success, and at the moment Messrs. Turner and Ahearn could stand a little uplifting at the boxoffice.

If Maj. Brown and the Police Boys clubs are thinking of aiding and abetting Al Weill (who is prone to forget past favors quickly) in putting over this deal, they will be literally stealing a show that rightfully belongs to Turner and Ahearn. It is to be sincerely hoped that they will view the matter in this light, and not only reject Weill's proposal, but give the one local club very assistance in staging the match.

The Police Boys clubs are worthy of every consideration, but it seems to us that they might command more respect and admiration if they would sponsor interclub matches, build up their own attractions and leave the professional field to a promoter who deserves credit for keeping the game going when other faint-hearted promoters folded and quit in despair.

Cards Play In Finale Saturday

Meet South Carolina G. W., Terps Busy G.U. Bowl Bid Denied But One's Expected

By Jack Munhall.

With Georgetown already finished, the District collegiate football season will officially close Saturday when Catholic University meets South Carolina at Brookland Stadium in the third game scheduled hereabouts this week. On Thanksgiving Day, George Washington plays West Virginia in its homecoming at Griffith Stadium, and Maryland travels to Baltimore to engage Washington Lee.

Both of these clashes loom as evenly-matched affairs, but local fans are more interested in what will become of Georgetown now that it has completed a perfect season and stands as the only major team in the East with a perfect record.

Will Georgetown receive a bowl bid, and, if so, will it accept? Did Georgetown's unimpressive victory over Maryland impair its chances of getting a bowl offer?

These and other questions of the same nature are being heard about town today and left unanswered. It appears that even Georgetown University authorities do not know their answer.

No Definite Offer

The Reverend Father John J. Kehoe, Georgetown faculty moderator of athletics, admitted as much last night when approached on the subject. While intimating that Georgetown had been sent "feelers" on several post-season games, Father Kehoe denied that there had been a definite offer and said he did not know if the school would consider any such bid.

"We haven't even considered the matter of bowl games," he said last night. "And there probably will be no official news from Georgetown for a week or ten days. In that time we shall have had a board meeting to discuss possible post-season offers."

The "feelers" Georgetown has received were from promoters of the Eastern Bowl game to be held in New York; the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, and the Orange Bowl in Miami it has been learned from a usually reliable source. Of the three it is most likely that Georgetown will receive and accept the Orange Bowl assignment, which Catholic University carried out successfully in 1936 against Mississippi.

Since the list of candidates for the Eastern game includes Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Holy Cross and Villanova, there is little hope that Georgetown will get the bid.

Tech Has Inside

The Hoyas' chance of going to the Cotton Bowl are brighter, but undefeated Texas Tech, with a more impressive record, seems to have the inside track for that spot.

Thus, if the Hoyas are to play in any postseason game, the Orange Bowl apparently is it. Most eligible of the Eastern teams for this game are, in addition to Georgetown, Holy Cross, Villanova, Boston College, Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech. From that list you can immediately cross off Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech, because it is extremely doubtful if either school would be interested. It has always been Rose Bowl or nothing for the Panthers, while the Tartans are accustomed to frown with disfavor on postseason contests.

Which leaves only Villanova, Holy Cross, Boston College and Georgetown. Boston College, twice tied, hardly rates with the other three. Holy Cross, beaten only once, by Carnegie Tech, 7-6, seems the most logical choice, with Villanova and Georgetown neck and neck for alternate.

Mellendeck Tops

Joe Mellendeck held his 1-point lead in the race for individual scoring honors last week. Although he left the Maryland game on Georgetown's first play from scrimmage, Mellendeck's total of 31 points stood up when Lou Ghecas, his teammate and runnerup with 30, and the other leaders also went scoreless.

Biggest gains of the week were registered by a pair of ends, Bob Kercher, of Georgetown, and Capt. John Kasunich, of Catholic U. Each accounted for all the points scored by their teams. Kercher twice caught passes for touchdowns against Maryland, and Kasunich did the same against Loyola of the South yesterday.

By his scoring 13 points, Kercher jumped from a tie for eighth place into the fifth spot, which he shares with G. W.'s Vic Sampson. Sampson and another Colonial, Bob Nowaskey, incidentally, are the only players likely to oust Mellendeck from the top. Kasunich's points were his first.

Oliveri, Seay Win Public Links Events; Al Schneider Victor

Schwartz, Block Also Win at Woodmont Six Tie at Manor; Winkler Winner Turkeys to Harrison, Hutchinson

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Andy Oliveri, in expected fashion, and W. W. Seay, in a distinct upset, completed the local public links tournament card yesterday with respective victories in the Rock Creek and East Potomac match-play turkey tournaments. Some 25 country club members were also turkey winners in various events that brought the 1938 intraclub cards near completion.

Oliveri was even par at Rock Creek as he trounced Jack Sinclair by a 5 and 4 margin while W. W. Seay was several strokes over regulation figures at East Potomac but played well enough to score a surprise 2 and 1 triumph over Jimmy Gipe, after being two up at the turn.

Gipe was ranked No. 2 in the public links rankings yesterday in the post, and Seay played seventh, but despite the latter's victory the standings would not be changed as Gipe's previous record was much stronger. Seay strengthened his seventh rating with his first tournament victory of the year.

Other results at East Potomac, with the winners receiving turkeys, included: Second flight, B. C. Brown defeated Milton Baker, 2 and 1; third, M. Belino defeated Keith Kallio, 1 up, 19 holes; fourth, R. Hefferman won over T. J. White, 3 and 2; fifth, Joe Bailey trounced W. K. McMahon, 6 and 5, and sixth, J. Wolk defeated Jack Grimm on the first extra hole.

Oliveri was two up at the turn against Sinclair in the annual November event at the uptown course, and started back 4-4-4-2-3 to win by the five up margin. It was the public links champion's second tournament victory of the year, and in the event concluded yesterday he won the medal with a 70 and every match by a margin of five or more up.

WOODMONT

Al Schneider, Dave Schwartz and Ellis Block, who played well under this handicap, were the turkey winners in the annual pre-Thanksgiving event at Woodmont, that attracted the biggest entry list in the club's history. The golf committee, under L. V. Freudberg, chairman, awarded 26 prizes, turkeys to the low net winners of the three classes, and 23 others—that would probably break if dropped.

Class A winners were low net—Al Schneider with 80-13, 67 and L. V. Freudberg, 88-17, 71; Herb Sauber, 88-16, 72, and A. J. Stephens, 89-17, 72. Low gross on first nine went to Lou Harris, with a 42, and second nine, to M. Isemann, 42. Most fours, A. L. Steinem, 8.

Dave Schwartz's 81-20, 61 was winner by a seven-stroke margin in Class B, with Al Small second, 87-19, 68; Dr. Max Hurston, 91-22, 69, and George Jacobson, 90-20, 70. M. Gewirz, with 45-11, 34, had low net, first nine, and Al Dennett, 45-12½, 32½, second nine. M. Bildnar's eight 5s were tops.

Ellis Block scored 95-28, 67, to win Class C by a stroke over Ed Cafritz, 87-19, 69. Morris Cafritz had 101-30, 71 for third. Ed Ostrow won low net first nine, with 49-17½, 31½, and Nate Aaronson, low net second nine, 48-14½, 34½. H. Zirkin had nine 6s to be among the winners.

Other prizes include low gross to Howard Nordlinger, former club champion, with an 80, second to Milton Harris, present club titleholder, with 83, and third to William Ilch, 85. Dr. Saul Schwartzback took the most strokes, 131, and Nathan Seigel the most strokes on a hole selected by Pro Gene Larkin, the thirteenth. Siegel required eight to hole out.

MANOF

The ladies turkey tournament on the Inside Nine at Manor attracted 68 players, and ten finished in a deadlock with net 40's in the nine hole event. Six winners were drawn, including Mrs. M. F. Andrews, Mrs. W. W. England, Mrs. J. B. Saunders, Nellie May Neff, Mrs. J. E. Mansbury and Mrs. H. P. Brown. Mrs. C. F. Rhodes, Mrs. Kent Ashford, Mrs. P. W. Budsworth and Mrs. Dawson Lunger lost in the draw.

The committee handling the dinner-dance honoring Marion Brown, to be held at the club December 1, in honor of the District and Middle Atlantic champion, met yesterday under Chairman W. W. Jones, and made plans to distribute the tickets, that are limited to 300. A floor show has been added to the evening's entertainment.

CONGRESSIONAL

P. J. Winkler won low gross in the Congressional turkey tournament with an even 80. V. M. Huse, 91-24, 67, and H. D. Krafft, 89-18, 71, won turkeys with first and second low net scores.

Krafft won in a draw for the second prize over George Neville, 82-11, 71, and H. E. Randel, 88-17, 71. The event completed the club's tournament schedule.

COLUMBIA

L. J. Goode scored his second eagle in the last three days over the Columbia layout, dropping a seven iron second shot on the par 4 seventh hole, while playing with Barge Hartz, Dana Belser and George M. Ferris.

Goode chipped in from off the green for an eagle on the fifth hole, 533-yard par 5, on Friday.

BEAVER DAM

Jess Baggett and John R. Miller won the low gross prize in the two-man sweepstakes, with half handicap allowance, yesterday at Beaver Dam. Baggett scored an 83, and Miller a 78 for a total 161.

Net winners were A. J. Wertis, 83, and R. Thrasher, 83, for a total 166 and a 10 handicap, 156, and W. T. Henderson, 83; C. W. Griffin, 86, 169 total and a 10 handicap for 159 net. Seventeen teams competed.

INDIAN SPRING

Lou Harrison won the six-selective holes event at the Four Corners course with a 27 total, two over par, for the first, fifth, tenth, twelfth, fifteenth and eighteenth holes. S. M. Smith won the turkey for high gross on the same holes with a 38.

Professional Al Jamison and Arthur Urban defeated Jerry Hart and Claude Rippy, Congressional, 2 and 1, in an informal match. Urban's 73 was low for the foursome.

Mrs. Perry Hoover won first low net in the ladies turkey tournament, with 89-15, 74, while Mrs. Harry Sharpe was second with 93-15, 74. Turkeys in the blind bogey play went to Mrs. Charlotte Stern, 89, and Mrs. W. R. Stone, 82.

CAPITAL

Three tied with net 78s in the Capital Club's turkey play, T. N. Hunter, 92-14 78, E. Piper, 108-30, 78, and Judge P. D. Gold, 96-18 78, all receiving the Thanksgiving birds.

KENWOOD

George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood pro, and F. Schider won the two-man best ball event at Kenwood, one of three club tournaments over the week-end. The winners had a 72 to beat Dr. Leo Gaffney and Dr. K. Smith by a stroke.

Mrs. J. C. Foulis and R. H. Suchs won the mixed Scotch foursome with a net of 67, from a gross 95 and 28 handicap, while Mrs. A. D. Kane and Karl Gnam were second, 90-20, 70, and Dr. Mildred Adams and George A. Tew low gross with 89.

J. E. Hutchinson, jr., won the turkey in the blind bogey play.

Rovers Beat Cubs, 4-3, In Final Seconds

New York, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The New York Rovers scored with only 15 seconds to go to defeat the Hershey Cubs, 4-3, in an Eastern Hockey League game today in Madison Square Garden.

A solo shot by Van Dalle tied the score for the Cubs in the last period, but Sauchuk took a double pass from Brownride and Pike to sink the winning counter.

Washington Bowlers Win

Beat Baltimoreans Margin Is 102 Pins 2 Double Strikes Help

Double-headed strikes by Joe Harrison and Max Rosenberg in the eighth and ninth frames of the fourth game nipped a Baltimore Dr. Pepper five's rally and permitted Rosenberg's Regal Neon Sign bowlers to capture the Capital's initial intercity match of the year by 102 pins, 3,243 to 3,141, at Chevy Chase alleys yesterday afternoon, before 800 spectators.

Going into the fourth game the Washingtonians had a 72-pin margin. Almost from the opening box the Baltimoreans clicked with clock-like smoothness and midway through the fourth setto had gobbled up the 72-pin deficit and were piling a nifty bundle of duckpins in their favor.

Rosenberg, who had retired in favor of Perce Wolfe, at anchor, after the third game, entered in the fray in the seventh frame. It was the spark which short-circuited the Dr. Pepper's charge. Marks flew thick and fast, with Harrison and Rosenberg doubling on strikes. Though the Monumental citizens copped the game, 668 to 633, the Regals held a 37-pin edge.

That ended the Dr. Pepper's threat. The final game was all Washington's, with the 800 fans speculating on a 700 game. The Regals missed by 8 pins, rolling 692 to 627.

Ed Blakeney was the individual star for Regal with 693, while Astor Clarke had 674 and Harrison 654. Top honors for Baltimore were garnered by Meyer Jacobson, with 680, while Bill Guerke rolled 678.

Stop Wilson, Navy's Plan

Held Chief Threat Army Back Lauded Hardwick Drills Team

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20.—Lieut. Hank Hardwick, Navy's head football coach, returned from Princeton yesterday with an enhanced respect for the Army team, which will meet his charges next Saturday, as did the other members of the coaching staff, who accompanied their chief and saw the Cadets win from Princeton by 19 to 7.

Of Woodrow Wilson, Army back, Hardwick said: "Wilson is undoubtedly one of the great backs of the year and our team must stop him to win. Frankly, I did not know how good a back he is until I saw him at Princeton. He has everything—a great defensive player, as well as expert as a ball carrier, passer and punter. The general threat, his fine defensive ability being added to his expertness along the usual three lines."

However, the coaches felt that it would not do to watch Wilson with any degree of concentration as "Huey" Long, Capt. Jimmy Schwenk and Arthur Frontezak, who completed the first-string backfield, are all dangerous.

The coaches also said that the Army was strong in blocking, and mentioned particularly Harry Stella, the former team mate of Al Bergner, the Navy's powerful tackle. Stella is a youth of similar size and ability and one of the best linemen of the year.

The squad will be allowed more time tomorrow than is usual for Mondays and will keep up hard work through Wednesday. On Thursday, the squad will leave Annapolis headed towards Philadelphia, the scene of Saturday's conflict.

Nine places on the starting team are settled with a reasonable degree of certainty. Monty Whitehead and Harold Hansen, the 215-pounder who did such remarkable defensive work against Columbia, may divide the wing back position and it is uncertain which will start.

Steel Output 63 Per Cent, Top for Year

35 Per Cent Year Ago
Autos Chief Support
Railroad Orders Lag

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Nov. 20.—Continuing to draw its best support from the automotive industry and accompanied by a burst of strength in scrap markets, steel making has edged upward to the year's best level, the magazine Steel said today.

With active buying of sheets and strip made unnecessary by previous heavy coverage, total bookings in November appear likely to fall below the October volume, the magazine said. Pressure to relieve backlogs of flat-rolled steel is expected to bolster steel making the remainder of this quarter, however, and is partly instrumental for giving November ingot output the prospect of showing the largest percentage gain over October in history.

Building and engineering construction continues to compare favorably with activity of a year ago, due in a large measure to public works projects, but dullness in railroad steel buying is having an adverse effect on heavy rolled products.

Producers have given little intimation regarding possible price changes next quarter. Pending a further improvement in business there appears a disposition to let quotations stand, despite unfavorable earnings of the industry, the magazine said.

Activity at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh and Chicago districts provided most of the 1.5 increase in the national steel making rate to 63 per cent. A year ago the rate was 35 per cent and headed downward. Pittsburgh operations rose 4 points to 52 per cent, Chicago 2 to 60, Cleveland 2.5 to 79.5, Wheeling 2 to 66, New England 8 to 80, and eastern Pennsylvania 1 to 36.

Except for a 6-point drop to 60 per cent at Youngstown, other districts were unchanged, including Buffalo at 60, Birmingham at 68, Cincinnati at 75, St. Louis at 51.5 and Detroit at 82.

The steelworks scrap composite rose 50 cents to $14.79, while the iron and steel composite was up 6 cents to $36.35. The finished steel composite was unchanged at $56.50.

Lumber Shipments 54% of 1929

The lumber industry during the Armistice holiday week ended November 12, stood at 49 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 54 per cent of average 1929 shipments. Production was about 59 per cent of the corresponding week of 1929; shipments, about 67 per cent of that week's shipments; new orders about 75 per cent of that week's orders, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important softwood and hardwood mills.

In the week ended November 12, 1938, due to Armistice Day, reported production, new orders and shipments were all less than in the preceding week, but on a per day basis were slightly greater. New business was 34 per cent above that booked in the corresponding week of 1937, every reporting region showing gain over last year. New business was 5 per cent above, and shipments were 3 per cent below output in the week ended November 12.

Chains and Credit

New York, Nov. 20.—Commenting on the part played by chain stores in distributing farm crops, Prof. R. S. Alexander, marketing expert of Columbia University, estimates that food chains alone purchase 30 per cent of the nation's entire agricultural output.

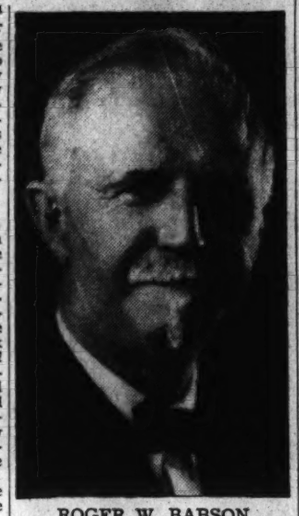
Demand for Good Securities Exceeds Supply, Babson Says

Many Investment Channels Now Closed
Pension Programs Call for Large Reserves
Bank Groups Have Been Heavy Buyers

By Roger W. Babson.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 20.—Business continues to roll on toward prosperity. It is now only 11 per cent under normal compared with 28 per cent below last June! This is one of the most sensational recoveries in history and the end of the rise is not yet in sight. Meanwhile, security prices have run up even faster than business. Hence, the question in every investor's mind today is: What should I do about my securities?

In answering that question let me emphasize that no one can tell you whether the market is going up or down next week. Most of those who attempt to do so and who "play" the short swings eventually end up in the poor house! They can lose their money more pleasantly at the race track while having the fun of watching the horses run. Hence, I do not want anyone to interpret this article as a forecast of what the market will do immediately.



ROGER W. BABSON

Business Outlook Good

Thirty-five years of experience in analyzing the business cycle have taught me one vital lesson: Security prices depend first on the business outlook and second on the supply and demand for securities. Certainly, my investigations have proved that the business outlook does not depend on security prices! Hence, because I believe that business will continue to rise, I feel that carefully selected stocks and bonds of sound, progressive companies are still attractive. Not only can business break through the all-time highs of 1929, but here are some other vital considerations.

The net result of certain of these basic factors is to create a shortage of good securities:

(1) Many investment channels, which formerly were attractive, have been narrowed or virtually closed under new legislative setups. A good example of this is the mortgage paper field. Only a few years ago conservative investors could always buy good mortgages to yield a 6 per cent return. The Home Loan first and then the FHA killed this class of investment. Utilities are another example—they are still unattractive to many investors because of political saber rattling.

Pension Funds Growing

(2) The social security program of the Government, plus pension policies of individual companies, call for big reserve funds. These reserves must be invested. So far, Government securities have been getting the call for this purpose. Sooner or later, however, the demand from this source will spill over into corporation securities.

(3) Bond investors are having a hard job to pick up good new issues. Many a company needing capital is selling its new securities directly to insurance companies. This practice provides a detour around some of the Government's restrictions and requirements on capital offerings. Moreover, I believe that the direct sales of new securities to institutional investors will increase rather than diminish.

(4) Banks may also buy direct. A group of banks, hungry for a chance to make 2 or 3 per cent on their money, may together take up an entire issue of securities. This, of course, would further restrict the supply of desirable investments available to the public.

(5) This trend toward the private sale of securities is now limited to bonds. However, the same thing could happen to new stock offerings. Fire insurance companies and investment trusts are big buyers of stocks. They are just as eager to get good stocks as life insurance companies are to get good bonds. They could easily suck a hole in new stock offerings if they should also decide to short-circuit the SEC.

Huge Demand

Then there are also basic reasons why the potential demand for securities is greater than ever before:

(1) Money available for investment is the most abundant in history. Banks, insurance companies, and individual investors have huge wads of cash ready for investment. Credit reserves are very large.

(2) Tax laws are forcing money into existing securities, for there are few brand-new issues. Such financing as has been done in recent years is almost entirely refunding of existing securities. New promotions are being discouraged by tight financing regulations, while heavy taxes on capital gains make big investors leery of putting funds into new enterprises.

End of Tax-Exempts

(3) Elimination of tax-exempt bonds will be one of the biggest factors in pushing up corporation security prices over the next few months. I think that tax-exemption on new Government bonds will be stopped. Many people who buy such bonds, because of the elimination feature alone, will prefer choice bonds and stocks of private companies.

(4) Interest rates are very low. The low rates paid at savings banks and on life insurance premiums and annuities, and the fact that no interest is now paid on commercial accounts, make many persons seek choice securities selling to yield 3 to 4 per cent. Some of these people were never before interested in stocks or bonds.

(5) Foreign funds are constantly drifting into American investments. The United States and Canada are a haven for distressed capital from all parts of a frightened world.

Conclusion

The combination of the huge demand for good securities and the diminishing supply of such issues should push prices of well-selected stocks and bonds higher. Although prices have already advanced sharply, I am convinced that medium-grade bonds or choice stocks will move higher.

P. S.—I have received so many letters from friends and critics of Dr. Townsend regarding my statements of two weeks ago in this column that it is physically impossible for me to answer them. Therefore, I take this means of thanking both those who criticize and those who approve. I shall try to be guided by all this correspondence.

Business Gains But Securities Drop in Week

Values Fall 3 Billion
Reich Again a Factor
Business News Good

By the United Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Business moved ahead to new highs for the recovery last week but stocks suffered their heaviest selling since the Czech war scare. The setback in securities, which wiped out almost three billions in market valuation of stocks on the "big board" alone and brought declines ranging to 8 points in the main list, largely reflected an impaired technical condition created by the almost vertical rise which had taken place in values since signing of the Munich peace pact.

Uneasiness over the German-United States diplomatic situation was a major factor in setting off the decline, but, in itself, was not the cause of the relatively sharp reaction. Many traders have become convinced within the past few days that stocks already have discounted all the earnings improvement in prospect from now until the end of the year. On that basis they lightened their holdings with the intention of adding to commitments when values were more attractive.

Business showed no signs of leveling off, however, and industrial activity indices crossed the year ago level. The automobile, steel, construction and retail trade industries furnished singularly cheering news and, all in all, the entire domestic business scene was the most encouraging since the post-depression recovery terminated in the fall of last year.

Consumer response to the new 1939 cars at the various automobile shows generally outran expectations. Sales at the New York show were reported the best in years. And some quarters lifted 1939 production estimates to a level 35 per cent over the 1938 output. Ward's reported last week's production at 96,735 units, the best since August 14, 1937, and employment in the major automobile centers was reported around the peak for this year.

Steel operations spurted to 62.6 per cent of capacity, the best since October 11, 1937, and a level at which the entire industry can operate with nice profits. A still higher rate was expected to be set before the year-end, although a decline appears in prospect for this week.

Heavy engineering construction awards last week rose 69 per cent ahead of the 1937 period, lifting the total for the year to date some 10 per cent over 1937 when the total was the best since 1931. October building of all types was reported 75 per cent ahead of the 1937 period and the best for any month since March, 1931.

Retail and wholesale trade continued on the upgrade, with many quarters predicting that the 1938 Christmas season will be bigger on a unit sales basis than 1937.

Car loadings and electricity production for the preceding week made the best year-to-year showing of 1938. Other good railroad news included better than anticipated October earnings and definite indications that rail aid legislation will be enacted at the next session of Congress.

Aviation shares were aided by the possibility that this Nation may double, treble or even quadruple its aircraft force in view of the world armament race.

Utility shares, which were relatively dull and made a relatively good showing, were under the influence of stock liquidation problems created by the integration plans now being filed with the SEC.

Traders generally ignored the good news. Building shares were rather hard hit with Johns Manville down 8 points on the week and steel shares had losses extending to almost 5 points in United States and Bethlehem.

Of the 1,138 issues traded, 888 closed with declines, 157 were higher and 93 were unchanged. One hundred and twenty-five issues made new highs for 1938 early in the week.

The Dow-Jones industrial average was down 8.03 points net on the week to 150.36; rail, off 2.23 to 30.94; utility, down 1.75 to 22.94, and 65 stocks off 2.95 to 49.75.

Sales for the full week were 7,760,010 shares, compared with 8,403,203 in the preceding week, which included two holidays.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton Burgess

The Little Cop in Fur

The outlaw in the end must pay;
He'll find there is no other way.
—Old Mother Nature.

Aunt Salley looked at Shadow the Weasel doubtfully. He was in the small cage trap in which Farmer Brown's boy had caught him. He was long and slim, of course. Most members of the Weasel family are long and slim. It is a characteristic of the family. Jimmy Skunk and Glutton the Wolverine are the two members who are not slim and trim. In shape they do not look the least bit like Weasels. But Shadow was such a little fellow!

"Do you mean to tell me, Tommy, that you expect that little fellow to drive those big Rats out of my house? Why, they'll eat him alive!" exclaimed Aunt Sally.

Tommy chuckled. "Don't you worry about him," said he. "He's a little cop in fur, and you know all outlaws and racketeers try to get away from the cops. That is just what those Rats will do when he gets after them."

"Supposing he doesn't go after them," said Aunt Sally.

"He will. Don't you worry about that. You'll see presently," replied Tommy.

"But if two or three of those big Rats should turn on him at once he wouldn't have a chance," protested Aunt Sally.

"But they won't," was the prompt reply. "He will have them licked as soon as they know he is about. They will be so scared that there won't be any fight in any of them. He is just like some dictators today."

Aunt Sally looked at Tommy as if a bit puzzled. "Just what do you mean by that?" she wanted to know.

"'He's a fighter, but he is a bluffer too, and those bigger and stronger than he are afraid to call his bluff and he knows it. I am going to let him go at one of those holes the Rats have made and pretty soon you'll see something, or I don't know Shadow the Weasel," replied Tommy.

So Tommy took the cage to one of the holes under Aunt Sally's house and opened the door just enough for Shadow the Weasel to get through. This he did promptly and disappeared in the hole.

They did. Hardly had Shadow vanished in that hole when out of another hole came a gray old Rat and he was in a hurry. He was in a great hurry. It was plain to see that he was frightened. Straight for the barn he headed and if ever he had run faster it must have been when he was younger. A moment later

He was in the small cage trap in which Farmer Brown's Boy had caught him two half-grown Rats appeared from another hole. They also ran for the barn. You see, that was the nearest place that offered shelter.

Tommy and Aunt Sally went in the house. "Just listen to that!" cried Tommy. "Didn't I tell you that that little cop would have those outlaws on the run?"

It was even so. There were muffled sounds from under the floors and in the wall. The suggested hurried fight as in a panic. There were squeals that even one who knew nothing of the language of Rats would recognize as caused by fright. Tommy called Aunt Sally to a window from which they could look over toward the barn. There were big gray old grandfathers and grandmothers. There were medium sized Rats, sleek young Rats and youngsters hardly old enough to make the trip across the dooryard.

"My land!" exclaimed Aunt Sally. "No wonder

John M. Keith, Retired G-Man, Ends His Life

Burial at Clarendon Caught Gaston Means Shoots Self in Bed

John M. Keith, 43, retired G-man credited with numerous spectacular captures, was dead last night at Philadelphia, shot through the head with his own pistol. Coroner W. J. Rushong, of Montgomery County, Pa., said Keith committed suicide.

He will be buried tomorrow in Arlington County after services at 3 p. m. at Ives funeral home in Clarendon.

Keith captured Gaston B. Means and Norman (the Fox) Whitaker in the $104,000 Lindbergh kidnaping hoax of Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, George (Machinegun) Kelly and a host of other criminals. He resigned from the Federal Bureau of Investigation two years ago to take a post as special investigator for the Philco Radio and Television Corporation.

Shot Self in Bed

His wife told police she heard a muffled explosion in her husband's room at their home in Cheltenham, a suburb of Philadelphia, Saturday. His pistol was found on the floor near the bed in which he lay. With a bullet in his skull, he died that night in Chestnut Hill Hospital.

Born in Texas, Keith joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1917. He served in the World War in espionage investigation.

After the war Keith was at different times a special agent in charge of field offices throughout the country.

Keith came to Washington in 1926 and in 1927 organized the Bureau of Investigation training school.

In 1931 Keith led a group of agents who fought a pitched gun battle with three train robbers near Fort Worth, Tex., killing two and capturing the other.

Aided Durkin Capture

He was responsible for the capture of the "Sheik Bandit," Martin Durkin, and the Lindbergh kidnaping swindlers, Means and Whitaker. In 1936 Keith's man-hunting activities took him abroad in search of robbers who stole $2,000,000 in United States Treasury notes from the Bank of Manhattan. When he turned in his report 20 men and women were under arrest waiting trial and $1,113,000 of the loot had been recovered.

Keith leaves his wife, Pansy, and a 14-year-old daughter, Katherine.

YEAH, I KNOW THIS AIN'T TH' PAPER YA PICKED OUT, BUT I THINK YOU'LL LIKE IT BETTER—SEE?
UH-Y-YES, IT IS HANDSOME—VERY HANDSOME INDEED—YES, SIR!
FOR A LONG TIME MR. MILQUETOAST HAS BELIEVED ALL PAPER HANGERS DICTATORS AT HEART, AND THAT IT IS DANGEROUS TO CROSS THEM—

Bob Burns Says—

It looks like everybody that's got anything to sell out here in Hollywood figgers the same way. If they can get a moving picture actress to use it and vouch for it, they're made.

One actress out here had a little dog that'd lost his appetite so she took him to a veterinary. The veterinary got out a box of dog biscuit that he was puttin' on the market and he says, "Now, you feed these to your dog and you'll find out that he'll love 'em, and if it does bring back his appetite, I would like to have a testimonial from you."

One week later the actress called the veterinary and said, "I just want to tell you how hungry my dog is. He broke in my kitchen and ate up everything!" The doctor says, "Everything?" and she says, "Well, everything but the dog biscuit!"

Hull Praised For Work as Good Neighbor

Educators, Editors Join Lima Opportunity Cited On National Broadcast

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Three educators and two editors paid tribute to Secretary of State Hull tonight for his application of President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy.

Speaking from four cities in a Nation-wide N. B. C. broadcast, they were Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University; the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame University and a delegate to the forthcoming Pan-American Conference at Lima, Peru; Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California; Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, and W. W. Waymack, editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Lima Opportunity Cited

"Throughout the Americas the name of Secretary Hull spells dignity, sympathy and understanding without compromise of principle," Dr. Dodds said. "At the (Lima) conference many informal opportunities to promote his disinterested policies will arise, perhaps more significant than any of the items of the official agenda. May he find the work of his hands established by a resulting benefit to all American states."

"When the time comes for writing the history of these fateful years, perspective will reveal the true stature of Cordell Hull," Morley declared. "As is the case with all great men, Mr. Hull has infinite patience. He knows that real progress, progress which holds its gains, is always slow."

Waymack praised Hull's furthering of the "good neighbor" policy at Montevideo and Buenos Aires and said "certainly that gives us reason to expect further fine foundation laying at Lima next month."

"The Americas must rededicate themselves at Lima to doing the practical, peaceful things that can make liberalism live," he said.

Dr. Sproul reviewed the history of Pan-American conferences and said that for the coming one "no abler representative of the United States could have been chosen than Mr. Cordell Hull. In deeds and words he has shown his abiding faith in the concept that civilization is a collective achievement and a common responsibility."

Recalling the reticence of South Americans and North Americans to "get acquainted" in earlier years, Father O'Hara said:

"Secretary Hull has done much to pave the way for a sound mutual appreciation between our honest citizens and those of the republics to the south of us."

Radio 'Hams' Test Readiness For Emergency

18 Stations Take Part 1 at Chevy Chase, Md. Monthly Drills Held

The Eastern seaboard will not be without radio service if other lines of communication fail in a future national disaster. This was demonstrated yesterday when the 18 amateur radio stations of the Susquehanna Emergency Net held their monthly drill over the National Broadcasting Co.'s red network.

The Emergency Net, which was formed by amateur radio operators who served in the Susquehanna River flood of 1936, is composed of 16 stations along the Susquehanna Valley, 1 in Chevy Chase, Md., operated by Roy C. Corderman, 4401 Leland street northwest, and the control station at York, Pa.

In order to keep themselves prepared in case they are needed for communications work at any time, the 18 amateurs hold monthly drills in which they transmit reports on conditions in the Susquehannah Valley to the United States Weather Bureau at Harrisburg, Pa.

That the operators of the emergency net do more than just stay in practice was shown by their work in the New England hurricane emergency of last summer. At that time, when telephone and telegraph lines were down, the amateur operators aided rescue work by transmitting last-minute information and instructions to relief units.

The stations of the emergency net were not chosen until it was known they fulfilled certain requirements, Corderman, who is transmission supervisor of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., told The Post. The operators must be experienced men of mature age, must have stations well above the water mark and must participate in the monthly drills.

After conclusion of the drill over the N. B. C. network yesterday, talks were made about the emergency net's work by Lieut. E. K. Jett, chief engineer of the Federal Communications Commission; Merrill Bernard, department of river and flood control of the Weather Bureau, and James Feiser, vice president in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross.

Refugees to Get Palestine Homes

London, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine announced here today that homes for 10,000 German Jewish children would be found in the Holy Land.

The agency said the Jewish National Council for Palestine had reported in Jerusalem that it would find 5,000 homes immediately and 5,000 more within a month. The immigration plans, subject to approval of the British government, it said, would be financed by world Jewry.

Fierce Gale Batters Alaskan Waterfront

Nome, Alaska, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—A fierce gale battered the waterfront of this important Alaska seaport tonight.

The Weather Bureau predicted increasing velocity and there was every indication that serious damage could be expected before morning.

Saposs Accused Of Urging Reds To Use Force

Labor Board Economist Dies Cites '31 Article Places It in Record

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Committee on un-American Activities said yesterday that David J. Sapos, economist for the Labor Relations Board, wrote an article in 1931 advising workers to use force if political action failed to establish socialism.

The Texan said he had placed in the committee record an article which appeared in December, 1931, in Labor Age. In that article, he reported, Saposs wrote in part:

"The Socialist movement must tell the people that capitalism cannot be stabilized, and that the world cannot be served by capitalistic device . . .

"Bourgeois democracy is a sham. When it is evident that socialism is the only remedy, it is not worth saving a democracy in which socialist parties only collaborate with capitalism."

The article said, Dies continued, that if attempts to carry out a Socialist program by political action failed "then the workers must unhesitatingly resort to organized force."

The committee chairman said the article also asserted:

"The international must take the position that if another war occurs the workers will destroy capitalism.

"With that end in view, the workers must be prepared to stretch arms across the frontiers in case of war and definitely win power for themselves."

He expressed the view that Government officials "should be required to believe in our form of Government."

Saposs is "disseminating class hatred," Dies added, "and is the kind of man who is not capable of making an objective study of labor relations."

Pastor Recovers His Car With Gun

Macon, Ga., Nov. 20 (AP).—With a borrowed pistol, the Rev. William Worth Williams, pastor of Mabel White Baptist Church here, chased four thieves riding in his stolen car into a ditch at the end of a blind street tonight.

The pastor had parked his automobile near the church before services. A short time later he found it was gone. A friend offered to drive him to church, and took along his pistol—just in case.

A short distance down the street, the pastor said, he recognized his car with four men in it. He gave chase, firing the borrowed gun until his stolen vehicle crashed into the ditch.
